Europe Thinking Hard. Hitler Pleased Them. Across the Universe. Strange Thing Is Money.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

NO NEED to offer Europe a penny for its thoughts, they are all printed. Portugal is afraid the League of Nations will restore to Germany the German colonies that were handed to Portugal after the war. Portugal "will never consent."

Denmark fears German aggression and must stand "weapon in hand," before the threat of Nazi ambition.

Japan is rather cheerful, feeling that Germany, once fully armed and belligerent, will make Russia turn her eyes from east to west, and leave Japan free to conclude plans in Manchuria.

Austria fears a flood of Nazi sentiment.

Russia, puzzled east and west, is like the old lady who said:

"I tell my husband I do not know what to tell him."

PARIS NEWSPAPERS fear that Europe may again drift into destructive war. But some French newspapers "feel certain that America would co-operate with France and England again."

You can almost hear Uncle Sam exclaiming:

"Goody, goody, perhaps they will let me pay the bills again."

Almost, but not quite.

HITLER'S SPEECH, following his withdrawal from the League of Nations and the disarmament conference, made an excellent impression throughout Germany, and even in Austria the result has been favorable to Hitler.

Viennese students yesterday arranged demonstrations showing sympathy with Germany and Hitler. Crowds of students shouted: "Heil Hitler." Others sang Nazi songs.

The explanation is that Hitler in his speech expressed the emotions and feelings of all the defeated nations, hamstrung by the Versailles treaty.

SMITHSONIAN Institution scientists, with high foreheads, estimate the distance across the universe, as we know it, at "about" 1,140,000,000,000,000,000,000,000 miles. That one hundred and fourteen followed by twenty-two zeros is the estimate of Dr. Edwin Hubble, Mount Wilson Observatory, in California.

Dr. Willem de Sitter, Dutch astronomer, makes the distance 76,000,000,000,000,000,000. No use quarrelling about a few billion miles in an estimate of that kind.

If you crossed the universe in an airplane at 100 miles an hour it would take you one quintillion years to make the trip.

EVERYTHING in the universe is made up of atoms arranged in molecules. If you want to know how many atoms there probably are in the universe, write down 10, followed out by 78 zeros. That is Eddington's estimate.

The angel Gabriel, who must keep track of all that, probably laughs when he sees the figures. For it is quite possible that this thing we call the universe is only a super-molecule in the whole scheme and is beyond the reach of our intellects and our telescopes.

WHO UNDERSTANDS money? Nobody. Who knows why our dollar was kicked off the gold standard and then left hanging in the air like an opossum suspended by the tail from a tree branch, with the dogs barking underneath? Nobody.

Who knows why the dollar went down last week? Who knows why it went up violently yesterday? Nobody, at least, nobody can give any real reason.

European financiers, bothered by the shadow of war, take it for granted, rather prematurely, that this country would have brains enough to keep out of it. Therefore they think American money might turn out to be the best money, and up goes the dollar's value.

You must take your choice, cheap dollars with higher prices for things you own, or an expensive dollar with all prices lower.

YOU WILL want to know that the cave-man, his wife covered with red hair and the baby similarly adorned, are by no means your oldest ancestors.

They go back only about 50,000 years. Ice coming down from the north drove them into the caves. Before that they lived in the open, probably for at least 1,000,000 years.

However, before the regular cave days, they tried to hide at night, for the early human race "ate other creatures in the daytime and was eaten by other creatures at night." The imperfect human eye, unable to see in the dark, feared the animals that see fairly well at night. That, science tells you, is why children instinctively fear the dark.

You should help them gradually, by kindness, to get over it, not make their fear greater by bullying or ridicule. Never compel a timid child to sleep alone in a dark room. You might condemn the child to a lifetime of timidity.

TED COOK, Los Angeles philosopher, offers a suggestion that will interest bankers with customers "under water."

"Maybe the bankers would be more cheerful about guaranteeing each other's deposits if the American people at large would guarantee each other's collateral."

IN THE Moscow Opera House, where names of grand dukes were once on the doors of private boxes, you now see signs indicating that boxes are reserved for various trade unions and factories.

Imagine going to the opera house in New York, Chicago or San Francisco and seeing "Garment Workers' Union, etc., in place of the names of those that owned the diamond coronets, dog-collars and stomachers.

ROCKEFELLER BANK PAYING BIG PENSION

Wiggin Tells Senate Probers He Gets $100,000 a Year

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—A life annuity of $100,000 a year is being paid Albert H. Wiggin, former chairman of the Chase National Bank, by that institution, it was revealed today at the Senate banking inquiry.

With Wiggin on the witness stand, Ferdinand Pecora, special Senate counsel, produced a resolution adopted by the bank's board of directors, authorizing the annuity in December, 1932. The directors voted the retired pay to Wiggin to "discharge in some measure the obligations of the bank to him and in anticipation he will always be prepared to assist us with his advice."

CREDIT CONSULTANT

Pecora asked Wiggin whether he had received the salary up to date. Wiggin nodded affirmatively.

"Have you extended any advice to officers of the bank since this resolution was adopted?"

"I wasn't consulted."

Asked whether he had rendered any service, Wiggin said:

"I have helped to retain depositors and officers of the bank and officers of the bank have consulted me frequently about credit."

Pecora pointed out it was to the retired banker's interest to retain depositors, because of his stock holdings in the bank. Wiggins admitted this.

A little earlier Wiggin revealed the bank directors, under Winthrop W. Aldrich, had divorced the bank from the investment banking business in March, 1933, without consulting him. It was apparent Wiggin and Aldrich were divided upon this issue.

The divorce was negotiated by stripping the bank's affiliate, the Chase Securities Corporation, of

Rudy in Hospital, Gets Nose Revamped

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—(AP.)—Rudy Vallee has just had his nose repaired.

At the Hospital for Joint Disease the entertainer's nurse said:

The operation was performed Sunday afternoon, the nurse said, and Vallee will probably be discharged tomorrow. There was nothing radically wrong with the nose, said the nurse—just minor repairs.

J. V. Thompson Wills 'Treasure Hunt' but Little Actual Money

Chief Legatee

MRS. J. V. THOMPSON

Mrs. Thompson, the former Rose Stillwagon Maloney, chief legatee in the will of the late Josiah Van Kirk Thompson, revealed today.

Fantastic Search For Wealth Directed

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Oct. 17.—The will of Josiah V. Thompson, who was once worth millions, was filed today—a will which makes little or no disposition of actual money but leaves instead fantastic directions to find reputed valuable treasurers.

The late coal baron, who died in comparative poverty after once controlling perhaps $70,000,000, went so far in his strange will to adopt, "if legally possible," the five children of his wife, Rose Thompson.

And, after telling of his plans to recoup his fortune, he wrote these words:

"My smallest black leather satchel is at the entrance to the dressing room off my bedroom, the key being in the satchel. Inside of said satchel, in one of the front pockets as you open it, is a bunch of keys."

One of these keys, Thompson went on, would open a certain satchel which would reveal statements of his funds.

In another instance Thompson write:

". . . in the lower left-hand drawers of my standing desk in the Empire room (of the Thompson mansion), which you reach by getting the key in my left-hand pants pocket opens a door to the left of said standing desks."

Thompson left his Oak Hill mansion to his wife, "my beloved Rose F. Thompson"—if, he qualified, he was able to repurchase the home.

And, he specified, after his wife's death the home—if he was able to regain it—was to go to his daughter, Rose Mary Thompson, and son, Jack Thompson, two of the children he "adopted" in the will.

New Castle Flier Leaps, Misses Death

WIFE KILLED BY AUTO LEAP

BULLETIN.

Mrs. Grace McDade had been suffering from lobar pneumonia probably two days before she received a fractured skull after falling or jumping from her husband's machine, Dr. T. R. Helmbold, Coroner's physician, said late today after performing an autopsy. It clinched her death, he said, suggesting she might have recovered from the head injury.

Edward McDade, 24, unemployed motion picture exhibitor, is being detained for questioning by homicide detectives following the death of his wife, Grace McDade, 21, this morning in St. John's Hospital.

McDade told police, they said, that his wife jumped from their automobile early yesterday morning, following an argument. Picking her up in front of 2116 Charles street—10 doors from their home at 2136 Charles street, McDade said he took her into their home and sent for a physician who ordered her to the hospital. She died of a fractured skull.

Homicide Detectives Robert Carroll and Nicholas Spudich questioned McDade, and were checking his story. They said he told them that after a midnight show, they started home, and en route, an argument started. According to police his wife is alleged to have told him:

"Well, if we cannot get along, we may as well part."

He is said to have answered:

"Maybe you're right."

Shortly after, McDade is said to have told police, she jumped out. The couple have two young children.

Homicide Capt. Frank Ferris today instructed detectives to bring in for questioning a young woman of Carnegie. McDade is alleged to have told Ferris that this woman and he had been friends and that his wife was jealous of her.

JOBS, PAY GAIN IN SEPTEMBER

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—For the sixth consecutive month there was an increase in employment and payrolls in September. Secretary of Labor Perkins said today.

More than 620,000 workers returned to jobs in September in the 17 industrial and business groups surveyed by the department.

More than 200,000 of these workers found employment in manufacturing industries and a slightly larger number in retail trade establishments.

Miss Perkins said:

"Measured from the low point of March, 1933, the bureau's September employment figures show an estimated gain of more than 2,700,000 workers in the 17 industrial groups surveyed over the six-month interval, and an increase of nearly $64,000,000 in total weekly wages disbursed in September over the weekly payroll aggregates of March."

The payroll increase in September over August was estimated at $10,000,000.

While the Public Works Administration has allocated over $300,000,000 for highway work, few contracts had been let by September 15, she said. Adding that gain in employment from this source is not included in the survey.

Gandhi's American Convert Missing

LONDON, Oct. 17.—(INS.)—Indian followers of Mahatma Gandhi, leader of the untouchables, were mystified today by the "disappearance" of Nila Cram Cook, Gandhi's American-born convert, a Bombay disptach to the London Daily Herald stated.

This dispatch said she was last seen in Delhi, barefoot and with shaven head. It was believed she was making a voluntary penitential tour of India.

Germany at Geneva

GERMANY HAS resigned from the League of Nations and withdrawn from the league's conference on the limitation and reduction of armaments.

The world may regret Germany's retirement from Geneva, but any world power that pretends to be surprised by this action insults the intelligence of thoughtful men everywhere.

The course which Germany has taken has long appeared to be inevitable. It has been widely forecast on both sides of the Atlantic. Nor is it necessary to accept the reasons given by the German government in order to comprehend the why and wherefore of Germany's withdrawal from the league and its series of futile and hypocritical conferences on armaments.

AS LONG AGO as last May, in a special cable to the March of Events section of the Hearst Newspapers, Mr. Lloyd George, Great Britain's prime minister during the great war, put the case for Germany clearly and concisely when he said:

"GERMANY WAS DRASTICALLY, THOROUGHLY DISARMED UNDER THE VERSAILLES TREATY AS THE INITIAL STEP IN WORLD DISARMAMENT, AND THOSE NATIONS WHO INSISTED ON STRIPPING HER OF HER WEAPONS AND LEAVING HER DEFENSELESS PLEDGED THEMSELVES TO IMPOSE SIMILAR LIMITATIONS ON THEMSELVES.

"BUT, AFTER ALL THE INTERVENING YEARS, NONE OF GERMANY'S NEIGHBORS, EXCEPT GREAT BRITAIN, REDUCED THEIR ARMAMENTS; ON THE CONTRARY, THEY HAVE GREATLY INCREASED THEM. AND, WHEN AT LAST THE LONG PROMISED CONFERENCE MET, IT DICKERED FOR MONTHS TOGETHER, ACHIEVING NO POSITIVE RESULT BEYOND CONVINCING GERMANY—WITH GOOD REASON—THAT MOST OF HER NEIGHBORS HAD NOT THE SLIGHTEST INTENTION OF REDEEMING THE PLEDGE THEY GAVE AT VERSAILLES BY CARRYING OUT AN HONEST MEASURE OF DISARMAMENT.

"IS IT SURPRISING THAT GERMANY, FRANTIC AT FINDING HERSELF THUS ENTANGLED HELPLESSLY IN A WEB OF FALSEHOOD AND CHICANERY, WENT RATHER MAD? HITHERTO SHE HAD BEEN LED BY MODERATE, AND CONCILIATORY STATESMEN LIKE STRESEMANN AND BRUENING. SHE THREW BRUENING OVER AND TURNED, INSTEAD TO THE VIOLENT, FANATICAL GROUP OF NATIONAL SOCIALISTS LED BY THE HYPNOTIC ORATOR, HITLER."

THIS IS Lloyd George speaking, the head of the British government who negotiated and signed the Versailles treaty as Great Britain's representative.

The truthfulness of the British interpretation of the general disarmament pledge made by France and her allies in the Versailles treaty does not lack American corroboration.

Addressing the general commission of the disarmament conference as President Roosevelt's agent, Norman H. Davis said last May:

"The disarmament conference has reached the moment for definite decision. . . . A new

WORK BEGUN BY COUNTY HEADS

Beamish in Demand Cites Defects; Use In November Seen

Minor changes in Allegheny County voting machines were ordered today by Richard J. Beamish, Secretary of the Commonwealth, to enable their use at the November election.

The County Commissioners announced they already had begun remedying the defects cited by Beamish. Election Bureau officials said they expected the machines to be ready for use of the voters November 7.

CITES DEFECTS

Beamish, after an examination of machines by a committee of experts, ordered three defects remedied. Changes identical with those suggested already uncovered by the Harris investigating committee, had been begun on machines not used in the September primaries. Work on the machines used will be started as soon as these are available.

In a letter to the Commissioners, Bemish said he would withhold approval of the machines until these changes had been made:

"First, the shield covering the operative mechanism at the top of the machine should be so placed and fastened that it will protect the voting mechanism against tampering.

DENIES CHARGE

"Second, the voting buttons and the mechanism controlled by them should be so adjusted that they can be returned to neutral after having been thrown into a voting position prior to the actual registration of a vote.

"Third, the adjusting and correcting of voting mechanism shall be made so that it will be impossible by individual manipulation of the voting button to vote for one more candidate than the number of candidates for which the voter is entitled to vote."

FIND BOY LOST IN OLD MINE

International News Service.

INDIANA, Pa., Oct. 17.—Sleepy, hungry, soaked and discouraged, 9-year-old Milton Hancock, of Palmertown, was found today by searching parties after spending the night wandering through the recesses of an abandoned mine near his home.

Doctors said he had not been hurt but had suffered from exposure and hunger.

Searchers — deputy sheriffs, state highway patrolmen, Black Lick volunteer firemen and volunteer citizens—found the lad sitting on a fall of rock in a room about 800 feet from the entrance of the pit.

The lad got lost in the mine while wandering around yesterday afternoon waiting for his uncle, Louis Hancock, to fill a truck.

'Scare' Bombs Hurled at Pickets, Shots Fly in Coke Region Strike

Independent Union Attacks Pinchot, United Miners

The sound of "scare" bombs exploding and guns firing awakened the strike-torn Fayette County mine area early today.

One man was slightly hurt and several women suffered from shock; the windows of two houses were blown out in the Colonial mine district, where striking United Mine Workers are picketing the captive mines of the H. C. Frick Coke Company.

One bomb was thrown near the postoffice at Rowes Run, near Colonial No. 3 mine. Others were thrown near the picket lines.

With little indications when the peace negotiations between Thomas Moses, for the captive mine owners, and Philip Murray, union leader, were to resume, Fayette and Greene County mines, captive and commercial, remained closed. Mines in adjoining counties were operating generally, many of them at full capacity. Pickets were stationed at the key places among the captive mines.

A barrage of words added to the situation. Alfred Engell, of Uniontown, president of the Miners' Independent Brotherhood, in a letter to Recovery Administrator

Peace Negotiations For Captive Mines At Standstill

Hugh S. Johnson attacked Gov. Pinchot for alleged "squandering of public relief to promote his ambitions." Engell also attacked the United Mine Workers union, charging it "used the club" to get members. The letter stated:

"Some signed membership cards to save their homes and property."

President Orders Neutral Position At Geneva

By KINGSBURY SMITH
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—Determined to prevent the United States from becoming involved in any European political imbroglio, President Roosevelt today decided virtually to pull out from Geneva until the European nations decide their answer to Germany's withdrawal from the League of Nations and the Disarmament Conference.

Fearful lest the critical situation in Europe involve this country in political entanglements which might lead to another war, the President has ordered the American representatives at Geneva to keep out of the conversations which are to take place this week between the statesmen of the former Allied powers.

The purpose of these conversations is to determine what steps will be taken in the light of Germany's startling decision to defy the world by withdrawing from Geneva.

One of the primary purposes of the conversations will be to decide whether to convene the Disarmament Conference nine days hence or virtually abandon the movement for disarmament by indefinitely postponing the scheduled meeting of the conference.

President Roosevelt has decided the question of whether conditions are favorable to a continuation of the disarmament efforts is now

U. S. STARTS PURCHASING WHEAT FOR RELIEF OF NEEDY

FARM CREDIT HEAD TAKES ACTION

$15,000,000 Worth of Butter and Beef Also Bought

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17. —(AP.)—Gov. Henry Morgenthau, Jr., of the Farm Credit Administration, today began purchases of wheat for human relief.

The government also is buying butter and beef.

Orders for wheat were placed at six markets, Morgenthau said, adding that the purchases were in no way related to reports that the government might undertake some stabilization efforts in view of recent sharp drops in wheat prices.

DISTRIBUTION PLAN

Instead, the purchases were made for the relief administration, which will distribute the wheat and products manufactured from it to the needy, supplementing its program for acquiring surplus farm commodities in co-operation with the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

Today's purchases consisted of both cash wheat and contracts for delivery in December.

Purchases were made through the Farmers' National Grain Corporation at Chicago, Kansas City, Minneapolis, Omaha, Buffalo and Baltimore.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—(AP.) Purchases of $15,000,000 worth of butter and beef also was announced.

At the rate of 2,000,000 or more pounds a week, government money will dig into a butter surplus estimated at 70,000,000 pounds. Simultaneously, it will buy an undetermined quantity of beef in the canner and cutter grades.

Commodity Corporation To Make Cotton Loans

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—(AP.)—Organization of the Commodity Credit Corporation was completed today and announcement made by its officers that loans of 10 cents per pound to cotton producers on the unsold portion of their crop this year will become available this week.

The corporation, chartered in Delaware, was organized to carry out President Roosevelt's program for making loans to cotton growers.

Lynn P. Talley, assistant to the directors of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, was named president, Oscar Johnston, director of finance for the Farm Administration, vice president; and J. E. Wells, Jr., assistant cooperative bank commissioner of the Farm Credit Administration, secretary-treasurer.

RETAILERS ASK O. K. ON CODE

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17. — Approval of the NRA retail code embracing the 10 per cent plus cost "stop-loss" provision was asked of President Roosevelt today by the major retail associations of the nation.

Headed by William H. Hager, of the Pennsylvania Retailers' Association, and accompanied by Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson, representatives of all the major retail associations called at the White House and were with Mr. Roosevelt for more than an hour.

Emerging, Hager announced that the conference was very satisfactory and expressed confidence that the President would speed matters up. He said:

"The President realizes the necessity for speed, and I think we can confidently say that he will get speed now."

Crowds Threaten Attack Suspect

BALTIMORE, Oct. 17.—(AP.)—Rushed here by state police when crowds gathering at Princess Anne, Salisbury and Snow Hill threatened violence, George Armwood, 40-year-old Negro, was lodged in the Baltimore jail early today on suspicion of attacking an aged white woman near Princess Anne yesterday.

State police informed Gov. Albert C. Ritchie that Armwood had admitted molesting Mrs. Mary Denston, 82.

BANKER TELLS OF BIG PENSION

the power to issue securities. The corporation's name was changed to the Chase Corporation.

SECURITIES FIRM LINKED

When Wiggin began to tell of the formation of the Chase Securities Corporation, the explanation was completed by Eldon Bisbie, one of his attorneys.

Bisbie said the bank's stockholders organized the corporation in the belief it would "increase the value of the good will of the bank" by expanding its business.

Senator Couzens, of Michigan, asked:

"Did the creation of the Chase Securities Corporation enable you to make loans to persons to whom the bank could not lend money?"

Wiggin replied:

"I don't know how that situation could arise."

Couzens said:

"A bank cannot buy common stock in a corporation, but if you decided to acquire control of a corporation, you could lend the money to the securities corporation and it in turn could buy the common stock outright. Since the same stockholders owned the securities corporation as owned the bank, this would give the bank control of the company it sought.

"I do not charge you did this, but you set up a device that enabled you to secure control of a company."

Pecora drew from Wiggin a statement that stockholders of the bank owned the securities corporation in the same proportion they owned the bank stocks.

BANKERS 'TOO KIND'

American bankers could have saved their clients from a part of the market crash losses if they had adopted a "more cold-blooded policy," Wiggin testified. He said:

"If we had sold out and collected faster than we did, we could have saved money for both the bank and the customer. The bankers made a mistake in not being more cold-blooded, more cruel."

RECORDS SUBPENAED

Just before Wiggin took the stand, the committee issued subpenaes for the records of seven New York brokerage firms. The subpenas called for records of pools and trading accounts. They were issued because the New York Stock Exchange declined to furnish the information.

Pecora withheld the names of the subpenaed brokers, pending service.

ROCKEFELLER CONTROLLED

Wiggin told of the Chase Securities Corporation being organized in 1917. He said the corporation had issued $6,158,000,000 of securities to the end of 1932, and added:

"The defaults were 5.68 per cent."

Senator Couzens (Rep.), of Michigan, asked him how many stockholders had an interest in the bank. He said there were 89,000 stockohlders.

"Who is the largest stockholder?"

Wiggin said:

"I think I know."

He turned to an associate, whispered a moment and added:

"John D. Rockefeller, Jr."

Pecora pressed Wiggin for an explanation of his huge salary. Wiggin told of going to Europe for the bank to see "about the German loan." He went once at the "time of the Hoover moratorium in July, 1930," and several times since.

Wiggin said American banks held between $400,000,000 and $500,000,000 of the German loan at the time of the moratorium. The debt originally totaled about $800,000,000.

"How much does the Chase bank hold?"

"It held $25,000,000 originally, but when it merged with the Equitable Trust the Equitable had $64,000,000 of it. Now the Chase's share is down to about $40,000,000."

"Did you favor the moratorium?"

"Yes."

"What salary did you get when you retired?"

"I was getting $202,000 a year."

Pecora brought out that the bank's capital, with surplus and undivided profits, totaled $137,490,814 on December 31, 1928. In the four years and seven months following, these capital assets increased to a total of $503,196,086 on July 31, 1933.

ICKES POISES 'CLUB' ON OIL

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—(AP.)—Secretary Ickes said today he would take federal action to prevent oil overproduction in Texas, Oklahoma and Kansas, if the states themselves, by November 1, do not cut production to the amounts allotted.

An elaborate schedule of minimum oil prices today launched the government on its first NRA price-fixing effort.

Ickes ordered the minimum levels which become effective December 1. Some oil sources immediately forecast gasoline prices 1 to 2 cents higher.

The base level of 36 gravity Mid-Continent crude petroleum was set at $1.11 a barrel with other prices ranging according to quality. Differentials were set throughout the wholesale field.

Ickes said objectors will be given a hearing.

Germany at Geneva

policy regarding disarmaments was incorporated as a fundamental part of the peace settlement. This policy, adopted to prevent a future race in armaments, was based on the principle that armaments are a matter of general concern. . . . To carry out this conception, provision was made for the disarmament of the defeated powers, and at the same time, a decision was taken unprecedented in history whereby the victorious states voluntarily assume an obligation to reduce their own armaments."

OF COURSE the United States, as Mr. Davis admitted, "is not bound by the provisions or implications" of the Versailles treaty, which contained these disarmament provisions.

HAVING REFUSED TO RATIFY THIS TREATY, the United States has neither the right nor the responsibility of attempting to enforce any of the treaty's provisions, either against the victorious, or against the defeated powers in the great war.

And any attempt on the part of the United States to intervene in the dispute that has arisen between these conflicting groups of powers would be not only a violation of the traditional foreign policy of this country, but also a defiance of the oft-repeated mandate of the American people not to meddle in the political quarrels of Europe.

NOW IS THE time and the federal city is the place for the warning words of the Farewell Address to be "read, marked, learned and inwardly digested" by any administration that presumes to speak with the voice of the American people.

These are the words of Washington:

"EUROPE HAS A SET OF PRIMARY INTERESTS, WHICH TO US HAVE NONE, OR A VERY REMOTE RELATION, HENCE SHE MUST BE ENGAGED IN FREQUENT CONTROVERSIES, THE CAUSES OF WHICH ARE ESSENTIALLY FOREIGN TO OUR CONCERNS. HENCE, THEREFORE, IT MUST BE UNWISE IN US TO IMPLICATE OURSELVES, BY ARTIFICIAL TIES, IN THE ORDINARY VICISSITUDES OF HER POLITICS, OR THE ORDINARY COMBINATIONS AND COLLISIONS OF HER FRIENDSHIPS OR ENMITIES."

Officers' Conspiracy To Seize Garrison Disclosed

VIENNA, Oct. 17.—(AP.)—With incipient mutinies to the right and to the left of him—in the army and in the labor unions—Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss today faced a situation deemed likely to tax all his qualities of courage, generalship and persuasion.

In all garrisons and branches of the army, political police were running down ramifications of a Nazi conspiracy unearthed among officers and former officers to seize arms, uniforms and equipment at the Linz garrison for use in "further action."

GENERAL STRIKES

Meanwhile, with secret Socialist orders for preparations for a general strike circulating under cover, and with a Socialist deputy in jail for shouting at the close of the party congress, "down with the government!" many were wondering:

"Just what is the situation in the police and gendarmery?

There was no evidence of a police plot similar to the Linz conspiracy, but all Austria remembered only too vividly the resignation of Federal Chief of Police Franz Brandl six months ago, with the announcement:

"I am joining the Nazis."

The government put out only a brief communique concerning the Linz plot and the arrest in connection of Reserve Lieut. Adolf Knitschke and a woman said by authorities to be his intimate friend.

OTHERS SEIZED

Also taken in custody were almost a score of other Nazis, including First Lieut. Franz Fritsch, of the Austrian army, and a former artillery sergeant.

The enlisted men arrested were charged with high treason in an alleged plot to take the Linz Barracks by surprise and seize the arms.

Symptoms of acute dissatisfaction even inside the government gates also came to the surface with publication of a violent attack on Prince von Starhemberg's Fascist plans by former Chancellor Rudolf Ramek, prominent in the Dollfuss Christian-Social party. Ramek declared:

"Building a dictatorship isn't part of the Christian-Social party program."

The offical government gazette, Wienerzeitung, today front-paged an intimation that a declaration of martial law was expected soon.

North Side Radio Cars Called to Bank

A burglar alarm sounding in the First National Bank, Federal street and Park way, summoned North Side radio cruisers to the institution. Nothing was amiss and police are puzzled as to how the alarm was set off.

FRANCE'S CHIEF SCORES PLEA OF GERMANY

Daladier Challenges Reasons for Reich Arms Bolt

PARIS, Oct. 17.—(AP.)—Premier Edouard Daladier, calm but grim, today answered Chancellor Adolf Hitler, of Germany, by questioning the reich's reasons for withdrawing from the Disarmament Conference.

The Premier arose in a tense, crowded Chamber of Deputies and slowly demanded from the rostrum:

"Why, if Germany is ready to destroy all armaments, do they withdraw from the conference just when we drafted a plan?"

"France is resolved to give an example of calmness and coolness, the more so because she knows she is able to defend her territory and her liberty."

M. Daladier talked back to Hitler in his very opening phrase.

He referred to "the grave events of the past days, Germany's withdrawal from the League of Nations and Germany's withdrawal from the arms conference," and then announced that France again was ready to talk disarmament at Geneva October 26.

Replying to the German chancellor, the Premier said:

"We are not deaf to any proposals, but neither are we blind to any act.

"If one seeks an agreement, why begin with a rupture? Why not accept an honest disarmament plan?

"If Germany is ready to destroy her arms down to the last rifle and to the last machine gun, why not accept a plan which could assure an effective disarmament?"

POWERS UNITED

PARIS, Oct. 17.—(INS.)—Active conversations between representatives of France, Britain and Italy are under way in an effort to form a united European front against Germany as a result of her withdrawal from the disarmament conference and the League of Nations.

This was revealed to International News Service today following an important meeting of the ministerial council, at which political matters arising from adjournment of the disarmament conference were discussed.

BRITAIN BLAMES GERMANY

LONDON, Oct. 17.—(INS.)—British government opinion today appeared to be solidly behind the contention of Arthur Henderson, president of the disarmament conference, that Germany withdrew from the parley and the League of Nations for "invalid" reasons.

Charges of bad faith levelled against Great Britain by German Foreign Minister Baron Konstantin von Neurath in the matter of disarmament met with a sharp but diplomatically-worded retort from British Foreign Secretary Sir John Simon today. He said:

"I should indeed be sorry if there were any difference on a matter of fact with Baron von Neurath.

"My fellow-countrymen may rest assured that the suggested inaccuracy is not on my side."

CHAMBERLAIN SPEAKS

Chancellor of the Exchequer Neville Chamberlain in a speech at Nottingham declared:

"We deeply regret the action of the German government, which seems to us both precipitous and ill-judged because the proposals made by Sir John Simon were designed to give Germany equality of treatment within a reasonable period."

The American decision not to participate in this week's disarmament talks at Geneva attracted widespread attention in London.

The Daily Express, under a seven-column page one streamer headline, which read, "America's Shock to Europe. U. S. Backs Out of Crisis," expressed amazement at this latest development.

A. Duff Cooper, an official of the British War Office, called for a united front against Germany and charged that the reich was preparing for war. He declared:

"We must stand by our allies."

TRIAL CALLS GOERING

BERLIN, Oct. 17.—(AP.)—Four Nazi leaders, it was announced today, will be called as witnesses in the Reichstag fire trial upon the proposal of Prosecutor Karl Werner that they "answer the monstrous allegations put forth in the 'brown book'."

(The "brown book," published by a commission headed by Lord Marley, purports to list authenticated cases of alleged Nazi mistreatment.)

The Nazi leaders are Wilhelm Goering, President of the Reichstag and Premier of Prussia; Dr. Joseph Goebbels, Minister of Public Enlightenment and Propaganda; Edmund Heines and Count Wolf Hedrich von Helldorf.

Cornellis de Marees Van Swinderen, member of an old Dutch family and a nephew of the Dutch Minister to London, was arrested outside the courtroom today. Secret police acted on the protests of Germans in Java, who objected to the Dutch journalist's articles in Indische Courant.

Guard Renewed

BETTY DOWNES, 15

GIRL RECEIVES NEW THREATS

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 17.—(AP.)—The Philadelphia Inquirer says Betty Downes, 15-year-old daughter of a Pennsylvania Railroad official, is the object of a renewed campaign by the extortionist who threatened her life two months ago.

As a result, the girl's bodyguard has been recalled and armed men are assigned to protect her to and from school in the Chestnut Hill section of the city, the Inquirer says.

Despite a widespread search by local police and federal agents, the man remains at large who demanded $15,000 from the girl's father, James R. Downes, chief of freight transportation of the Pennsylvania Railroad, as the price of her safety.

The paper says he communicated by telephone with the Downes home on September 24 and Mrs. Downes made an appointment to meet him in the lobby of the Du Pont Hotel in Wilmington, Del. She kept the appointment, escorted by Department of Justice agents, but the man did not appear, the paper adds. Two days later he called again with a promise that "you will hear from me again."

PUNISH NAZIS FOR ATTACK

BERLIN, Oct. 17.—The two assailants of Roland Velz, an American who was struck in the face when he failed to salute the Nazi emblem, were sentenced to six months' imprisonment on charges of assault and battery in a so-called speed court here today.

On learning of the verdict, a high American Embassy official declared:

"Well, that's getting action."

Assurances no more Americans will be molested were given to United States Ambassador William E. Dodd by Chancellor Adolf Hitler today.

Dodd came away from his first interview with the Nazi Chancellor convinced molestation of Americans had come to an end. He also said he felt better regarding the international outlook as a result of the conference.

China Reports Russ Air Attack on Japs

PEIPING, Oct. 17.—(INS.)—Chinese newspapers today published extra editions charging six Russian airplanes dropped 13 bombs on the city of Hsinching, capital of Manchukuo, killing 200 Japanese citizens.

The Chinese populace was jubilant over the report, while Russian, Chinese and Japanese officials endeavored to trace the source of the story, which was asserted to be part of a plot to embroil Russia and Japan in war.

U. S. SIDESTEPS IMBROGLIO IN EUROPE

Roosevelt Instructs Davis to Stand On Sidelines

a matter for Europe, not the United States, to decide.

The President feels this country has made plain its willingness to co-operate with the rest of the world in achieving drastic reduction of armaments and that it now is up to Europe to decide whether it wants to disarm. He feels the conversations between the statesmen of the former allied powers concerning Germany's action will be of a purely European political nature.

DAVIS ADVISED

Ambassador Norman H. Davis, America's chief disarmament representative at Geneva, has been so advised.

In order to prevent the spread of reports in Europe that the United States is a party to any united front against Germany as a result of the reich's withdrawal from Geneva, it was made plain this government is not in any way politically aligned with any European powers.

As to the general policy of this country, the principles eunnciated by President Roosevelt in his world peace message last May remain the basis of that policy.

In his message, the President supported the British disarmament plan, opposed any increase in existing armaments over and above the limitations of treaty obligations and proposed a universal pact of non-aggression under which all nations would agree to refrain from sending any armed forces across their frontiers.

Nations Look to Mussolini To Break Deadlock

GENEVA, Oct. 17.—(INS.)—The nations of the world today looked to Premier Mussolini to break the deadlock in the disarmament negotiations.

With the conference adjourned temporarily following Germany's withdrawal, Germany in angry mood and the United States refraining from political discussions, efforts at world disarmament appeared virtually at a standstill until after the coming reich elections.

Diplomats here believed Mussolini alone may decide upon the next disarmament move, since he is now reported to be of the opinion the United States is now gradually quitting the Disarmament Conference.

According to reliable advices here, the Italian dictator, known to harbor desires to dominate the European political scene through operation of his four-power pact, has read into the statement issued by Norman H. Davis, American ambassador-at-large, indication that America may soon sever all connection with Geneva.

DUCE FOR SPEED

Although this view is not echoed in any quarter here, it is believed to be the basis of Mussolini's evident opinion that there is no time to lose to get the four-power pact signatories into action if a new armament race and possible European war is to be prevented.

International News Service learned that the principal powers represented here consulted informally together and decided that the situation created by Germany's action is so dangerous that it is prudent simply to watch and wait.

Of particular interest to world diplomats is what the attitude of the reich will be after the German elections.

Contrary to the Italian view, the French accept Davis' statement at face value and believe it merely indicates that the United States will refuse to participate in European political discussions.

They also see in it, however, an indication that France must now decide whether to make a big arms reduction or risk another war.

New Trial in Slide Killing Six Granted

A new trial has been ordered in a damage suit against the Dravo Contracting Company growing out of a slide in the Marmet Dam project in 1932, in which six men were killed, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Charleston, W. Va.

A verdict for the company had been returned in the first trial in Kanawha County Circuit Court on suit of Orpha Collins, administrator of the estate of James Collins, one of the victims of the slide.

Members of Exchange Here Rap Pecora

Members of the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today expressed bitter resentment against the questionnaires sent to the exchange by Ferdinand Pecora, counsel for the Senate Banking Committee investigating stock market practices.

The local exchange has forwarded the questionnaires to its members, but has reached no decision on its policy in answering them. A. L. Brinham, secretary of the exchange, said that a decision might be reached within a few days.

Most of the local brokers said that they did not wish to get in a jam with the Senate committee and that they would attempt to supply the information. They pointed out, however, that insufficient time had been given and that the task of making the answers would be costly. One broker declared:

"Pecora is ignorant of the workings of brokerage offices. I don't think he knows what it's all about."

The exchange members pointed out that it will be necessary to analyze each individual account over a period of five years. The answers are to be submitted by October 25.

Regular clerical staffs will not be able to do the work. The cost of hiring extra clerks will run into large figures. One of the small houses estimates the cost at $1,500. This will run up to as much as $30,000 for some of the larger houses.

The Pittsburgh Stock Exchange has pursued a different course than the New York Stock Exchange. At New York the questionnaires were not forwarded to members. The local exchange has submitted them to the brokers, but has taken no official action as to its policy.

N. Y. Hustles Einstein Away From Nazis

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—(AP.)—Dr. Albert Einstein, scientist officially without honor in his own country, Germany, came back to the United States today and was hustled ashore in a special tug. There had been rumors there might be a Nazi demonstration against him.

Accompanied by Mrs. Einstein and Dr. Walther Mayer, of Vienna, his assistant, the distinguished mathematician arrived on the Westernland.

Out in mid-river a tug nosed alongside. Through lines of interviewers—and friends who had come to greet him—Dr. Einstein and members of his party were whisked aboard the tug.

They were discharged at the municipal pier and put into an automobile and driven to Princeton, N. J. There the noted savant will be professor of mathematics and theoretical physics at the Institute for Advanced Study.

The Einsteins appeared as flustered as any over their expeditious withdrawal from public scrutiny here. They waved hurried farewells to fellow passengers. Close to his body, the scientist held his beloved violin. Dr. Einstein was, for a time, a man without a country and a scientist without a laboratory. In protest against Nazi policies in Germany he declared he would never set foot there again. He has not. It was rumored that a secret Nazi organization had put a price of $6,800 on his head "to silence him."

SECOND COUNTY EMPLOYE KILLS SELF WITHIN 3 DAYS

PISTOL FOUND AT SIDE OF DEAD MAN

Prothonotary's Office Worker Had Been In Ill Health

A second county employe was found dead today, a bullet wound in the head. In his hand was a .32 caliber revolver. He had shot himself in bed, it seems.

He was Paul W. Ryan, 53, a bachelor, who roomed in the home of his co-worker, Thomas H. Moore, at 17 Oakland square. Moore said that when he tried to waken Ryan this morning he, lacking his glasses, didn't realize Ryan was dead. The revolver was not detected until the police arrived.

The Coroner's office listed the death as suicide. Moore said Ryan had not been feeling well, but added that the suicide came as a surprise.

Ryan was employed in the tax division of the Prothonotary's office for the last five years.

On Sunday a county transcribing clerk, William S. Schwab, was found dead in the cellar of his home in Baytree street. He had hanged himself, the Coroner's office reported.

M'CLURE TRIAL SCENE TENSE

International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 17.—Additional details of how the liquor "protection" ring which the government charges was headed by State Senator John J. McClure, of Delaware County, "took care" of the families of its members who were imprisoned for their activities were given today by a woman witness as she continued her testimony against the legislator and 76 others on trial in a liquor conspiracy.

The trial resumed in an atmosphere of tenseness as the result of the second heated clash between the array of defense counsel and Chet A. Keyes, special United States attorney general.

Keyes drew the fire of defense counsel by placing a stenographer near the jury box to note remarks he charged were made by William T. Connor, of counsel for the defense, in a tone inaudible to the judge but loud enough to be heard by the jury.

The first witness today, Mrs. Margaret Conley, wife of Thomas M. Conley, a former Delaware County constable, testified she had considered suicide because of the privation suffered by her five children when her husband was jailed for extortion as an outgrowth of his activities in the "protection" ring.

CHANEY WIDOW NOT TO WED

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 17.—(AP.)—The serious illness of Mrs. Hazel Chaney, widow of Lon Chaney, has resulted in an indefinite postponement of her marriage to the late actor's most trusted companion, John Jeshke.

Mrs. Chaney is confined to a hospital as the result of an illness from which she had been suffering for months. Her condition only recently became critical.

Claude Parker, Mrs. Chaney's attorney, visited her and made the following statement:

"I was permitted to see Mrs. Chaney for a short time. She agreed with me that, at least until she recovers from her illness, if she recovers, it will be best to forego the marriage."

Jeshke, who, according to Parker, has sought seclusion in Hollywood and is "grief-stricken" at the comment aroused by his effort to obtain a marriage license for Mrs. Chaney and himself last Saturday, agreed to the postponement of the marriage.

MARINO MOVED, DESPITE DENIAL

Public Safety Director Harmar D. Denny, Jr., may be surprised to learn today that somebody is fooling around with his police force.

The director denied just yesterday that Capt. Nuncie Marino, who knows all the angles of the East End police district, would be sent back there from Oakland.

But go back Marino did last night. And he kept an alert eye on one and all, including the political admirers of former Magistrate Charles Papale, who has split with Mayor Herron.

Denny explained today that Marino's transfer had nothing to do with politics and was for the good of the service. He did not say which service. He added that the notice of transfer had been sent down late yesterday from the Mayor's office.

Police Supt. Franklin T. McQuade explained further. One reason, he said, was that Marino was well qualified to investigate recent bombings in the East End. Last Friday there was a bombing in Oakland.

Marino replaced Capt. John McFarland, who returned to the Oakland district.

House Caretaker Held Up, Loses $110

Held up by two armed men near his home last night, Philip Falgione, 37, of 223 South Mathilda street, was robbed of $110, according to a police report. The pair confronted him as he stepped out of an apartment house of which he is a caretaker, police said.

BEAUTY SOUGHT IN 'BAG SLAYING'

International News Service.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Oct. 17.—Fresh mystery today was added to the "duffle bag" murder of Mrs. Laura Ellen Straw, 75, wealthy and eccentric widow, formerly of Ohio.

Detectives learned that Thomas M. Jones, 50, an ex-convict from Ohio Penitentiary, sought for questioning in connection with the killing, frequently spent "vacations" in an apartment with a tall and beautiful red-headed woman.

Fingerprints identified Jones, who had roomed in Mrs. Straw's cottage for a year, as having served terms in Ohio Prison under the name of Tully McQuate, of Ashland, O.

Prison records showed that he was married and search was under way for Vera Edith McQuate, the red-haired woman who may have been his wife. Police want to question her as to Jones' whereabouts.

Jerry Rodgers, an automobile dealer, told police that Jones Saturday night borrowed a car "to show his wife." Officers believed it was the car used to transport Mrs. Straw's dismembered body from her cottage to the waterfront.

Distillery Girls To Go to Work In 'Hoodlebugs'

Repeal of prohibition may see 500 to 600 girls trundled in "hoodlebugs," self-contained, gasoline-driven railway cars, between Tarentum and the Schenley distillery above Freeport.

Request for such service has been made by the distillery, Pennsylvania Railroad officials revealed today. Three services a day have been asked, to accommodate three shifts of workers to be drawn from the Tarentum district, in event of repeal.

The railroad will reserve decision until assured of the amount of traffic.

STUDENT JIBES DRIVE FAT GIRL TO SUICIDE

17-Year-Old Puts on Best Dress, Dies By Bullet

By DOROTHY ROE
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—Mary Jane Dane looked straight ahead and prtended not to hear as a group of laughing schoolmates passed her and called:

"Hya, Fatty? Howsa 'Baby Blimp' today?"

Mary Jane would have given anything in the world to be slender and light-footed, like the other girls in her class—to be able to pass a group of classmates without cringing, waited for the unfailing jibes.

Mary Jane weighed 200 pounds. And so, at 17, life was not worth living.

Miserably she went home, determined not to face again the cruel jests of her schoolmates at Junior High School.

The beginning of the school year was the worst. After a while the boys and girls got used to her, and sometimes forgot to taunt her. But with the start of each new term, she had to face the avid jibes of the new students, who didn't stop to think that her abnormal weight was not a joke to Mary Jane, but the deepest tragedy.

KISSES MOTHER GOODBY

The next morning Mary Jane left home at the usual time, but she didn't go to school. Each morning she took her books and kissed her mother goodby, and then went to sit in the park or walk about the streets until time to go home.

But the peace was too good to last. After a week a card reporting her truancy was delivered at her home. Mary Jane got it before her mother saw it. She knew now that she would have to go back to school.

Hurriedly Mary Jane put on her best white dress. She had a few dollars left from her allowance, and with it she bought an old fashioned pistol.

Then she engaged a room in a rooming house in the theatrical district, and paid two days' rent.

She registered as Dian Whitman, for Mary Jane was romantic, though no one had ever guessed it.

SEATED ON FLOOR—DEAD!

They found her there yesterday, seated on the floor, dressed in the best white dress, a pencil in her right hand and a bullet through her brain.

A romantic novel was beside her, and on the flyleaf she had written:

"Dear Mother: I have caused you enough trouble. Now, you will be free of me. I wish you the best of luck. I'm sorry. You will find my coat in the closet. You will find my bag with eight pennies, a compact, my keys and my glasses. No doubt they will be sent to you.

"You were the right kind of a mother, but you got the wrong daughter. I love you, mother. Just forget me. Mary Jane."

RAY HARLOW — FRANCES BARTHOLD

STATION W8HFY AND ITS OPERATORS: THEY CAN'T EXPLAIN THEIR POLICE BROADCAST

AMATEURS HALT POLICE RADIO

Ray Harlow, of 222 Martsolf street, West View, one of two amateur radio operators whose broadcasting is said to have interfered with Pittsburgh police radio calls Sunday night, today declared he couldn't explain the incident.

Harlow said he and Francis Barthold, of 235 Ames street, North Side, were experimenting on their respective licensed stations, W8EYS and W8HFY, operating on frequencies of 1,825 and 1,805 kilocycles. He declared they were not operating on the police frequency, 1,712 kc., but said weather conditions might have been responsible for the interference.

A warning was issued yesterday by Lieut. Daniel D. McGreevy following a four-hour tieup during which radio crews were given instructions by telephone while a galaxy of music and talk poured from the loud speakers of police radio cars.

Boy, 6, Playing, Kills Baby Brother

CARLISLE, Pa., Oct. 17.—(INS.)—Six-year-old Ray Hoover, of Upper Mifflin Township, killed his 11-month-old brother, Delmar, as he slept in his crib and slightly wounded a second brother when a shotgun with which he was playing yesterday was accidentally discharged.

Part of the charge passed between the wooden bars of the crib and struck Delmar as he slept, and showered a sister, Reba, 5, with bits of wood. Lloyd Hoover, 3, was struck in the arm as he sat on a couch.

HEIR'S KIDNAP STORY DOUBTED

CHICAGO, Oct. 17.—(AP.)—William Walton Hall, 31, recounted to both federal and city investigators today his story of being held by kidnapers for four days, but police officials indicated they would take only perfunctory action in the case.

Hall said three men who kidnaped him first demanded $15,000 ransom, scaled the amount down to $9,000, and finally released him without payment after he had lectured them on the seriousness of their offense.

Said Capt. Daniel Gilbert, of the State's Attorney's office:

"I'm convinced the whole matter was a hoax."

Hall is part heir to a $200,000 estate in Freeport, Ill., owns an interest in a Chicago cafe, and attends law college.

FARMERS FACE SENTENCE

SAN ANGELO, Tex., Oct. 17.—(AP.)—Cass Coleman and Will Casey, cotton farmers, today awaited sentencing by Federal Judge William H. Atwell for harboring George (Machine Gun) Kelly and his wife, Kathryn, convicted kidnapers of Charles F. Urschel.

Government agents dug up $73,250 of the Urschel $200,000 ransom in a cotton field on Coleman's farm.

CHICAGO, Oct. 17.—(INS.)—Charged with giving shelter here to George (Machine Gun) Kelly while the desperado was sought as the kidnaper of Charles F. Urschel, Abe Caplan, tavern owner, was under arrest today.

Caplan was held in $15,000 bond by a United States commissioner.

COURT UPHOLDS ELKINS WILL

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—(AP.)—The contested will of Mrs. Hallie Davis Elkins, daughter, wife and mother of United States Senators from West Virginia, was declared valid by the District of Columbia Supreme Court today.

The decision was announced after an out-of-court settlement between a son and grandson.

The will left the bulk of a $1,500,000 estate to a son, former Senator Davis Elkins. The grandson, Stephen B. Elkins III, contested the will on the grounds of undue influence.

The settlement gave the grandson an additional block of stock worth $56,000 at par in addition to $50,000 in bonds of the Morgantown and Kingwood Railroad, bequeathed in the will.

WIFE OF KELLY BOASTS HE'LL FREE HER

'We're Good Women,' Say Mother, Daughter Starting Life Terms

Mrs. Kelly told officers:

"George will see me at Christmas. He told be he would break out Christmas and get me out. He always does what he says he will."

The next minute, however, the auburn-haired wife of the desperado was weeping:

"Mother is so sweet, so innocent. I'm worried only about her."

'GOOD WOMEN' PART

The two women, both facing life sentences for their part in the kidnaping of Charles F. Urschel, Oklahoma City oil man, arrived from Oklahoma and walked with their guards to another station where they said goodbye.

Mrs. Kelly boarded a passenger train bound for Cincinnati, and her mother was removed to the Shelby County Penal Farm, where she will serve her sentence.

En route to Memphis, Mrs. Kelly was overheard telling Mrs. Shannon:

"Mother, I can really be a good woman when I want to. They think I am a bad woman."

Her mother answered:

"Kathryn, I've always been a good woman. I wouldn't know how to be otherwise."

'MODEL' PRISONER

Kathryn's arrival at Memphis today marked the second time her alleged crime trail led her here. She and her outlaw husband were captured in a bungalow hideout here, September 26.

Despite her previous boast, Mrs. Kelly promised her mother she would be a "model" prisoner. She told officers:

"Mother will not live long in prison."

She expressed regret she and her mother could not serve at the same prison.

AMONG HER SOUVENIRS

Officers said both women slept well on the train. The officers said they were proud of their feat in slipping out of Oklahoma City. At Little Rock, they said the sleeping car was locked at both ends to avoid a crowd storming the train.

At the station here, Kathryn told officers:

"I still love Kelly, very, very much."

She waved a handerchief, which she said was all she had "to remeber him by."

ALWAYS WENT TO CHURCH

As for Mrs. Shannon, she entered the Shelby County Penal Farm protesting her innocence and asserting that she has been a church member all her life. She said:

"They couldn't find a thing in my past life that wasn't fair and square."

It was on the Shannon farm that the millionaire oil man was held a prisoner.

She said:

"When they brought Mr. Urschel to my home they told me he was drunk. They kept him there for a few hours. I made them take him away because I didn't allow drunk men in my home."

'THEY'VE CRUCIFIED ME!'

Told that she would be required to work in the sewing room of the penal farm, Mrs. Shannon protested:

"I can't run a machine."

Suddenly she declared:

"They've crucified me. They are pinning me to the cross for something I don't know anything about."

Laundry Work Awaits Mrs. Kelly in Ohio Pen

CINCINNATI, O., Oct. 17.—(INS.)—"She'll be just another federal prisoner."

That was the laconic comment of officials here today to reports that Kathryn Kelly, wife of "Machine Gun" George Kelly, was being brought to Cincinnati to begin serving life imprisonment for her part in the kidnaping of George F. Urschel, millionaire oil man.

City officials of Cincinnati declared they had no word that Mrs. Kelly was being brought here. They stated, however, that they were prepared to receive the prisoner. She will be placed in the workhouse, along with eight other inmates already imprisoned there, and put to work in the laundry and in making clothing for other prisoners.

Surgeon Races Death In Vain; Student Dies

CLAREMONT, N. H., Oct. 17.—(AP.)—Charles H. Vincent, 19, of Geneseo, N. Y., a Dartmouth College sophomore, died at Claremont General Hospital today 15 minutes after a Rochester (N. Y.) specialist reached his bedside.

Vincent's death closed a dramatic episode in which the Rochester surgeon, Dr. Walter Wilson, made an unsuccessful attempt to land here in an airplane last night and, on being forced by fog to return to Albany, N. Y., raced over the highways in an automobile during the early morning hours only to arrive too late to be of help.

The student was injured in an automobile accident in which R. Y. Pickering, of Royal Oak., Mich., was killed and P. B. Lynch, of Yonkers, N. Y., was severely injured. Lynch was still in a coma today, but was reported improved.

Last night more than 200 automobiles driven by Dartmouth students and others recruited from the highways had turned their headlight on the air field here to aid the expected flier. Bonfires had been set along the borders of the field. But all efforts to land failed.

At Last, Bloodhound Tackles Simon Legree

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 17.—(AP.)—Swift and violent retribution, the kind countless audiences have longed for, fell upon the historic villains of Uncle Tom's Cabin here last night.

During the famous chase across the ice after Eliza, the fugitive slave girl, one of the bloodhounds sprang at Simon Legree. While Legree went sprawling across the stage, the hound took a determined grip on the seat of Lawyer Marks' trousers.

The surprising change in plot during a rehearsal at the President Theater so upset Little Eva that she was unable to continue. Montgomery Mohn, playing the part of Lawyer Marks, was treated where his trousers had been. Edwin Max, the Simon Legree, had his cuts and bruises bandaged.

PINCHOT SEEKS ACCORD WITH ASSEMBLY

HARRISBURG, Oct. 17.—(AP.)—Hopes for a short special session of the Legislature, abandoned by many legislators, were restored today after Gov. Pinchot's announcement that he is "in heartiest accord" with efforts to treat the session's problems "without regard to politics."

He asserted he will meet Gen. Edward Martin, Republican state chairman, "more than half way" in any move to agree in advance upon a legislative program and attack the task from a non-political angle.

Gen. Martin, speaking at Lewistown Saturday, said social legislation, unemployment relief, public construction, education, and liquor control, are matters to be "considered without regard to politics and in which there should be no politics."

Construing Martin's statement as one which applies to the session set for next month, the Governor said:

"I assure him that nothing will be included in the call for the extra session which cannot and should not be dealt with without reference to political consderations. I welcome Gen. Martin's determination to deal with these problems without regard to politics. I will meet him more than half way.

"Moreover, I am exceedingly anxious to discuss with Gen. Martin and other leaders the grave problems ahead. If we get together on a non-political basis I see no reason why we cannot have a short, inexpensive, yet very fruitful session."

Conferences and agreements on the subjects covered by the Martin-Pinchot peace proposals would reduce by several months the period over which legislators have predicted the session would extend. They would make possible disposition, within six or eight weeks, of controversial legislation which observers had estimated would require three or four turbulent months.

One major compromise plan, now being discussed widely, would utilize, for additional appropriations to school districts, from $6,000,000 to $11,000,000 of revenue raised by a state tax on liquor. This plan involves control of liquor sales through a state commission.

Pinchot Gives Voter 'Dope' on Assembly

HARRISBURG, Oct. 17.—(AP.)—Pinchot is doing what he can toward making the deeds of Pennsylvania's legislators live after them.

His office started yesterday to send to newspapers and individuals in every county, records of how each of the solons voted on controversial bills of the 1933 session, including old age pensions, minimum wage bills, the Sowers-Conner beer control bill and the Turner bill to revise the government machinery.

Penn Day Celebration Urged by Pinchot

HARRISBURG, Oct. 17.—(AP.)—Asserting Pennsylvania needs "a popular return to the simple virtues and rigid integrity" of William Penn, Gov. Pinchot has issued a proclamation designating October 24 as "Penn Day."

He urged public schools and other education institutions to observe the 288th anniversary of Penn's birth by giving attention to "the principles of social responsibilities and public rights advocated by him in planning and founding the commonwealth of which we are so justly proud."

McKeesport Plans Crossing Subway

Mayor George H. Lysle, City Engineer Luke Savage and members of Council, all of McKeesport, will meet with the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad engineering staff here today to discuss plans for a subway to eliminate the Sinclair street crossing in McKeesport. The plan, which also includes widening of Jerome avenue, if carried out will cost about $150,000. Aid for the project will be sought from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

HARRISBURG, Oct. 17.—Democratic leaders prepared today to air their views next Saturday on methods of controlling liquor in Pennsylvania.

Convinced that Gov. Gifford Pinchot will include liquor control legislation in the proclamation summoning the General Assembly into extraordinary session next month, Warren Van Dyke, Democratic state chairman, has requested members of the House Steering Committee and three Democratic senators to meet here.

Joseph F. Guffey, Roosevelt state leader, already has informed Gov. Pinchot the Democrats are opposed to a revival of the Brooks high license law which governed the liquor traffic before prohibition.

FIRE DEATH QUIZ HITS POLITICS

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 17.—(AP.)—Gross negligence was the verdict of a coroner's jury of experts in concluding an inquest into the burning to death of 28 road workers October 3 in the brush fire at Griffith Park, a city recreation area. The men were used as emergency fire fighters.

The verdict was that the "fire was caused by carless tossing aside or dropping of a cigeret or match by a person or persons unknow to the jury." The verdict set forth:

"We find that negligence, unpreparedness and utter confusion was due to the division of authority and responsibility between numerous political commissions and bureaus."

Nudists Bother Farmers, So Court Acts

KENTLAND, Ind., Oct. 17.—(INS.)—When members of the Chicago nudist colony near here go shopping for groceries in the future they must wear some clothes, according to a ruling today by Judge George Sammons.

To save neighboring farmers from further embarrassment Judge Sammons issued an injunction against the nudists, ordering them to don some sort of raiment for their shopping strolls.

Nudist women, the farmers charged, had strolled into their farm yards to buy butter and eggs without even a pair of sandals on. Prosecutor Agnes Molter and Edward Barce, assistant attorney general, obtained the injunction.

WALDO FRANK TALKS ON CUBA

Two differing viewpoints on America's future Cuban policy were given before the Foreign Policy Association meeting in Hotel Schenley last night.

In one, Waldo Frank, noted author, urged that the Cubans be given real liberty, adding:

"America has in South America, exclusive of Cuba, investments totaling between five and six billion dollars, much exceeding our Cuban investments of only $1,500,000,000. She has, moreover, a potential South American market worth vastly more, for which Great Britain is a vigorous competitor."

John Dewar, of Pittsburgh, former manager of an American-owned sugar plantation in Cuba, offered the other viewpoint. He pointed out that sanitation and living conditions in Cuba has improved under American business.

'SPEED DEMON' VISITS HERE

Gar Wood, holder of the world speedboat record, predicted here today that "perhaps next summer" Mussolini will send a boat to America to compete for the international trophy.

The 52-year-old "speed merchant," who calls himself "just a kid," said:

"We have to look out for Italy—perhaps next summer Mussolini will be sending a boat over. The more in the race the better. It will be lots of fun."

As for Miss America X, which won the Harmsworth Trophy a short time ago from Miss Briton III, Wood says "it stays in the water—that's something—and it will be hard to beat." He continued:

"I'm going to read between the lines and find out what the other fellow is doing before I build a new Miss America."

Wood will speak tonight before the Engineers' Society of Western Pennsylvania in the William Penn Hotel. His subject will be "Speed in Industry."

The will of Mrs. Martha T. McGinley, of Elizabeth, bequeaths $500 to Catherine B. Heck and the remainder of her $15,200 estate to her daughter, Mrs. Louise McGinley Muir. Mrs. Mary Kertis, of Mifflin Township, provided in her will for the distribution of her $8,000 estate among seven children.

AL SMITH HOPE OF TAMMANY

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—(AP.)—Tammany Hall, fighting the most potent threat to its power in years, will open its formal mayoralty campaign tonight with its strategists groping for an answer to the all-important question:

"Will Al Smith come to the rescue of the organization?"

Tammany had no word as to whether former Gov. Smith would appear tonight at the opening rally for Mayor John P. O'Brien at "the hall."

Some of Smith's intimates were of the opinion that he would not appear.

The campaigns of Tammany's two foes, Fusion and the Recovery Party, continued to get up steam today. Parading to Queens amid streams of red fire last night Fiorello H. LaGuardia, Fusion nominee, accused the city government of milking small home owners to hand tax cuts to big property owners.

Joseph V. McKee, Recovery Party candidate, again denied La Guardia's charge of anti-semitism.

Mary Duncan, Bride Of Sanford, Sued

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—(INS.)—Mary Duncan, motion picture actress, who recently was married to Stephen (Laddie) Sanford, wealthy sportsman, was sued in Supreme Court yesterday by Morris Weinstein, of Beverly Hills, Cal., for $766.31 as the balance due on a note for $1,266.31 the plaintiff claims the actress gave him on March 30, 1931, in Beverly Hills.

Weinstein filed affidavits of two process servers who declared they were unable to serve the actress personally at her town house, or her King's Point (L. I.) home.

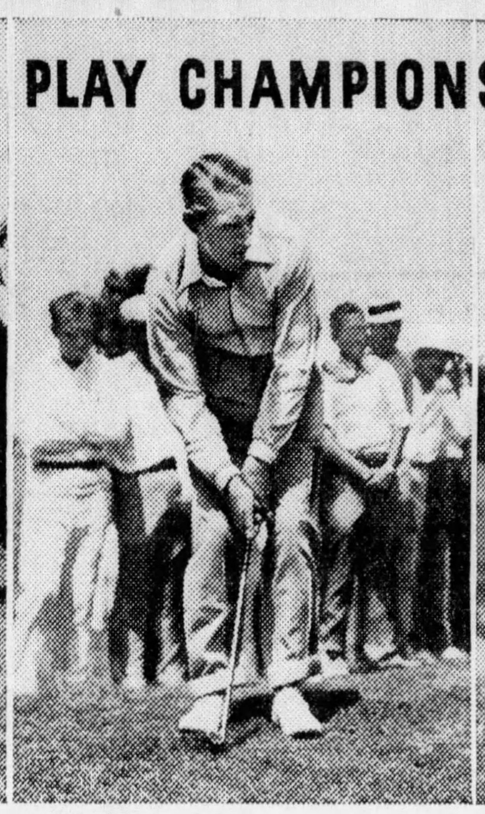
IT TAKES HEALTHY NERVES—TO PLAY CHAMPIONSHIP GOLF!

DENSMORE SHUTE—Britons gasped and gaped when he won the 1933 British Open over St. Andrews' deceptive fairways and angry bunkers. Golf prophets say Shute will line up with Golf Immortals. Answering a question, Shute recently said: "I have tried all the brands, and long ago found that Camels are milder, and what is even more important to any golfer, they do not jangle the nerves."



TOMMY ARMOUR—Often called "Wizard of the Irons," Armour has won a flock of championships, including the U. S. Open in 1927, the P. G. A. in 1930, the British Open in 1931. Tommy knows his golf and his cigarettes. "What do I think of Camels? They are my brand and have been for years. I smoke a lot but I must be sure that my nerves are healthy and my head is clear—that's why I prefer Camels."

GENE SARAZEN—This great golfer began his winning ways in 1922 when he became U. S. Open Champion. He has been a consistent tournament winner ever since. This year he won his third P. G. A. Championship. On the subject of cigarettes Sarazen says: "I agree with Shute and Armour—I smoke Camels, too. They always taste good—and they never interfere with my nerve control."

Steady Smokers turn to Camels

Men and women whose work and play demand healthy nerves and level heads prefer Camels. Active people agree that they can smoke these fine-flavored, milder cigarettes without fear of jangling their nerves.

Another thing about active people—they are pretty generally steady smokers . . . And, as anyone who smokes Camels will tell you, you can smoke as many of these cigarettes as you want—and never have a "cigaretty" aftertaste. The last cigarette at night tastes as good as the first in the morning, if you smoke Camels.

Try a package of Camels today . . . Enjoy the superior flavor of their costlier tobaccos. If you are a steady smoker you will appreciate the fact that Camels never get on your nerves, never tire your taste.

HE: Nice drive! Have a Camel. They're milder, you know.

SHE: Thanks, I will! I've smoked them for years. I know they taste better. And it is the one cigarette that never gets on my nerves.

IT IS MORE FUN TO KNOW

Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE tobaccos than any other popular brand. You will find Camels rich in flavor and delightfully mild.

RAIL PACT HERE WOULD HASTEN TERMINAL

An agreement among railroads for a union station in Pittsburgh would hasten construction of a passenger terminal on the Pennsylvania Railroad site in Penn avenue beyond Eleventh street, in the opinion of E. W. Smith, newly appointed vice president in charge of the P. R. R. Central Region.

Such an agreement would probably come through the Federal Co-ordinator's office at Washington, he believes. So far as he knows, no negotiations for a union station has been carried on in Pittsburgh, but the co-ordinators office is reported interested in the details of the Prince plan which, among other things, calls for a central passenger terminal for this city.

In any case, Smith said, the station will be built here as soon as the railroad's net revenues begins to pick up. He said:

"Millions have already been spent here for real estate and plans, and if the chance comes to build the terminal, we would not let it slip."

Smith came back to Pittsburgh as a vice president yesterday. He had served as executive head of the region from July, 1928, to December, 1930, when he became a co-receiver of the Seaboard Air Line Railway.

Getting his chief experience in the operating and motive power departments of the P. R. R., Smith is interested in new types of equipment such as streamlined trains and light gasoline electric coaches.

He believes the stream-lined train may be tried out in this region for fast service. The gasoline-electric units have already proved successful here, he said.

The railroads, he declared, are beginning to take business from trucks. Six years ago they were losing it, but today, he said, the roads have adjusted some rates and are using trucks themselves as a feeder service.

Smith started with the P. R. R. in 1905 in the shops at Wilmington, Del. He worked for a time at Altoona, Pa., and in 1917 was master mechanic on the Philadelphia division.

The next year he became superintendent of motive power at Williamsport, Pa., and, after holding positions in Philadelphia and St. Louis came to Pittsburgh first in 1924 as general superintendent of the Western Pennsylvania division.

He was made general manager of the Eastern Region at Philadelphia two years later and came back to Pittsburgh in 1928 as vice president.

Radio Police Told To Get New $75 Uniforms

City police radio and motor patrol crews have been ordered to buy new uniforms to comply with police regulations.

The new apparel will include regulation trousers and coats, heavier than those now worn, a short blue overcoat similar to those worn in the Navy, and new Sam Brown belts and holsters. A uniform will cost about $75, police said.

The order followed Assistant Supt. B. R. Marshall's inspection of winter uniforms. Policemen on beats will be required to buy only caps and overcoats.

Religious Census For Seminary's Use

FIFE OPPOSES CANDIDATE

County Solicitor J. P. Fife, has filed a motion to quash the alternative writ of mandamus filed by James A. Fulton, Seventh ward, of McKeesport, to compel the county commissioners to place his name on the "Non-Partisan" party ticket as a candidate for mayor.

The Election Board refused to list him as a candidate on the ground that under the law the words are not available for preemption as a party name. Solicitor Fife in opposing Fulton also maintains he did not establish that he was without other adequate remedy.

"HAD CONSTIPATION SINCE BIRTH OF MY FIRST CHILD"

Then Mrs. King Discovered ALL-BRAN

We quote from her voluntary letter:

"I have suffered from terrible constipation since the birth of my first child—9 years ago! I have tried everything and nothing had any lasting results. Very reluctantly I tried your 'ALL-BRAN' with no faith in it at all. Much to my surprise, I have not had to take any medicine since starting to use ALL-BRAN, 4 months ago."—Mrs. Doris Eyre King, 16 Abbey Road, Oxford, England.

Laboratory tests show ALL-BRAN contains two things which overcome constipation: "Bulk" to exercise the intestines; vitamin B to help tone the intestinal tract.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that of leafy vegetables. Inside the body, it forms a soft mass, which gently clears the intestines of wastes.

Certainly this is more natural than taking patent medicines—often harmful. Two tablespoonfuls daily are usually sufficient. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

ALL-BRAN also supplies iron for the blood. At all grocers. In the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

BOMBS HURLED, SHOTS FLY IN COKE REGION

dent of the United Mine Workers, replied:

"It is just another effort by the Frick company to start another company union. The outfit's headquarters are on mine company property and the mine superintendents issue the orders."

MINE BROTHERHOOD

The brotherhood, which claims a membership of 4,000, has no visible organization, it is reported, and Engell, who lives on company property, transacts its business from his home. United Mine Workers claim it has less than 400 members.

The first of the scare bombs thrown, it was reported, exploded around 7 o'clock last night. John Ramancheck told state police he was standing in the yard of his home at Grindstone, alongside the home of Joseph Daniels, a picket captain, when a man he said was a nonunion miner threw the bomb. It exploded, shaking the two houses. The windows of the houses were blown out. Mrs. Barbara Daniels, mother of the picket captain, and his sister, Rose, fainted. Ramancheck was cut on the head. State police questioned a man, but no arrests were made. Colonial Mine No. 4 is nearby.

GUN SHOTS FIRED

At Rowes Run, several hours later, gun shots were fired, it was reported. Joseph Daniero, a Grindstone miner, said that a scare bomb was thrown at the picket line at Colonial No. 3, near the run, shortly before midnight, exploding in the open. Another bomb, which failed to explode, was thrown a short time later. Pickets saw the trail of sparks from the fuse, Daniero told state police, but it died before the flame reached the bomb. Pickets found the bomb to be two sticks of dynamite wrapped with rope. The bomb was turned over to company Deputy Charles Seibert, Daniero reported.

The third bomb of the series landed 15 feet from the postoffice, it was reported, but did no damage.

Volunteer firemen at Masontown estimated $2,500 damage was done to a barn near the Rocks Run mine, which burned to the ground. A truck and waste paper were stored in it, they said.

Miners failed to report for work in all but two of the large Fayette and Greene County mines. When they arrived at the Poland and Hawkins mines, Greene County, the miners decided to remain out.

CLAIRTON LINK SEEN

The withdrawal was reported due to a rumor that the coal was to be shipped to the United States Steel Corporation's plant at Clairton. The steel corporation owns the Frick mines which so far have refused to sign a union contract.

Two other mines, along the Monongahela River, were reported loading coal on river barges. They were the Penn Tipp and the Maple Sterling mines, miners said. Fifty-two men were reported in the Winstead mine. Four union miners, inspecting the coal from the mine being loaded on the barges, were questioned by state police, but were not otherwise disturbed.

A few wagon mines were working in Fayette and Greene counties.

While William Hynes, newly-appointed president of District No. 4, United Mine Workers, was arranging to open headquarters in Uniontown, Martin Ryan, local insurgent leader, told newspapermen he knew nothing of a meeting, slated for tonight in Charleroi, at which he was scheduled to be the main speaker.

The majority of commercial mines in Western Pennsylvania were busy again, after their five-week holiday in sympathy with the captive mine workers' demand for recognition of the United Mine Workers. About 500 miners were expected back in the Grove City area today.

WEIRTON TRUCE SPURS UNION

(rength in the Weirton Steel Company.

A strike of 10,000 employes of the company was officially declared off through the National Labor Board at Washington yesterday after E. T. Weir, chairman of the National Steel Corporation and of Weirton Steel, and William J. Long, strike leader, had signed an agreement to terminate the three-week-old walkout.

One of the provisions of the agreement was that a new election shall be held the second Monday in December, under supervision of the Labor Board, of a committee to represent the men in future negotiations with the company.

WEIR AGREEMENT

Weir agreed to deal with any committee so selected. If it contained a majority of Amalgamated men he would be, in effect, treating with that union, though not as a union group.

The company is expected to throw all of its influence to the election of men not affiliated with the "outside union" that the principle of the "company union" heretofore operative may be continued.

At Weirton, W. Va., Steubenville, O., and Clarksburg, W. Va., many more men returned to work today. Others awaited the return of the strikers' committee from Washington to explain the agreement. Three mass meetings were called for tonight at which reports will be made by the Washington delegation.

John C. Williams, president of Weirton Steel, issued a statement that arrangements were being made to take care of all men returning to work, without discrimination. He said:

"Settlement of the strike is satisfactory to the company and the long-established open-shop policy of the company is absolutely maintained in every respect."

UNION SATISFIED

Indicating the favorable attitude of the men toward the settlement terms was a telegram from Long to George Ellison, vice president of the Weir-Cove Lodge of the Amalgamated Association at Weirton. It read:

"Conference with Senator Wagner's board just ended. Result satisfactory to both sides. Call meetings all halls for Tuesday, 8 p. m. We will be home to conduct meetings and inform men of results. Everything looks fine."

Word that a settlement had been reached was received last night with acclaim by the men in the strike zone. They cheered and gave vent to their feelings with shouts of joy.

FIERY HEARING

The agreement at Washington was reached after a long and heated hearing before the Labor Board in executive session.

Shouts of those participating at times came through the closed doors. Weir, in a 10-page statement, reiterated his stand that he would not arbitrate the strike nor would he deal with any committees except those of the men's own choosing within the company.

After two hours of argument, Senator Robert Wagner, chairman of the Labor Board, proposed an election of a new committee for collective bargaining to be held in December under supervision of the board. He asked:

"Are we agreed?"

The labor leaders said:

"Of course, this means an end to company unions."

Weir agreed. He said:

"An election in December is our original plan. In June we elected a committee to serve for six months. The new committee will serve for one year. It is agreeable."

Said Senator Wagner:

"Gentlemen, I congratulate you on your desire for an amicable settlement."

FOUR-POINT PACT

The agreement signed by Weir, Long and Senator Wagner provides:

1—Strikers to return to work at once, "without discrimination."

2—An election will be held the second Monday in December, under direction of the Labor Board, at which the workers are to select their representatives by ballot.

3—The company agrees to deal with any committee chosen by the men, whether or not the committee is dominated by the Amalgamated association.

4—The company agrees that all future disputes will be referred for settlement to the Labor Board.

TIGHE SPEAKS

M. F. Tighe, international president of the Amalgamated Association, admitted that Weir had not specifically promised to recognize the union—he had only promised to deal with those representatives his men chose in the December elections.

Tighe said:

"Well, I was a little disappointed—I didn't get everything I wanted, but I guess it was as good as we could hope for."

He said he realized this was an extremely important decision and would have great bearing on the attitude of other steel companies, such as United States Steel, whose Gary (Ind.) plants are now being organized. He said:

"The men haven't made any demands there and there hasn't been a peep out of the company as to its attitude."

Asked if there was any possibility Weir had been acting throughout the strike in close harmony with other steel corporations, Tighe said:

"I haven't a doubt about it."

Organization efforts in Weirton? Tighe declared:

"I'm perfectly content to leave all that to the men down there. They're perfectly capable of taking care of it. And if they haven't learned a lot in the past few weeks and don't organize the men, then they don't deserve the union."

But, if they call for help?

"Well, they'll be taken care of in every way."

Other plants of the National Steel Company are being organized rapidly in Wyandotte and Ecorse, Mich.; representatives from those locals were conferring with Tighe today.

Bombs Injure Man In Cleaning Shop

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 17.—(AP.)—Bombs hurled through a window of a cleaning and dyeing establishment in South Philadelphia today set fire to the place and burned Louis Stein, a watchman, so severely he required hospital treatment.

Police said the bombs, simple in construction, released acid and fumes which made Stein unconscious. When he revived the soles of his shoes were on fire.

TO THE TRUCK MINE COAL PRODUCERS IN WESTERN PENNSYLVANIA

The Sub-Divisional Code Authority for Western Pennsylvania, under authority vested in it by the Code of Fair Competition for the Bituminous Coal Industry, approved by President Roosevelt September 18, 1933, and effective October 2, 1933, has established a list of prices for coal produced and sold by mines shipping by trucks, which list is effective October 16, 1933, and a copy of which has been mailed to each such producer whose address we have.

Any truck mine producer not receiving such a list can obtain it from the classification engineers, Eavenson, Alford & Hicks, 1300 Union Trust Building, Pittsburgh, Pa., or B. F. Hoffacker, Park Building, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Any producer selling coal at less than these list prices is violating the code, and is subject to all the penalties named therein.

One Sure Way to End Coughs and Colds
Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.
Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, and attacks the seat of the trouble.
Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Your own druggist is authorized to refund your money on the spot if your cough or cold is not relieved by Creomulsion.

MINERS FIGHT AS PATRIOTS, LAWYER SAYS

A fight for idealism, a patriotic fight for the rights of the miners against the odds of greed and cruelty and wealth, is Attorney Anthony Cavalcante's view of the coal strike that has paralyzed Western Pennsylvania mining for weeks.

Cavalcante is the Uniontown attorney who has acted as Gov. Pinchot's representative in Fayette County and whose aggressive stand against the mine operators has brought him popularity among the striking miners. He is a former miner.

HAILS NRA CODES

Cavalcante, speaking at the Hungry Club luncheon in the Fort Pitt Hotel yesterday, hailed the NRA codes as the solution to the demoralization of the coal industry as well as new bills of rights for the workingman.

But the companies have sought, he said, to evade their legal obligation to recognized collective bargaining, declaring:

"The strike as far as any of the captive mines is concerned is over the company's insistence that the men belong to a company union and not a union of the men's own choosing."

The fiery little attorney ascribed the discontent of the miners to four causes: Forced trading and use of company scrip at company stores; forced work, without pay, conditioning mines for production and keeping them conditioned; cutting of wages to meet competition and coercing of men in the exercise of their political rights and in voting.

SEES FIGHT FOR LAW

But much of that, he said, was swept aside by the NRA and the right to join a union given the men to protect their new rights. So, he said:

"They have taken the law in their own hands to compel obedience to the law.

"The companies started the day before the Recovery Act was introduced into Congress and set out to organize company unions; the company feared it might lose its grip on the men and superintendents and other officials sat at the union meetings and told the men what to do."

He charged the W. J. Rainey Company with forcing its miners to vote in support of candidates chosen by the company.

Ford Strikers Take Case to Washington

CHESTER, Pa., Oct. 17.—(AP.)—A committee of striking employes of the Ford Motor Company's assembly plant plans a trip to Washintgon today to protest the company's non-union stand to the National Labor Board.

Announcement of the plan was made by strike leaders yesterday after officials of the plant refused to receive a strikers' committee and remained adamant against union recognition. Three persons were arrested in what police said was one of the first disturbances of the strike. Several persons were hurt in the disorder, which started three blocks from the plant.

Striking Miners Return in Alabama

BIRMINGHAM, Oct. 17.—(AP.)—Striking coal miners have returned to work in Alabama.

The strikers numbering approximately 1,200 agreed yesterday to re-enter the shafts after placing their troubles in the hands of mediators.

Pay Increase Won, Erie Strike Ends

ERIE, Pa., Oct. 17.—(AP.)—A strike settled and a wage increase demand met, 800 employes of the Girard Model Works, a toy factory at Girard, Pa., returned to work today.

RULES AGAINST SECURITY FOR PUPIL FUNDS

Mortgages in the sum of $43,000, pledged by the First National Bank of McKees Rocks as security for school childrens' deposits in the bank, must be returned by the school district of McKees Rocks.

Federal Judge Nelson McVicar so ruled in an opinion handed down yesterday. Attorneys for the school district had opposed return of the mortgages on the ground the deposits, amounting to $32,000, were in effect, semi-public.

The court held that the contract entered into by the bank and the members of the school district, March 10, 1932, pledging the mortgages, was illegal, as the childrens' deposits were not public funds.

The United States Treasury Department ruled the agreement could not be recognized and instructed T. W. Friend, conservator of the bank, to apply the mortgages as assets of the bank. When the school district refused to release them the conservator brought action for their recovery in the Federal court. The hearing was held last week.

The bank has been operating on a restricted basis since the bank holiday. A reorganization plan has been approved by the Comptroller of the Currency.

FLOOD CONTROL APPEAL PUSHED

The Tri-state Authority and the Pittsburgh Flood Control Commission have filed a supplementary brief, with maps, with the Mississippi Drainage Board in support of the project for flood and navigation reservoirs.

The maps show that many of the proposed reservoirs lie entirely or partly within forest reservations in river basins, and that approval of the Allegheny-Monongahela reservoir project by the public works administration would be a step in furtherance of a long established purpose.

Pattern 1636

Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern

For that important in-between age of 6 to 14 here's a frock that will surely win a girl's heart. It's quite "grown-upish" with its collared neckline—and the new mode counts necklines first in junior fashions, too. And sleeves—note the perky little puff insets—too adorable for words! The front and back parts of the dress are each cut in one piece—could anything be easier to make?

Pattern 1636 is available in sizes 6, 8, 10, 12 and 14. Size 10 takes 2⅛ yards 36-inch fabric, ½ yard contrasting and 1¾ yards 2½-inch ribbon. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

DISEASE TERMS CHANGED

The nomenclature of the tuberculosis field has changed considerably in the last 75 years, officials of the Tuberculosis League of Pittsburgh pointed out today.

Back in 1861 Oliver Wendell Holmes first used the term "white plague" in his novel "Elsie Venner" to mean tuberculosis, the League said.

Then for many years the word consumption was used.

With the discovery over a half century ago that the disease was cured by germs known as tubercle bacilli, the scientific word tuberculosis was adopted.

The word tubercular is misleading and should never be used, the League pointed out, as it is too general and may be applied to potatoes having a "tubercular growth." Lately the word "tuberculous" has been adopted as distinguished from tubercular.

Exhibits from many agricultural districts will be shown. Among them will be an 111-pound pumpkin, and a patchwork quilt more than 100 years old. Counties to be represented will be Fayette and Somerset, Pennsylvania; Grant, Mineral, Monongahela, Preston and Tucker, West Virginia, and Garrett, Maryland.

Visitors to the fair will be welcomed to the city tomorrow morning by Mayor John S. Herron, and Fred J. Reed, of Kingwood, W. Va., president of the Allegheny Tablelands Association.

Windpipe Burned, Man Awarded Damages

HARRISBURG, Oct. 17.—(INS.)—A windpipe is worth $6,206.25, a jury in Dauphin County Court determined when it returned a verdict yesterday awarding that amount to Ira Elliott, 30, Granville, in his suit against the Metropolitan-Edison Company.

Elliott averred that his windpipe was burned while he was scaling a pole in Shellsville, April 2, 1932, to repair a telephone line. He said he came into contact with high tension wires of the utility on the same pole.

Testimony was introduced to show that insufficient insulation was provided at the point where the live wires passed the telephone line.

Do as your dentist does—

USE POWDER

Powder Cleans and Whitens Teeth
—as nothing else can

THERE is nothing known that will clean and polish teeth so quickly and leave them so gleamingly white—as POWDER.

That is why your dentist, when cleaning your teeth, as you know—always uses powder.

As it is only the powder part of any dentifrice that cleans, a dentifrice that is ALL POWDER just naturally cleans best.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder is ALL POWDER—100% cleansing properties. This is more than twice the cleansing properties of tooth pastes.

Dull Teeth Become White

Dentists everywhere recommend Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder because—teeth simply cannot remain dull and film coated when it is used.

It cleans off all stains and tartar, and polishes the teeth in a harmless and practical way that leaves them sparkling—many shades whiter.

No Grit—No Pumice

Free from all grit or pumice, Dr. Lyon's cannot possibly scratch, or injure the softest enamel, as years of constant use have shown.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder keeps your teeth REALLY CLEAN and clean teeth mean—firm, healthy gums, freedom from pyorrhea and the least possible tooth decay.

Lasts Longer—Costs Less

Once you use Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder, you will never be satisfied to use anything else. It leaves your teeth feeling so much cleaner, your mouth so refreshed, and your breath so sweet and pure.

Dr. Lyon's is not only doubly efficient, but it costs only half as much to use. Even a small package lasts twice as long as a tube of tooth paste.

SPIRITUALIST LEADER TELLS OF 'CURE'

A blood poison cure effected through the spirit of a departed English clergyman was described today by the Rev. Thomas Grimshaw, pastor of the First Spiritualist Church here 40 years ago, now vice president and superintendent of the bureau of education of the National Spiritualist Association.

Mr. Grimshaw is here for the association's convention which opened today in the William Penn Hotel. The convention will continue through the week, with public evening sessions at which speakers and mediums will be heard.

TELLS OF TRANCE

The cure, the clergyman said, was effected when he was lecturing before a spiritualist meeting. Unable to walk, he was carried to the platform, he said, continuing:

"It was not myself that lectured, that is not my own messages. I was the medium through whom a clergyman named Robinson spoke. On the lecture platform, I would enter a trance and in that sleep expound the sermon of the departed spirit.

"That day, as I was lecturing, it was possible to stand and walk on the swollen leg that in my earthly condition could not hold me. I did not know I was doing it.

"When I was through, I found the leg was cured. I could walk on it. I asked the spirit, or ghost man as I called him, how it was possible for him to control matter. He told me I myself could not live up to the life of the higher plane to accomplish it myself."

SPIRIT PROGRESS

In the higher plane, to which spirits move, Mr. Grimshaw said, the departed do not have the earthly demand to preserve and protect the body. At death, he said one retains earthly habits such as eating, but as he is elevated to higher zones in the spirit world, these become unnecessary. The spirit has more time to develop himself mentally, he said.

The lowest spirit zone is centered about the earth, he said, while the spirit rises farther and farther from the earth as it develops. The religious belief of the individual continues after death, he declared, saying, there are teachers in the next plane who educate the spirit gradually to overcome the earthly belief and understand spiritual life. Many times dreams and premonitions are messages from a spirit, he declared.

ATLANTA DROPS BLUE LAWS

ATLANTA, Oct. 17.—(AP.)—Atlanta has wiped its Sunday blue laws off the ordinance books. Council voted yesterday 20 to 15 to repeal laws prohibiting amusements on the Sabbath.

Mayor James L. Key, who long has urged Sunday moving picture shows and Sunday baseball, signed the repeal measure at once and it became effective immediately.

Sunday amusements took on much the same status as beer, legal and licensed by Atlanta ordinances, but prohibited by state laws. Beer is sold in more than 3,000 places in Atlanta, however, and supporters of Sunday amusements believed they would be offered in spite of state statutes.

DOCTOR EXPLAINS NEW SAFE WAY TO REDUCE

Announces New Discovery Over Station WCAE

Science has made rapid strides in the past few months in locating the causes of excess fat, according to Dr. Frank S. Orland, authority on overweight, who spoke over Station WCAE on this subject. Dr. Orland further explained that a famous research scientist, working at the Pasteur Institute in Paris and in leading American clinics, was directly connected with the discoveries that led to Vannay, the new weight-control method.

Dr. Orland further stated that Vannay is an absolutely harmless tablet that contains no thyroid extract, iodine or laxative drugs of any kind. "Now it is absurd for anyone," he continued, "to take dangerous drugs or a daily dose of drastic salts that rushes food through the body half digested and leads to chronic constipation. Vannay is the safe natural regulator of the digestive ferments (Lipases) which control the production of fat in all human bodies.

"You don't have to starve yourself or go through painful exercises. You simply take the tablets each day and continue to eat three meals. The fat disappears at just the places where you want to lose it."

This remarkable product is on sale at all May's Drug Stores. Any of our clerks will be glad to give you an interesting booklet, "How To Reduce With Absolute Safety."

National Upturn Sends Curls to Top of Head

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—(AP.)—Prices and wages and everything else are going up this fall, so hair styles are too, the New York Hairdressers and Cosmetologists Association says.

At the opening of the association's convention yesterday, higher coiffures were shown. Curls will be banked on top of the head this year. The demonstrators said:

"The upward movement plays the leading role in autumn coiffures."

Feathers and velvet and all sorts of ornaments will be used this year to adorn the coiffure, the association has decided. A popular color for the hair will be bright red and even "spit" curls are back. Platinum blondes didn't even get a nod at the meeting.

JUROR EXCUSED ON WORK PLEA

A day away from his employment as a milk driver would stiffen him so he could not work, William F. Bert, 502 Sickles street, declared in a plea yesterday to escape jury duty.

Judge W. Heber Dithrich, presiding in Common Pleas Court, excused the juror from two weeks service. Bert had told him candidly:

"They could get along without me at the plant because they have plenty of men, but one day's loafing would stiffen me up so I could not work. I have been a milk driver 40 years."

Judge Dithrich smiled, saying:

"Well, under those circumstances you are excused from further jury service."

Things I Never Knew 'Til Now

(And might never have—but for readers.)

That until a few years ago, there was a law in N. Y. that anyone you recommended to the Commissioner of Jurors would be summoned immediately for jury duty. (What a chance to get even!)

That Brookline, Mass., with a pop. of 50,000, hasn't a movie.

That there is $150,000,000 in gold in the soil under Philadelphia—which is financially embarrassed!

That so many militant drys are graduates of Vassar—a collitch founded by the profits of a brewery!

That New York actually honors a pirate—with a statue, yet! A likeness of Verrazanno (at Battery Park), whom history credits as the discoverer of the N. Y. site although he never saw America.

That if the eye pupils don't contract when a bright light hits you, then what? Then you're a lunatic.

That the united profit of a group of newspapers in England amounts to eight millions, but they give away 17 millions in premiums.

That liquor, if imported, can be sold in any state without reference to the state's prohibitory or restrictive laws. (I'm blotto? Then so is the United States Supreme Court, which once so ruled.)

That statisticians have determined that the descendants of that Mayflower Pilgrimage now number 30 million — or one-fourth of the United States population. (Society editors can kid that one.)

That from Canada to the Gulf is 1,200 miles, yet Maine's south coast line on the Atlantic is twice that distance!

That the Japanese language has no personal pronoun "I."

That you're a real genius if you can find the factors of 4,294,967,297—in 10 years from now, although Zerah Colburn, a kid of 8, solved it mentally in 20 seconds. (Yop, I know the answer, too.)

That the height of being mad was reached when Chang and Eng, the Siamese Twins, didn't speak a word to each other for three years.

That you who pay taxes in one town, and complain—should consider Mr. Pallidino: His kitchen is in Union, N. J., and his parlor is in Maplewood!

That Voltaire, who once chirped "Penn's famous treaty with the Indians was never broken," will squirm in his tomb, but such a treaty was never made. (Put your coin away, I can prove it.)

That when all worthy folk had to buy their books or do without them, there was one public library in the United States—at Sing Sing.

That foes could have made things awkward for Hoover's hosts in Massachusetts by quoting an old statute, still effective, which rules that citizens of that state who entertain Quakers—lose their ears!

That whenever a Chinese actor is about to say something important, a gong is sounded loundly, to awaken you.

That the son of Mexico's ill-fated Emperor Maximilian is in London—fish peddling, which won't bar him from society.

That in Los Angeles roller skaters must make the same traffic signals as motor car and truck drivers.

That Finis Robertson has been wearing the same necktie he received as a gift 18 years ago. (How monotonous!)

That an army of women in Western Canada, who allege that they are forced into "lives of shame" by current economic conditions, have threatened to parade in the nude in protest. (I'll be right back.)

That a phrase perplexing mid-Westerners, "Where's Elmer?"—is catching on fast. (It started after the legion met in Chicago.)

That a military plane can have 88 per cent of its surface riddled by enemy bullets and still fly. (So much of the plane is made from cellulose—which is practically candy.)

That John Keats, the poet, died with the belief that his fame was perishing with him. His last request was that on his tombstone these words be engraved: "Here lies one whose name was writ in water."

That William Cowper's best poetry was written while he was in a lunatic asylum. (Why'ncha cumup an' see me, sometime?)

That a French columnist has suggested a law making it compulsory for restaurant owners to eat their food in front of customers.

That insanity in the U. S. has increased 500 per cent in the last 50 years, according to doctors. (Especially in the last four years.)

That the Ethiopians regard obesity as a sign of a woman's aristocratic birth. (The Empress is so plump she can hardly walk.)

That at Juan-les-Pins (a ritzy resort and playground of local snobs) there is a restaurant which destroys all dishes and plates immediately after the diner has eaten his meal.

That in England recently they held a contest to determine the ugliest woman and only one contestant could be persuaded to enter.

That the Chinese never drink cold water. They boil it first and drink it warm for their health. (Then why do they look so pale?)

And that one authority says that if you can detect three f's in the following sentence after reading it through once, you are normal. If you can detect six you're a genius—Federal fuses are the result of years of scientific study combined with the experience of years.

Miss Hepburn Studying Camera

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1933, King Features Synd., Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 17.—Other stars marry cameramen, but this amazing Katharine Hepburn has set out to be one. Whenever they made a scene in "Little Women" that did not call for her appearance, Hollywood's latest rave actress gave up her rest period to act as third assistant to Henry Gerard, photographer on the picture.

She carried the tape to measure the distance for the shot, she set the lens and she loaded the film in the sprocket of the camera. So rapid was her progress that Gerard predicts she can qualify as a second cameraman if she keeps up her study for the next three months.

Miss Hepburn

Photography is not a new hobby for the vital Katharine. For months she has been going around the lot snapping informal shots of her friends with a small camera.

Now she's carrying around books on lighting and is determined to master the more difficult art of the cinematographer.

Typically Westian was the blonde Mae's reaction when the studio boys tried to get her to discard her smart town car and to hire one of those yachts on wheels to attend the premiere of "I'm No Angel."

"Rats," snapped Mae, "I'll go in this one. It's paid for."

The photographers failed, after all, to get that picture of Mae and Marlene Dietrich together, although the two arrived at the premiere almost simultaneously Mae's car rolled up first and the crowd, biggest in years, went wild. As cameras were snapping and studio attaches were leading the blonde star to the microphone, W. C. Fields created another diversion by arriving in an old-time beer truck drawn by stamping percherons. In the double excitement, Dietrich and Von Sternberg drove up and slipped into the theater without anyone stopping them.

Miss Dietrich

Some persons noticed, too, that Mae West was not in her seat during the showing of the picture. It happened that the star went backstage to make her personal appearance and when she returned to the auditorium the picture was on. Rather than disturb the other members of her party, she stood up and watched the film from the back of the house.

The Alice Brady "kidnap insurance' story broadens. A half-dozen other prominent stars got similar offers and the funny part of it is the sender of the letters has the same name as the manager of a prominent star. He is getting all the back-talk.

Max Baer keeps calling June Knight, but she is never at home . . . Bedridden in a hospital, Mrs. Lionel Barrymore has just seen her first picture in weeks. Lionel borrowed Marie Dressler's portable sound projection machine and took it to his wife's room. She saw "Three Little Pigs" and May Robson's grand film, "Lady For a Day" . . . Ten-year old Romeo Nunooruk, of M-G-M's "Eskimo" cast, has been converted to Hollywood. Flying back to Seattle on his way to Prince of Wales Island, he stoutly promised to return as soon as he is twenty-one . . . Dorothea Wieck lost 10 pounds during the filming of her first talkie . . . and Robert Armstrong uses the word "escutcheon" like this: "Would you like escutcheon soda?"

No Angel

Mae West is a carnival dancer and a good-bad woman in "I'm No Angel," photoplay that will be seen Friday in the Penn.

Expression of South Not His Pitfall

Charlie Farrell, playing a Tennesseean in "Girl Without a Room," clear of the incorrect use of "you all" in his dialog. That is the more remarkable because Charlie hails from New England, where it is to be supposed many think that southerners go around "you-alling" each other, singularly and plurally, without mercy or discrimination.

Farrell took his tip from Bette Davis, another New Englander, with whom he had worked in a film. And how did Bette know? Direct from Celestine, her negro cook!

Future Bills Of Screen

Gary Cooper and Fay Wray are featured in "One Sunday Afternoon," opening Wednesday in the Enright.

Paul Robeson, noted singer, has the title role in Eugene O'Neill's "The Emperor Jones," opening Thursday in the Fulton. Mr. Robeson plays the role of Brutus Jones, a clever Negro who first becomes a Pullman porter, then a murderer and fugitive, and eventually the emporer on a small island.

Mae West, Gary Grant, Kent Taylor and Edward Arnold have pricipal roles in "I'm No Angel," photoplay opening Friday in the Penn. Miss West portrays a carnival dancer. She falls in love with Gary Grant and that makes things interesting.

With Irene Dunne in the title role, the film version of the Sinclair Lewis novel, "Ann Vickers," will open Friday in the Stanley. Three men in her life are played by Bruce Cabot, Walter Huston and Conrad Nagel.

Richard Dix and Elizabeth Allan are featured in "Ace of Aces," a wartime picture with Dix as an aviator who is too timid at first and too daring later. The picture will open Friday in the Warner and Sheridan Square.

"Wild Boys of the Road" is a picture that comes Friday to the Davis with Frankie Darro in a prominent role. It is a story depicting the problem of roving youth.

A story of Greenwich Village, "Rafter Romance," featuring Ginger Rogers, will be the screen attraction of the vaudeville and photoplay bill that will have its first performances Friday in the Pitt.

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Guiseppe Creatore, once a favorite band leader here at concerts that were part of the allure of the big show when Pittsburgh had an exposition every autumn, was expected to arrive in town today for the purpose of rehearsing the orchestra in connection with the presentation of the first operas of the Pittsburgh Grand Opera Company. This practice, to begin tonight, is supplementary to the weeks of rehearsal the 32 musicians already have had under James Borelli. Creatore will conduct all three operas to be given in Syria Mosque Friday and Saturday evenings and Saturday afternoon. The vocal artists will arrive Thursday. They will include Cammander Pasquale Amato, Nino Ruisi, Guiseppi, Interrante, Eugenio Prosperoni, Radaelli, Carl Yost, Agnes Delorme, Rosita Fordier, and Lola Monti Gorsey. George Trabert of Pittsburgh, tlso will be a principal. "La Gioconda will be the opening opera Friday.

The company that will be seen—and heard—in the Nixon next week in "Music In the Air," the operetta by Jerome Kern and Oscar Hammerstein II, that recently completed a run of 10 months in New York, is said to be one of the largest ever to make a tour, with 81 performers all told, 21 musicians and 35 stage hands. It will have familiar operetta ingredients with Munich as the place of impact. The late Joseph Urban designed the sets. The seat sale will open Thursday.

"Let 'Em Eat Cake," that much heralded sequel to "Of Thee I Sing," is to make its New York bow next Saturday night, to show the further adventures of President John P. Wintergreen, alias William Gaxton; Vice President Alexander Throttlebottom, otherwise Victor Moore, and Mrs. Wintergreen, who is none other than our own Lois Moran. As we understand it, they get chucked out of the White House.

Frederic March having recovered from an illness that delayed the beginning of work of "Chrysalis," work on that picture has been started, others in the cast being George Raft, and Miriam Hopkins.

Ex-Stenog Is Given Leading Role

Dorothy Wilson, former Hollywood studio stenographer, has been chosen to replace Ann Sothern in the leading role of "Eight Girls in a Boat." Miss Sothern withdrew from the cast under orders of her physician.

French Dancer Stays In Variety Bill

Mlle. Verne, French dancer, is the headliner in the Variety, which now is presenting "Parisian Nights.' Her dance is typical of the Sally Rand style. Another featured dancer is Wanda DeVon, in a series of dances on the order of those of Gilda Grey. She also caused a brief delay in the show by having to do several enchores. Eddie Lorraye and George Leon, Fred Binder and Eddie Kaplan are principal comedians. Ruth Bailey, a "blues" singer and Martha Patti, soprano, and the France brothers, in dances and patter appear in specialties.

Thinks Actor Should Act

Francis Lederer, European actor who made a big hit on the New York stage last season, chose "Man of Two Worlds," in which to make his film debut in preference to one written especially for him. Explaining the choice, he said creating character is a matter for the author, the actor's part being to portray it.

Among the versatile players of Hollywood, as of the stage, this is the accepted credo. The Barrymores, both John and Lionel, have appeared in enough varied characterizations to demonstrate their adherence to it. So have Marie Dressler, Ralph and Frank Morgan, May Robson, Alison Skipworth, George Arliss and other top-rank stars, all of whom are definite personalities and yet superior actors, capable of holding those personalities into an assortment of roles.

Paul Muni, however, met defeat in his first talkies because he did this very thing, his "Seven Faces" revealing an actor of parts but little of Muni. It was a gripping story of the chain gang that gave him his big picture role.

Which is but one of many instances indicating to observers that Lederer, in holding that "the play's the thing," may be choosing the wiser course.

Blood Fails To Tell

J. Carroll Naish (pronounced Nash) is Irish, but the movies have made him a "foreign" gangster type. But stranger than that is the history of his screen career.

Naish, it may be recalled, is the New York stage actor who donated blood for a transfusion for William Fox after the magnate had that automobile accident in 1929. Naish had been receiving movie offers before that, but he didn't sign a contract until afterward—and it was with the Fox studio.

Well, he went to Hollywood. He didn't know why, at first, but it soon became apparent that his main duty was to draw a pay check. Finally it dawned upon him. Everybody, it seemed, though: he had been signed only because of the blood gift, and nobody appeared to think of him as an actor. It took him about three years to "live it down" and prove—in "The Hatchet Man"—that he was more than a transfusion volunteer.

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

A Timid Guy

HENRY STOUT was worried. Not badly worried. Just mildly. He was worried because his wife wasn't singing. Matilda always sang while making breakfast. Always. And the tune was always the same: "That Naughty Waltz."

But not this morning. He could her her rattle the pots and pans downstairs, but her tremolo-contralto voice was silent. Henry knew that something was wrong.

He walked downstairs lightly, on his toes. He sat at a table meekly and waited until Matilda sat before him making a few preliminary passes at the wheatcakes. Then he said "Good morning."

Matilda said nothing for a moment. She cut a wheatcake into neat squares, dripped a bit of corn syrup on it, and dug her fork into the mess viciously.

"Henry," she said flatly, "something has got to be done."

Henry dropped his fork, and smiled apologetically.

"About what, sweetheart?" he quavered.

"That job, of course. You know the one I mean. The Smith job. He's offered that thing to you for the past week. Now, are you going to take it, or aren't you?"

Henry masticated one of the rubber wheatcakes before answering. It gave him a chance to think.

"I can't take that, sweetheart," he said. "You know darn well I can't. Why, the Trades Union delegate would kill me if I ever—"

Matilda slammed her tiny fist on the table.

"Henry Stout," she said grimly, "I'm sick and tired of listening to you discuss that sacred neck of yours. Do you realize that I've got no clothes to my back? Do you realize that you haven't done a stroke of work in over a year because you've got no backbone?"

Henry tried to retreat gracefully, but it was a rout.

"All right," he said, martyrlike, "all right, Matilda. If you want me to land in a hospital—if that's what you want—I'll go ahead and build Smith's house for him. I'll do the job, all right. I've got no union card, but that doesn't matter. After all, the union delegate can only kill me. And that's nothing at all."

If Henry Stout thought that his heroic speech would make Matilda chortle, he was sadly disillusioned. She smiled widely for the first time in days.

"Now you're talking like a man," she said . . .

Henry Stout was a good workman, when left alone. The house was beginning to take shape, and the shoring had been completed, when the union bunch took time out to pay him a visit. There were four of them, and there wasn't a timid one in a carload.

Henry was on the second floor, swinging a hammer, when they approached.

"Hey, Stout," the bulky delegate called up, "come on down here."

Stout gulped.

"I'm busy," he called back. What do you want?"

"Come on down here."

"Can't, right now. I'm busy. Can't ya see I'm busy, fellas?"

"You got a union card, Stout?"

"No." It was the most inaudible "no" on record.

"Then drop those tools and come down here or I'll go up and get you."

Henry Stout could see the dim vista of eternity spread out before him at that moment. The delegate — Josh Barden — was known to be a guerilla. He could see his two kiddies wailing for food. He could see Matilda arranging the funeral, probably humming "That Naughty Waltz."

A strange light came into Henry Stout's eyes. A vicious light. The light of a new day.

"I'm not coming down," he whispered fearfully.

The delegate stepped on the first rung of the ladder. As he tried to step to the next one a hammer came whistling down and bounced hollowly off the delegate's hat. The delegate bounced off the ladder.

In 99 cases out of a possible hundred Henry Stout would have been killed by the remaining three men. But this was the hundredth case, and that's what makes it a story.

The three men who accompanied the delegate whooped with glee. Henry Stout, standing like a statue on the second floor, heard their yips and laughter. Heard them say "That finishes him," "Always knew he couldn't take it," and "Wait'll the boss hears about this."

In a daze, Henry Stout felt himself being led through the town. He vaguely remembered meeting the fat man with the cigar, and remembered the man shaking him by the hand. He remembered sitting down and signing something. And some one brought him back to consciousness by whacking him on the back so hard that he coughed.

Henry Stout went home. He flung his hat on the couch and dragged his mud-caked feet over the rug. Before Matilda could let out the shriek he knew was coming he told her the glad news; told her that he had knocked the big, bad delegate out cold; told her that he was the new delegate, and that the big union boss had called him "Hen."

The next morning Henry Stout trotted downstairs arrogantly to the blithe strains of "That Naughty Waltz." He sat himself down at the kitchen table and plunked three wheatcakes on his plate before Matilda was ready to eat.

"Darling," said Matilda affectionately, "tell me. How did you ever have the nerve to hit that rowdy with that hammer? I mean, the whole town has been afraid of him for years."

Henry shook and turned a faint yellow.

"That's the funny part of it," he said between mouthfuls. "I didn't mean to do it. I was so scared that the darn thing fell out of my hands!" . . .

"Murder at Vanities" Bought for Film

Paramount has purchased screen rights to Earl Carroll's current Broadway stage success, "Murder at the Vanities" and arrangements have been made for Carroll to go to Hollywood for the making of the production. The "Vanities" producer will assist in the direction and act in a supervisory capacity on the picture. Work is scheduled to begin on the piece sometime during December. "Murder at the Vanities" combines the elements of mystery drama and musical comedy.

Careless

Irene Dunne is rather careless in her several affairs of the heart in "Ann Vickers," screen version of Sinclair Lewis novel opening Friday in the Stanley.

'Bad Wolf,' 'Roundup' In Features

The song hit, "Who's Afraid of the Big Bad Wolf," made famous by Walt Disney's "Three Little Pigs," will be used in the Four Marx Brothers' Paramount production, "Duck Soup." Although the picture has been finished a week ago, the Four Marxmen were to return for one more scene in order to use the "New National Anthem." Paramount also has asked the composer of the song, Ann Ronnell, to write a title number for its production of "Alice in Wonderland."

"The Last Roundup," cowboy lament that has become one of the nation's most popular radio songs, also has been purchased by Paramount for inclusion in "The Border Legion," Zane Grey's outdoor romance.

Heat of Light Cures Ego

A certain honest director recently was faced with the task of filming a story with a cast of featured players whose roles in the production did not at all equal in importance other roles they had played previously.

In this situation signs of discord were not long in arising. Various actors began trying to "tell" the director. His reply to each was that he had a story to film, was hired to film as they were to play it, and he was sorry, but—

Except for one actor, this reasonable answer sufficed. This fellow wanted a "big scene," and stood pat on getting it. No persuasion could budge him. So the director "turned on the heat," remembering how effective this was in the old days.

He granted the actor his wish. He "set up" the big scene, and had the actor sit under the lights and go into more detail regarding his wishes. The cameraman was instructed to keep the actor there, lining up his shot, while the electricians, in on the plot, kept the light focused directly on him.

In a few minutes, of course, the heat had melted his makeup, wilted his shirt, and reduced his spirits. But the lights beamed on, and the cameraman couldn't possibly spare him for a single moment, and the director just couldn't seem to understand exactly how the actor wanted things done.

Eventually the actor decided his "big scene" wasn't so important after all!

Stubborn Coughs Ended by Recipe, Mixed at Home

Pour this into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with granulated sugar syrup, made with 2 cups of sugar and one cup of water, stirred a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed—it's so easy! Thus you make a full pint of better remedy than you could buy ready-made, and you get four times as much for your money. It never spoils and children love its taste.

Woman Lost 44 Lbs.

The Original Hollywood Reducing Formula Available to Public.

My friends are amazed. No wonder those movie girls easily keep pretty figures. I weighed 184 pounds on March 27th and today June 21st, I weigh 140. Lost 44 pounds. Feel marvelous. My figure looks 10 years younger and was so easy to lose." Signed, Marrette Staley, 214 Penn Ave., Joplin, Mo.

So successful and famous did the HOLLYWOOD 18 reducing formula become, that by popular demand it has been made available to you—just like the movie stars use who must keep their lovely figures.

Many report weight reductions from 14 to 41 pounds and it's so easy and pleasant—you just take a little HOLLYWOOD 18 in a glass of water before breakfast. Just ask Mayflower, Sun, Economy, Peoples, or any good druggist for HOLLYWOOD 18.

(Advertisement)

CATARRHAL DEAFNESS MAY BE OVERCOME

If you have Catarrhal Deafness or are even just a little hard of hearing or have head noises go to your druggist and get 1 ounce of Parmint (double strength), and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar. Take 1 tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucus stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little and is pleasant to take. Anyone losing hearing or who has Catarrhal Deafness or head noises should give this prescription a trial.

Patricia Pitt's Comment on Pittsburgh Society Happenings

All the debutante's aides will have corsages of gardenias, and all her grandmother's aides, corsages of mixed flowers at Margaret Rowe's debut tea this afternoon.

Margaret, who is the daughter of Charles A. Rowe, of the Alder Court Apartments, will be presented to society at a tea this afternoon in the Twentieth Century Club, which her grandmother, Mrs. Benjamin B. Howell, is giving.

The blonde debutante will wear a Schiaparelli-blue velvet afternoon dress, distinguished by its sheath-like cut, and a small hat of the same material, trimmed with ermine tails.

Gown of Bagheera

Black bagheera, with a hat of the same material, is Mrs. Howell's choice for her gown. The debutante will carry yellow rosebuds and yellow orchids; her grandmother will have a corsage of orchids.

The young deb's aides will be Analana Beeson, Virginia Evans, Katharine Dangerfield, Evelyn Freeman, Barbara Verner, Eleanor McKennan, Margaret Mitchell and Vardi Marshall.

Assisting Mrs. Howell will be Mrs. Benjamin G. Wells, Mrs. Wallace H. Rowe, Mrs. William Zang, Mrs. Harry L. Mitchell, Mrs. Samuel A. Gilmore, Mrs. John Kennedy Ewing, of New York, and Mrs. Robert W. Singer, of Greensburg. * * *

Nancy Hart Chess will be presented to society in November or early December by her mother, Mrs. Harvey B. Chess, of Aylesboro avenue. Nancy's debut party probably will be a luncheon, her mother believes.

Greensburg Girl Married in Blue Velvet Gown

Miss Alleda Zolle Robinson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Burton Robinson, of Tremont avenue, Greensburg, chose blue velvet instead of traditional white or ivory for her wedding this morning to Ralph Franklin Bush, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Frank Bush, of Greensburg.

The ceremony took place in the First Methodist Episcopal Church with the Rev. James E. Wagner officiating. Dahlias in gold and rust tones and cibotium ferns decorated the church.

Giving the bride in marriage was her father. The only trimming on her sheath-like gown was small rhinestone clips. Her small hat was of the same material as her gown, and her flowers were yellow and bronze dahlias.

A cousin of the bride, Miss Virginia Patterson, of Morgantown, W. Va., appeared in copper leaf chiffon velvet with a hat of the same material, and carried gold-hued dahlias.

C. Russell Remaley, of Greensburg, was best man, and William Brown and Ralph Keefner, both of Greensburg, were ushers.

After a breakfast in the Mountain View Hotel, Mr. and Mrs. Bush left for a motor trip. They will be at home later in Dormont.

Bride to Wear Wedding Gown Of Mother

Not even a hook or an eye had to be changed on her mother's wedding gown, fashioned of white embroidered net over satin, ivory with age, when Miss Mary Louise Lloyd, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George F. Lloyd, of Munhall, wore it at her marriage to William A. Brownlee, son of John Brownlee, also of Munhall.

The ceremony took place in the home of the bride's parents at 2:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon with the Rev. Irvin S. Yeaworth, of the First Presbyterian Church, of Homestead, officiating.

For the ceremony, the home was decorated with dahlias, asters and marigolds in rich autumn colors. The bride, given in marriage by her father, carried an old-fashioned bouquet of yellow roses, blending with the ivory of her mother's wedding gown, having a slight train, in vogue again.

The bride's sister, Miss Sue Lloyd, as maid of honor, wore blue velvet with silver accessories and carried yellow dahlias.

Even today, when hosiery prices (like all others) are advancing by leaps . . . if not by bounds . . . these remain at their present low, 69c or 2 for $1.30! Chiffons of a sheerness that can only be described as "cobwebby" . . . in shades which include the season's newest, Smoke (worn equally well with black or brown). Lace stripes at the tops, old dears, and nary a run can start from there! Also . . . this shop presents each customer with a Hosiery Club card—punched each time you purchase a pair. Results: After so many punches you receive a pair FREE!

Back up from your heels to your head . . . wouldn't you say that Almond Tissue Cream or Lemon Cleansing Cream at 35 cents the WHOLE POUND was a pretty big buy? We would. And that's why we picked it out with squawks of delight. Great big lasting jars of the refreshing cream smelling of lemons . . . and great big ones filled to the brim with the soothing fragrance of almond cream—for this price they are unheard of (by our ears at any rate!)

And now, being in football season with college colors fluttering from all conceivable places . . . the new all-silk football ties for men are distinctly apropos! We chanced upon them and thought of you immediately. These come in the authentic football colors of every school . . . the darker colors forming the background with tiny footballs in the contrasting color embroidered in an all-over pattern . . . hand tailored. $1.00.

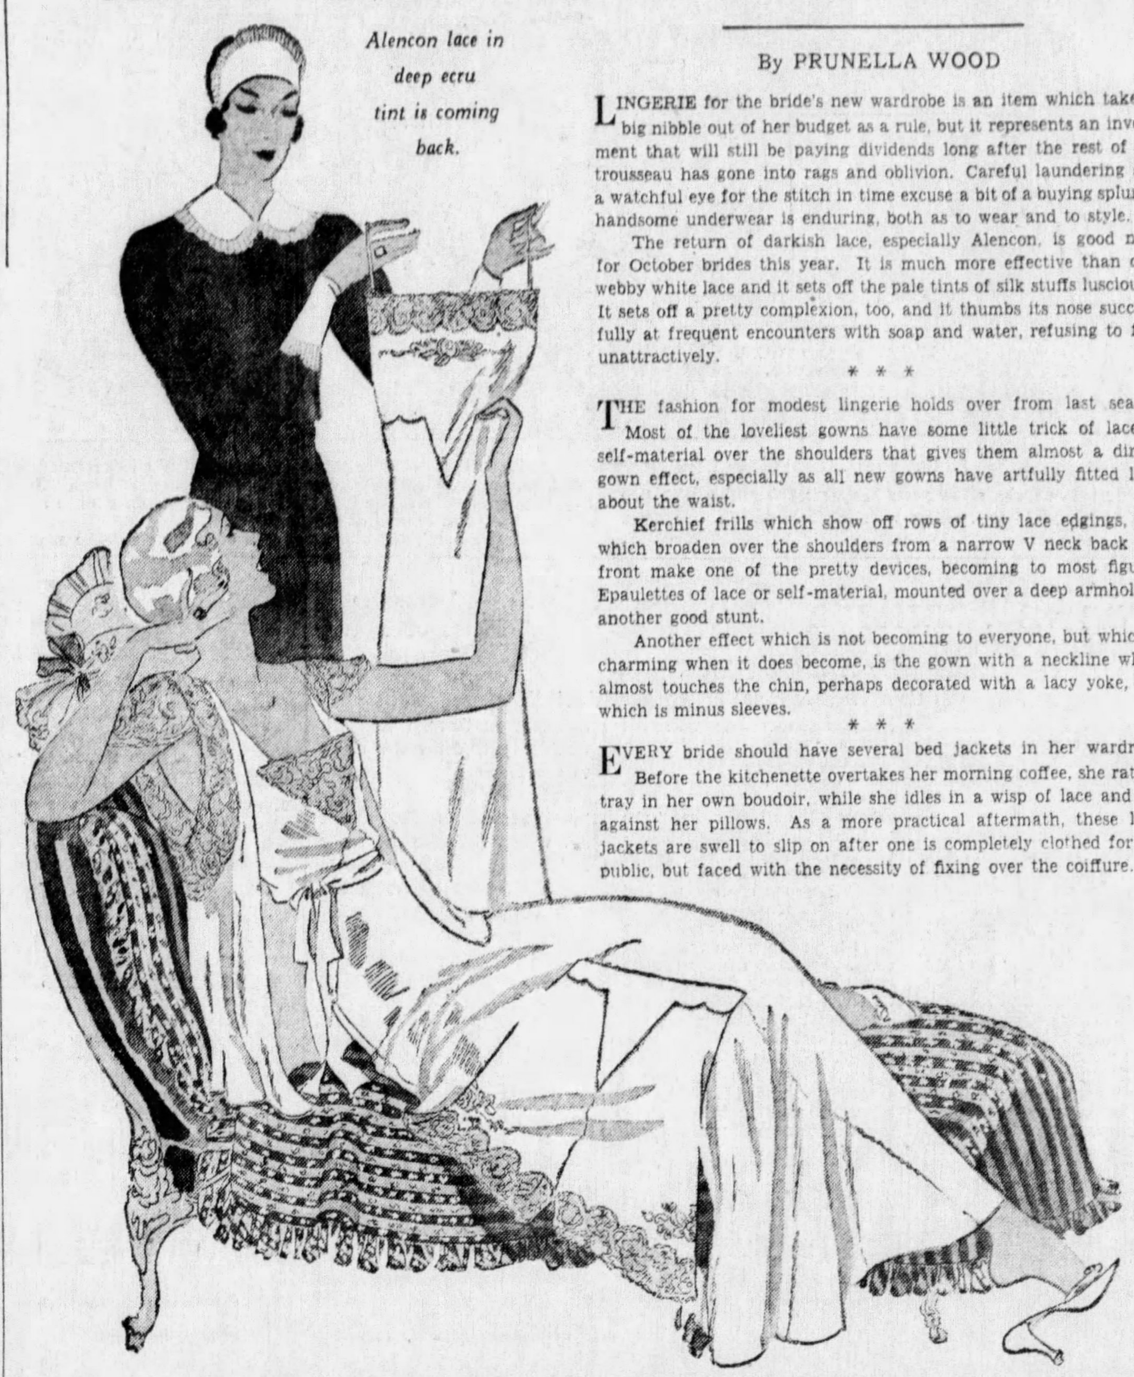
SILKEN FINERY FOR THE TROUSSEAU



Alencon lace in deep ecru tint is coming back.

The four pieces in this trousseau set—gown, slip, panties and lisseuse—are made of pale pink crepe trimmed lavishly with Alencon lace in an ecru shade. Note the square neckline of the gown, and the deep lace arm hole and draped epaulette of the little lisseuse. The fitted yokes of the slip and panties are joined with fine fagotting.

By PRUNELLA WOOD

LINGERIE for the bride's new wardrobe is an item which takes a big nibble out of her budget as a rule, but it represents an investment that will still be paying dividends long after the rest of her trousseau has gone into rags and oblivion. Careful laundering and a watchful eye for the stitch in time excuse a bit of a buying splurge: handsome underwear is enduring, both as to wear and to style.

The return of darkish lace, especially Alencon, is good news for October brides this year. It is much more effective than cool webby white lace and it sets off the pale tints of silk stuffs lusciously. It sets off a pretty complexion, too, and it thumbs its nose successfully at frequent encounters with soap and water, refusing to fade unattractively.

THE fashion for modest lingerie holds over from last season. Most of the loveliest gowns have some little trick of lace or self-material over the shoulders that gives them almost a dinner gown effect, especially as all new gowns have artfully fitted lines about the waist.

Kerchief frills which show off rows of tiny lace edgings, and which broaden over the shoulders from a narrow V neck back and front make one of the pretty devices, becoming to most figures. Epaulettes of lace or self-material, mounted over a deep armhole, is another good stunt.

Another effect which is not becoming to everyone, but which is charming when it does become, is the gown with a neckline which almost touches the chin, perhaps decorated with a lacy yoke, and which is minus sleeves.

EVERY bride should have several bed jackets in her wardrobe. Before the kitchenette overtakes her morning coffee, she rates a tray in her own boudoir, while she idles in a wisp of lace and silk against her pillows. As a more practical aftermath, these little jackets are swell to slip on after one is completely clothed for the public, but faced with the necessity of fixing over the coiffure.

'CENTURY OF PROGRESS' CLUB THEME

The Bradford Woods Civic Club has taken "A Century of Progress" as its theme for this year, and to emphasize the comparison between the past and present is presenting on Thursday "A Century of Progress in Education." Later in the season, the club will discuss "A Century of Progress in the American Home" and "A Century of Progress in the School." Officers are: Mrs. Kenneth Gray, president; Mrs. W. A. Crawford, vice president; Mrs. J. H. Smith, secretary; Mrs. Charles M. Arnold, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. J. L. Hannan, treasurer.

Married Men Have a Right To Personal Friends

This is for brides.

You're one? Then tell us—

Are you trying to make your husband drop all his old friends? Cut out all his old habits?

And if so, why so? Do you think you'll make your honeymoon perpetual that way? Or are you doing it just to prove Who's Boss?

Who's asking?

A new husband—and he's plenty anxious to know.

Girls, meet Mort. And then, maybe, mend your ways!

My Dear Miss Robinson—

I feel sort of foolish writing to you. I suppose a man ought to be able to solve his own problems, but I have come up against one that has me beat.

I got married here a couple of months ago. I am deeply in love with Flossie, my wife, and she is a sweet girl. She is a swell cook and housekeeper; I know she loves me, and she is a square shooter. But there is just one thing that gets my goat, and we can't seem to agree on it.

She seems to think that I should give up all my old friends, now that I am married, and trail only with the people she thinks are "right."

Now I have know these boys she objects to for years. I went to grammar school with some of them and some went all through college with me. We're not a bad lot, the bunch of us. We like to get together and play cards now and then, or go to a fight. We have never gone in for any rough stuff, but I am the first one to get married—and she seems to think that bachelor friends and marriage won't mix.

SUSPICIOUS ATTITUDE

The first time I wanted to step out in the evening to a fight with a couple of these fellows she cried, and said that if I really loved her I would give them up, and not want to go out like that any more.

I felt sorry for her then, and I stayed home with her. I thought she'd get over feeling like that, but she hasn't. She seems even more determined now. I haven't been away from her but one evening since we were married, and she hasn't got over that one time.

Now I have never interfered with her girl friends in any way, and I don't appreciate having her try to herd me around and dictate to me, much as I love her.

I don't like her suspicious attitude—her apparent conviction that my friends and I are not to be trusted. It seems to me that I could see these friends of mine once a week, at least, without doing my marriage any harm or her any injustice.

I tried having one of them at our apartment, but while she was civil enough, she made it plain to me that the idea didn't appeal to her, and she'd prefer it not to happen again.

HUSBAND OBJECTS

I never got into trouble before I met her, and it seems to me that I should be given credit for having enough sense and good faith not to get in any now.

I know she imagines she'll make our marriage more secure if she manages to get rid of what she plainly thinks is some kind of "disturbing influence" that my friends may have. But I am right here to tell you that if she keeps this up, it won't take long for me to get fed up on the whole thing.

I didn't figure on slipping myself into any prison, and I won't stand for it. I figure a husband has a few rights. What do you think? MORT.

Who's right?

Mort's right. A man has a right to his own personal friends and interests, just as a wife has.

Never was there a sillier notion than that marriage can make "two hearts beat as one." We are individuals before marriage, and we stay individuals after marriage. And any marriage will go on the rocks if it tries to crush that right of individuality.

But don't be too impatient with the new wife, Mort. Remember, it's all very new to her, and very difficult. Chances are she honestly thinks that she is taking the right course to protect her home—and many a mean old meddling hen will urge her on.

So, help her find her way around. Stand up for your rights, but say it with smiles, son! And kisses. And how about giving her a couple of tickets to a show, for herself and her girl friend, on the night that you and the boys take in the fight?

Try it and see.

Some "Depression Common Sense" Is Doled Out by Fay King

I'LL STAY WITH YOU FOLKS UNTIL THINGS BREAK BETTER FOR ME AGAIN.
OKAY! BUT YOU'LL HAVE TO ADJUST YOURSELF TO OUR WAYS
OH THAT WAS A SWELL PARTY. EVERY BODY YOU EVER READ ABOUT WAS THERE!
WHEN EVERYTHING WAS COMING HER WAY
FAY KING

By FAY KING.

Many persons who a few years ago were flying high with fine friends have had to seek refuge with relatives until better times come their way again.

An important factor in this for the content of all concerned is that they must adjust themselves to their new surroundings. They must enter wholeheartedly into the routine of a humbler home and not jar upon the serenity of the family circle.

To loaf around, and mope and talk of nothing but the grand times they used to have and the important persons they used to know, is boring to those who have kindly taken them in.

Forget your more brilliant past, fit in where you are, and enter enthusiastically in what the present has to offer.

A Sequel to Heart of a Wife

Madge Is Concerned Because of Katherine's Actions

Katherine's lovely eyes were shadowed with pain as I asked her why she was remembering the lying letter concerning her husband, which Ruth Allen had sent her from South America.

"Because I cannot forget it, Madge," she said quietly, "and because I do not share your belief that it is a lying letter."

My fingers tightened upon her arms and I gave her a loving little shake.

"I ought to take you over my knee," I told her, with an attempt at lightness that I quickly dropped at seeing a spasm of pain pass over her delicate face.

"Oh, my dear; forgive me!" I said. "I know, I understand. But—I cannot change my opinion. That woman was lying when she wrote you that letter. Do you—can you—believe that Jack, even if he had ceased to love you, which I'm sure is nonsense, could give a woman like that any cause for the awful things she said in that letter?"

Katherine's eyes were suddenly glazed, almost as if she were hypnotized into listening to something far away.

"She said—she said—that Jack did not care for me any more; that he wanted his freedom; that she was everything to him; that he constantly wished he was free, so that he could claim her; that I ought to have spirit enough to set him free; that—"

"Stop it!" I told her, giving her a real shake this time. "You are not sane about this. Do you seriously believe that the old Jack we both know so well would ever tell a woman like Ruth Allen, or any other woman, those things about you?

A DIFFERENT MAN

"The old Jack we both know so well," she repeated, and I wondered if she had heard anything else that I had said. "Don't you see, Madge? That's just the point. He isn't the old Jack any more."

"Then he isn't sane," I told her bluntly, "and you must judge him accordingly."

"I've gone all over that," she said brokenly, "and I know better, just as you do; only you're whistling up a dark alley trying to keep my courage up and yours. But it's no use."

She freed herself from my arms upon the words and stood erect, with head slightly thrown back, while every trace of emotion vanished from her face.

"And what a fine nurse she turned out to be!" she said lightly. "This is a good treatment for frayed nerves, I don't think. Now, please forget everything I've said in the last few minutes, and go on; 'wash your dishes:'"

She laughed softly at an old household joke, a reference to Junior who, when as a tiny lad he wished to be alone with me, turned to Katie and said with superb hauteur, "Katie, you go and wash your dishes."

PROMISES TO TELL

The barriers were up again. I knew that as well as if Katherine had suddenly put up a concrete wall between us. Whatever was troubling her—and I suspected that it was some fresh message from Ruth Allen—she would not tell me now. When the wedding festivities were over, and we were settled back in our old routine, I might perhaps be able to find out just what she had meant when, in answer to my impassioned query, "What should I ever do without you?" she had asked me if I were clairvoyant—that I had put my question just at this time.

I knew better than to utter a single syllable of protest, but I put my hands upon either side of her face and looked at her steadily.

"I shall say nothing more until after the wedding," I told her. "Then I'm going to find out."

"I'll tell you then," she said, and upon this promise I went away. I passed through the room into which the small boys were moving back, in order that Hank and Bill, due the next day, might have their own bigbed-sitting room which I had fitted up for them in the summer and on through the back corridor and down the stairs to the kitchen.

But not even the sight of my little maid's cheery face as she sat with Jim, polishing silver and brasses, or the uneasiness which I felt at disturbing her with a request for the "special" dinner which my mother-in-law had demanded for Philip Veritzen, could banish from my mind the very real fright which was mine at the thought of Katherine's leaving me.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Guests of Honor

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—Will you please tell me which lady a man should help while at a dinner party..the one on his right or the one on his left?

2—On which side of the hostess is the guest of honor seated? T.

1—The lady on the right is the one socially under the "care" of the gentleman. But he keeps his social eye on both, and helps either who needs his attention.

2—The man guest of honor sits in the seat of honor, on the right of the hostess. The man to be given the next honor is placed on her left. The woman guest of honor is seated on the right of the host, with the woman who is to be given the second honor placed on the left.

Thanks

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When a person thanks me for a favor or for a gift, what should I say?. F.

"You are very welcome," or "It was such a pleasure for me to be able to do it," or for a gift, "I am so glad that you like it, Mary. That makes me very happy."

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

A Brilliant Safety Play

Defensive lapses frequently give to the Declarer an opportunity to fulfill what would otherwise be an apparently hopeless contract, and all Bridge players should be alert to capitalize defensive lapses of their opponents.

A brilliant example of such capitalization of defensive errors, combined with an unusual safety play, is shown in the hand below, which was played by Mrs. Sidney W. Band with Dr. F. E. Wallace as her partner at the Bridge Club of Toronto recently.

South, Dealer.

Both sides vulnerable.

Dr. F. E. Wallace

♠ A Q J
♡ Q 7 3
◇ 10 6 4
♣ K 9 6 4

♠ 8 6 2 ♡ 5 ◇ A K J 7 3 ♣ Q J 10 5	West / North / East / South	♠ 10 4 ♡ J 10 9 4 ◇ 9 8 2 ♣ A 7 3 2

♠ K 9 7 5 3
♡ A K 8 6 2
◇ Q 5

Mrs. Sidney W. Band

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 NT	Pass
3 ♡	Pass	4 ♠	Pass
Pass	Pass

The bidding follows conventional lines. Dr. Wallace, with 2½ honor tricks, but a 4-3-3-3 distribution, wisely shows his honor strength by a Jump no-trump bid on the first round of bidding and later makes the obvious choice between hearts and spades.

Against the four-spade contract the diamond King was opened, and when West saw the club King in the Dummy he at once shifted to the club Queen. A small club was played from Dummy, East wisely played the seven and West then followed with the club Knave, before cashing the Ace of diamonds. This gave Mrs. Band an opportunity to make the game if she could provide against an unequal division of the heart suit. The club King was played on the Knave, the Ace was played by East, and Mrs. Band ruffed. A low spade was then led to Dummy, and the nine of clubs returned. Here Mrs. Band made her safety play, which distinguishes this from so many ordinary hands. She discarded the diamond Queen, and West won the trick with the Ten. Now, too late, the Ace of diamonds was laid down. South ruffed and led another low spade, which was won in Dummy. The last diamond was ruffed with the spade King, a low heart led to the Queen in Dummy, and Mrs. Band was able to discard the two losing hearts on the Ace of trumps and the now established club 6.

TODAY'S QUESTION

My partner opens the spade King against a notrump bid. I am told that, holding J 8 2, I should play the Knave. Is this true?

Answer—It is better to play the eight, which represents an inferential signal to your partner that you want the suit continued, when Dummy has any possible stopper such at 9 x x x, which your play of the Knave might establish. If Dummy has three small cards of the suit, you should play the Knave.

MAYFLOWER PATTERN 574

Simple Quilts in Two Fabrics

There are some simple, old-time patterns that have endeared themselves to the quiltmaker because they are very easy to do and very good in design when finished. MAYFLOWER is one of these. It lends itself well to a quilt made of two contrasting materials, as shown, or one material in different shades of one color and a light or white background. Even when but two materials are used, the design of the block has a shaded effect that is most pleasing and unusual.

Pattern 574 comes to you with complete, simple instructions for cutting, sewing and finishing, together with yardage chart, diagram of quilt to help arrange the blocks for single and double bed size, and a diagram of block which serves as a guide for placing the patches and suggests contrasting materials.

Send 10c for this pattern to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York City.

How to Keep Well

Baldness, in Many Cases, Regarded as Hereditary

Not long ago I discussed the prevention and cure of dandruff. It was pointed out that neglect of dandruff may cause thinning of the hair and lead to ultimate baldness. Today I want to tell you about some other disorders of the scalp that lead to loss of hair.

Dr. Copeland

Baldness is a common affliction. In many cases it can be traced to some disturbance of the scalp or to impairment of the health. In some instances, the cause cannot be determined.

Many authorities regard baldness as hereditary. This belief is confirmed by the prevalence of baldness in certain families, while generations of other families escape it.

You may have observed a child without any hair at all. This is called "congenital alopecia." Many children are born hairless and go through life without any. This is doubtless the effect of heredity. It is a strange affliction, the cause of which has never been determined.

Some persons have bald spots in unusual places on the scalp. Indeed, there may be many bald patches. This condition is called "alopecia areato." Occasionally hair may return to these bare areas and when it does it is usually white. The affliction is not necessarily limited to the scalp, but may involve the regions of the beard, eyebrows or mustache.

Though this disease has been recognized for centuries, little is known regarding its cause or cure. It was first described by "Celsus," a Greek physician, in the year 3 B. C. Strange as it may seem, the description and treatment outlined by the modern textbooks differ little from Celsus' original thesis.

"Tinea favus" is another strange and unusual affliction of the scalp. The scalp is covered with a yellow crust and the affliction leads to a marked loss of hair. The disease is encountered in children as well as adults. For many years little was known about the cause and treatment of this ailment. Successful measures have since been introduced for the cure of this rare disorder.

Perhaps the most common cause of loss of hair is infection of the scalp. This may be traced to a germ or parasite. Parasitic infections are usually found in children. "Ringworm" is such a disease.

"Tinea capitis" is the medicinal name for an infection of the scalp commonly found in children. This is cured by completely shaving the scalp and the administration of carefully supervised X-ray treatment.

Infections of the scalp which may lead to temporary or permanent loss of hair are usually caused by lack of proper hygiene of the scalp, carelessness in the use of hair brushes and combs, and the neglect of minor disturbances of the hair. Permanent disfigurement can be prevented by prompt and careful attention. Neglect may lead to a chronic disorder that is often difficult to cure.

Barbo imparts color to streaked, faded or gray hair, makes it soft and glossy and takes years off your looks. It will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off. Do not be handicapped by gray hair now when it is so economical and easy to get rid of it in your own home.

POLITICS

Davis Acquittal Makes G. O. P. Path Rough

By MARK SHIELDS

Acquittal of Senator James J. Davis in the federal courts in New York naturally was gratifying to the junior Senator from Pennsylvania.

Mr. Shields

The average observer of politics would think that it was equally gratifying to the Republican regular organization, as no political group likes to have on its doorstep the spectacle of one of its brighter lights being in trouble.

Paradoxically, however, the acquittal of Senator Davis has not smoothed the path of the regulars for the state primary campaign of next year. Of course, none of the politicians wished to see the Senator convicted. Not for an instant.

But their task would have been a lot simpler if through some means he could have been eliminated from the Senate, permitting the organization not only the Governorship, but two Senatorial posts which might be used for trading purposes in a year which promises to be confused and politically dangerous. As it is, there is only the single Senate seat, that now filled by David A. Reed, and the Governorship as worthwhile material with which to attempt to satisfy the various factions in the primary.

The Davis acquittal may have a material bearing on the political fortunes of Senator Reed and State Chairman Edward Martin, of Washington County, as well as any other Western Pennsylvania patriots who have been viewing themselves as gubernatorial timber.

Now we have two United States Sentators from Pittsburgh. Senator Reed would like to continue as one of them. Gen. Martin would like to be Governor. But those two accomplishments will be extremely difficult of fulfillment if the geographical pride heretofore exhibited is not suddenly to disappear.

East Will Certainly Insist on Major Post

The east certainly will insist upon one of these major posts. If it demands the Senate place as a trade-off for the Governor, the story will be too bad for Senator Reed. If it insists upon the governorship as recompense for not opposing Senator Reed, then the door is closed upon Gen. Martin or any other Western Pennsylvanian.

This, of course, is provided that the organization can be held together. And that may not be so simple. Certainly it is not as easy a proposition as if there were three places to be dealt out. There might be an eastern ticket versus a western ticket. If there is factional fighting in the organization—if the friends either of Senator Reed or Gen. Martin (should either be slighted), get to fighting with the eastern or Philadelphia leadership,—why there is looming the figure of Gifford Pinchot whose senatorial ambitions would thrive on such provender.

Guessing now is only guessing, but the picture is darker for Gen. Martin than for Senator Reed. Though it is unusual for the two Senators to come from one city, and though that might be thought to first foul the Senator, it is well known that the Philadelphia outfit would give eight or ten places in the Senate for one Governor. A Senator in the best of times secures comparatively little patronage, and he secures none when he is of the party opposed to that in the White House.

While the Governor has 17,000 jobs within his gift.

That's the politics of the picture following the Davis acquittal, anyhow. It may cause Senator Reed to pay some greater direct attention to organized party affairs. He has always found mixing in the ruck of the game distasteful, but he is nearing the place where he may be compelled to if he expects the ward leaders to support him.

How Local Campaigns Leave Impress on State

The friendly regard of high finance no longer is sufficient to win these ward leaders, a conclusion amply demonstrated by the events of 1932 in the City of Pittsburgh.

The city organization would be delighted to have Senator Reed at its headquarters meeting Wednesday afternoon, when candidates on the local ticket and the vote producers will gather. Visual evidence that the Senator is for the ticket would be well received, and if he has not some good reason for absenting himself the incident of his remaining away may be remembered next year.

And there is another illustration of the manner in which local campaigns have their impress on state campaigns, despite the effort of some gentlemen in the recent primary to prove the contrary.

William A. Magee, councilmanic candidate on both the Republican and Democratic tickets, visited Republican headquarters yesterday and talked with party officials. This was considered something of an omen in view of the rather non-partisan stand Mr. Magee heretofore has taken, but it will have to be backed with something more substantial before it will be generally accepted as an indorsement of the Republican ticket.

No formal invitations are being issued to the Republican mass meeting in Carnegie Hall, North Side, Friday night, which opens the way to excuse the absence of any real forces in party affairs. But the gathering has been sufficiently publicized, and if any real vote forces stay away it will be significant of at least a lukewarm attitude toward the ticket. The organization can't well get away from that.

GUTHRIE BACKS M'NAIR FOR MAYOR

Only Hope for Reform, He Says; Campaign Opens Tomorrow

By MARK SHIELDS

Following the example of Leslie M. Johnson and Grant Curry, Francis S. Guthrie, a member of the Citizens League, today indorsed the mayoralty candidacy of William N. McNair, Democrat, as well as the remainder of the Democratic city ticket.

Mr. Guthrie said:

"Only through the medium of the Democratic party is any opportunity left to the citizens of Pittsburgh of bringing to a termination the era of mismanagement and misgovernment that has featured the present Republican administration in City Hall.

"Accordingly, I am supporting the mayoralty candidacy of William N. McNair and the entire Democratic city ticket. I am convinced that the election of Mr. McNair would mean the restoration of representative government in this community as was established and maintained during the tenure in office of the late George W. Guthrie."

DEMOCRAT UNTIL 1928

Mr. Guthrie was catalogued as a Democrat until 1928, when he supported Herbert Hoover rather than Alfred E. Smith. His indorsement today was uttered as an individual rather than as a member of the Citizens' League, which at a meeting last Friday declined to indorse anyone for the mayoralty, and was silent on the Council ticket except for William A. Magee, nominated by both parties.

Democrats, who will formally open their municipal campaign tomorrow night with a mass meeting in Frick Training School, Fifth avenue, will be met almost immediately by the Republicans, who have scheduled the opening meeting of their campaign for Friday night in Carnegie Hall, North Side.

This represents something of a change in plan, as the Republicans had not planned to open public hostilities until next week.

Tomorrow's Democratic meeting will bring to the same platform all candidates on the municipal and county tickets with the probable exception of William A. Magee for Council and Judge M. A. Musmanno for Common Pleas Court, who have nominations in both parties.

WAR ON COYNE INDICATED

Scheduling the meeting in the Fourth Ward, home of Senator James J. Coyne, the Democrats indicate that the influence of the Senator in Pittsburgh will become the outstanding issue of the general election, as it was in the Republican primary, when Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell and Councilman P. J. McArdle fought unavailingly against Mayor John S. Herron for the Republican mayoralty nomination.

The record of the Republican organization of Allegheny County in the Legislature also will be an outstanding issue, to be contrasted with the votes on social legislation of Representatives John J. Kane and Thomas J. Gallagher, both candidates for City Council on the Democratic ticket.

Friday night's Republican meeting will be a test of party solidarity. All factions, including those which fought the city administration in the primary, will be invited. Any notable absences will be certain to cause comment and indicate a lack of energetic cohesion for Mayor Herron and the remainder of the Republican ticket.

CONLEY NAMED

Democrats of the Third Legislative District at a meeting last night nominated Thomas R. Conley, 4740 Chatsworth avenue, to contest for the vacancy caused by the death of Representative Charles T. Dwyer. Conley, a superintendent of the Consolidated Ice Company, was a candidate last November against Mr. Dwyer.

The Republicans have named as Conley's opponent Peter W. Murphy, 164 Hazelwood avenue.

Newcomers Win In Bridge League

The Pittsburgh Golf Club and the Edgeworth Country Club, new entries in the Interclub Duplicate Bridge League, won their games in the resumption of the matches last night in the Harvard-Yale-Princeton Club quarters. The former won from the Duquesne Club and the latter defeated the Harvard-Yale-Princeton Club. In the other two matches the University Club won from the Keystone Athletic Club and the Pittsburgh Athletic Association from the Engineers' Society.

Police Hold Two Men After Holdup

John DePhillips, 24, and Joseph Pici, 23, residents of Wilmerding, who are believed by police to be former henchmen of the Volpe gang, are in the County Jail today after being held for court on charges of attempting to hold up a Patton Township cafe last week. They were arrested by Wilmerding police last week and were given a hearing before Justice of the Peace John P. Small last night.

N. S. BANK SETS HOME LOAN PRECEDENT

Transfers Mortgages On Court Order To U. S. Agency

The first instance of a Pittsburgh bank transferring mortgages on houses to the Home Owners' Loan Corporation was approved in Common Pleas Court this afternoon.

Judge W. Heber Dithrich granted William D. Gordon, State Secretary of Banking, permission to assign 14 such mortgages from the Bank of Secured Savings, on the North Side, to the government-sponsored corporation. Gordon is receiver for the North Side bank.

The mortgages totaled $59,950.

Attorney David Glick, who presented Gordon's petition, said that the home owners who gave the mortgages will now have 18 years in which to pay off the obligations at 5 per cent interest.

SPUR GARBAGE LAW ACTION

Action on the city's long-delayed garbage and rubbish 1934 contract ordinance is promised today by Councilman Frank L. Duggan, chairman of Council's health committee.

Duggan said late yesterday that he and Dr. William W. McFarland, director of health, were to meet today to discuss the 1934 contract.

Duggan also said that he intends to report the ordinance to Council as quickly as possible. Council, however, has not yet reconvened after its summer recess.

The ordinance, authorizing a contract of one, three or five years, has lain in Duggan's committee for the last six months with no action being taken.

Many civic and business organizations have urged adoption of a long-term contract on the ground that it will encourage more bidders and reduce the cost of garbage and rubbish disposal. Some of these groups maintain that it is now too late in the year for the city to secure a long-term contract by January 1, 1934.

They point out that no firm, aside from the American Reduction Company, holder of the present one-year contract, would have sufficient time to establish a reduction plant and acquire collecting equipment by January 1.

Jewelry, Clothing Taken by Burglars

Iron, Steel Engineers Open 3-Day Convention

Exhibit of Automatic 'Hot Sheet' Catcher Feature of Meet

Technical developments in the iron and steel industry today were being studied by engineers from the leading plants of the country as the Association of Iron and Steel Electrical Engineers opened a three-day convention in the Hotel William Penn.

A business session, with President W. E. Miller, of the Bethlehem Steel Company, presiding, preceded technical sessions held simultaneously by various divisions. The technical sessions, including mechanical, electrical, combustion, lubrication and safety engineering divisions were being addressed by experts.

MACHINE EXHIBITED

One of the newest steel mill machines, a full sized automatic hot sheet catcher, is on exhibition at the convention.

In a demonstration of its actual operation, a girl presses the buttons—the machine automatically catches a sheet of micarta, reverses, and goes through all the motions of whisking hot steel plates back and forth.

G. A. Caldwell, Westinghouse engineer in charge of its development, calls it a "labor-aiding" invention. The machine, which is already installed in several steel mills, he explains, does the heavy work of the human sheet catcher, who stands ready with tongs to grab the hot steel sheets as they come through the rolls.

'ELECTRIC EYE'

In a mill using the new invention, a single operator can push buttons and watch this machine do the work. The "electric eye," photo-electric cell, automatically starts and stops the motors on some of the "catchers."

The convention will continue for three days, and it was estimated 1,500 will attend.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Oct. 17.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

The best omen of international good will is that conferences are getting shorter. Now if they will do away with 'em entirely there will be no war. The biggest one ever held was at Versailles after the war, and all the others held since then was to fix something that was done wrong at that one. The biggest disarmament conference was at Washington in 1922, and all the other disarmament ones have been held to try and fix what was done wrong at that one.

Will Rogers

So the ideal thing is, don't hold the original conference, then you won't have to hold any more to fix anything. The same bunch of delegates go to all of 'em anyhow. So just put 'em on a government pension, let 'em put on their high hats, take movies of 'em, and play like they was at a conference.

Yours, WILL.

PANE CLEANERS STRIKE HERE

Demanding improved working conditions, increased wages and the right to choose their own living quarters, members of Local No. 71, Window Cleaners' Union, were picketing window cleaning establishments in the downtown district today. About 150 men were on strike.

Among the establishments being picketed was the National Window and Office Cleaning Company, with offices at 415 Fourth avenue.

The strikers, according to Charles Fowler, union president, are asking a 75-cent hourly wage. They have been receiving from 35 to 60 cents an hour, he said.

In addition, the men want the privilege of choosing their own living quarters, Fowler said. Many window cleaners and their families have lived at the Acme Hotel, 808-10 Second avenue, owned by D. E. Heckman, manager of the National Window and Office Cleaning Company.

A. L. Pierce, secretary of the Window Cleaners' Union, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, said the strike followed refusal of the employers to meet with union representatives to discuss working and wage conditions.

AUTO KILLS MAN ON SIDEWALK

Struck by an auto which plunged on to the sidewalk when the driver lost control, John Dydek, 36, of 223 Fourth avenue, Aliquippa, was fatally injured early today, according to a Coroner's report.

Dydek, an employe of the Aliquippa plant of the Jones and Laughlin Steel Corporation, was returning home from work shortly after last midnight, police said, when he was struck by the machine of Louis Pfeiffer, of Sheffield. Pfeiffer had swerved his machine to avoid colliding with a bus, police said.

Dydek was removed to the Valley Hospital, at Sewickley, where he died shortly after arrival.

ELECTION FRAUD CASES UPHELD

A move to quash the indictments and to inspect the records of the grand jury, which indicted John J. McGrath, defeated candidate for County Court; Burton J. McKee, and 105 others following the elections last fall failed today in Federal Court.

Judge F. P. Schoonmaker refused both petitions.

James I. Marsh, United States Assistant District Attorney opposed the inspection on the ground that it was a "fishing expedition." McKee and McGrath council, L. P. McGrath, a brother, denied the statement, and said the grand jury had insufficient evidence to indict. He had subpenaed six members of the jury, but Judge Schoonmaker did not permit the members to testify.

Other hearings on a motion to quash for Samuel Mattes, and for bills of particulars in the cases of John J. Verona and John A. Fugassi, political leader, are to be heard later.

HOSTESS AIDED BY PRIZE RECIPE

Prudence Penny is apparently offering a real, helpful service to the housewives of Pittsburgh and vicinity. The daily publication of the prize winning favorite recipes is meeting with many favorable comments by letter and by telephone. One woman writes:

Mr. Mauclair

"I am giving a bridge party luncheon for eight women in my home this week, and I was at a loss to know what to serve. Looking through the favorite recipes Saturday the first one my eyes fell on solved the problem. It was for an ice box sandwich and from the way it reads it looks like the ideal thing for a bridge luncheon. Anyway, I am going to try it this week."

This, however, is only one of the many similar letters that have come to Prudence Penny. The prize winning recipe recently printed for baking five loaves of bread has received many favorable comments. It was a real help to many women.

The Sun-Telegraph awards $15 in daily cash prizes for the best recipes by the housewives of Pittsburgh and vicinity—66 cash prizes every week. There is a daily prize of $5 and 10 other daily prizes of $1 each.

Housewives are invited to submit their favorites to Prudence Penny, Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa. And, by the way, the publication of these prize winning recipes offers a splendid opportunity to assemble an attractive and valuable cookbook. Hundreds of women are clipping them every day.

Louis Jousse, Chef de cuisene at the Schenley Hotel, and Camille Mauclair, Chef de cuisene at the William Penn Hotel, are the judges in this contest.

TO HUSBANDS Who Love Their WIVES . . . . . .

TENDING a furnace using old fashioned bulky, smoky, fuel is at best a disagreeable task. At its worst it is drudgery of the dreariest sort.

No wonder so many wives actually dread the coming of cold weather. They dread it because to them it means six months of dirt and dust and soot and ashes, and extra cleaning every day—six months of climbing up and down the cellar steps playing nursemaid to the furnace — six months of up and down temperatures, alternately chilling and overheating, and all too often causing colds and other illness—six months of hard work that spoils the hands, saps the strength and tries the patience. Don't ask your wife to go through another winter of drudgery like this! Install Automatic Gas Heat. You know you've always wanted it—and now you can have it at a cost so low, at present gas rates, it will surprise you. Ask your Gas Company or Heating Contractor for a Free estimate of the cost of heating your home this modern way. There is no obligation. Call, write, or

SUBWAY STATUS UNCHANGED BY CONFERENCE

The status of Pittsburgh's proposed subway remains practically unchanged today despite a conference between city and Pittsburgh Railway Company officials.

Development of a radically new high-speed street car, however, may possibly terminate in the abandonment of subway proposals, it was brought out at the conference.

Frank R. Phillips, president of the Philadelphia Company, pointed out that the new type car is still in the development stage and said that in his opinion it would be approximately two years before such cars could be placed in operation in Pittsburgh.

He told those attending the conference that he would try to make arrangements for them to take a trial run in the new car. Experiments are now being carried on in Brooklyn, N. Y.

THE RAILWAY'S PLAN

Phillips maintained yesterday that the railways company was in no position to finance a subway, but told of two alternative plans under which the railways company was willing to use a city-owned underground system.

The two plans are:

"The city agrees to pay the railways company a fair fee for the operation of the subway.

"Or that the company use the subway and return to the city any savings it was found to have made as against the cost of operating surface cars."

On a motion presented by L. W. Monteverde, a member of the Transit Commission, it was agreed that the railways company name representatives to confer with the Transit Commission and determine the cost of construction and savings in operating costs of a subway from Duquesne way and Federal street to Fifth avenue and Craig street.

TRAFFIC BALKS SPEED

Monteverde held that the speed of the new street car would be determined by surface traffic regardless of the speed which it was capable of developing in a clear right-ofway.

Explaining the new high-speed car, Thomas Fitzgerald, vice president of the railways company, said the car could accelerate twice as fast as the present cars, could maintain a speed of approximately 42 miles per hour on the level and be equipped with resilient wheels, having rubber between rim and axle, thus materially reducing noise. Another feature is an aluminum or stainless steel body to reduce weight. The new car, he said, would accelerate faster than any automobile.

DATE NOT SET

No definite date to have city officials inspect the new car has been set.

Presiding at yesterday's conference was Councilman P. J. McArdle. Representing City Council were Councilmen W. Y. English, George S. Oliver, Clifford B. Connolley and Frank L. Duggan. The Transit Commission was represented by Henry Tranter, George S. Davison, chairman; L. W. Monteverde, vice chairman; E. A. Young and Winters Haydock.

SIAMESE REBEL TROOPS IN ROUT

BANGKOK, Oct. 17.—(AP.)—Rebel Siamese troops were reported on the run today with loyal forces in vigorous pursuit.

As the scene of battle was pressed farther from the city with the attackers' retreat northward, it was announced unofficially that the rebels had lost 500 killed and 1,000 wounded since the revolutionary movement began.

After a heavy bombardment, government troops recaptured the airport, but when they took possession they found it stripped of planes, armaments and munitions.

Rebel and loyal aviators clashed in the air with heavy casualties after the attackers had taken over the airport yesterday.

Junior Patrol Mail Box

Keep out in the sunshine, fellows.

With snow, fog and bad weather approaching, every fellow and girl ought to soak in as much sunshine as he can before Old Man Winter gets here.

Sunshine, you know, is wonderful medicine and keeps people strong and healthy. And the best way to keep from getting sick is to be so strong and healthy that the disease germs can't make you ill.

Be sure that you get plenty of exercise, too. Lots of kids when they are going to school don't play games and romp around. That's wrong, and the smart fellow will get two or three hours of exercise every day. If the weather is too bad to play out-of-doors exercise inside somewhere. Some fellows we know have punching bags hung up in their attics. And others play basketball in a gymnasium.

Today we got a big letter full of 38 pledges mailed from Belle Vernon. Some of the pledges were for Andy Holet, Jennings Smith, George Lilley and James Jones, all of Pricedale, and Albert Hayden, of West Newton. They all go to La Grange School.

That's enough members to start just about the biggest Junior Patrol yet, or else three patrols with about 12 members in each. Let's go, fellows! Organize one or more Junior Patrol clubs, especially if you all go to the same school, and elect a captain and other officers. The captain, remember, gets the swell orange and black Junior Patrol armband.

Now here's a letter from Ivalyn Forsythe, who lives in Jacob's Creek, Pa., Box 32. She says:

"Vacation days are over now and we are all back in school and very busy. We have organized a Junior Patrol club. We meet once a week and have wonderful times. After our meeting was over we had a potato roast.

"There are 15 in our club. I am sending 10 pledges so I can get an armband. There are two new members, Amelia and Irene Pariesi, and the other eight have lost their pins. We are planning to have a good time Halloween. I hope my letter is not too long. I like to read the Junior Patrol Mail Box."

We're always glad to hear from you, Ivalyn. And we will send your armband right away.

BRAZIL PROBES BORDER KILLING

SANTO TOME, Argentina, Oct. 17. — (AP.) — Government representatives of both Argentina and Brazil today were investigating the slaying of four Brazilians here.

Shot when an Argentine border patrol fired on a launch crossing the Uruguay River from Brazil, the dead include Ari Vargas, nephew of President Vargas, of Brazil; Abdon Motta, cousin of President Vargas' wife, and the owner of the launch, named Rosenbeck, and his pilot.

The guards said they opened fire in the belief the launch bore a group they believed to be seeking the release of persons held in the kidnaping of Col. Juan Garcia Cunha, Brazilian political refugee.

SQUIRE FACES JURY PLOT CHARGE

Justice of the Peace James J. Westwood, of McKees Rocks, will be charged with embracery in an information to be made this afternoon by County Detective David Drexler, according to District Attorney Andrew T. Park. This move, it is said, will climax an investigation seeking evidence against the "brains" of an alleged embracery plot which halted the trial of Westwood and two other defendants last Friday, when Park caused the arrest of a county employe on an embracery charge.

While this development was awaited, attorneys for Westwood and his co-defendants filed a formal motion before Judge Elder W Marshall, in Criminal Court, asking him for a judgment on the whole record.

This would, if allowed after argument before a full bench make Judge Marshall both judge and jury to decide the case on the evidence taken before the judge halted the trial. The defense evidence was practically all in before the case was continued.

In their motion, Attorneys A. M. Oliver, John R. Frankel and James H. Duff asked that the defendants be adjudged not guilty. The attorneys averred that the court erred in not giving binding instructions for acquittal at the conclusion of the state's case; that the commonwealth did not offer enough evidence to support a conviction, and that the court erred in withdrawing a juror.

Westwood and Constables William A. Meissner and Tim Drexler were charged with obtaining about $10,000 from the county by collecting costs in alleged fictitious cases.

What it does in this glass it does in your stomach. Hence its fast action.

For Quick Relief always say "BAYER ASPIRIN" when you buy

Now comes quick, amazingly quick relief from headaches, rheumatism, neuritis, neuralgia. Relief often in a few minutes . . . the fastest, safe relief, it is said, yet discovered.

Those results are due to a scientific discovery by which a Bayer Aspirin Tablet begins to dissolve, or disintegrate, in the amazing space of two seconds after touching moisture. And hence to start "taking hold" of pain a few minutes after taking.

The illustration of the glass, tells the story. A Bayer Tablet starts to disintegrate almost instantly you swallow it. And thus is ready to go to work almost instantly. This unique Bayer discovery means quick relief from pain for you and yours. SPORT COMMENT

By James J. Long

Risk in Changing Pilots. Shift Might Not Aid Bucs. Gibson's Record Not Poor.

Player Slips Unavoidable. No Better Bet Available. Green Leader Big Gamble.

PIRATE CHIEF WORTHY OF NEW CHANCE

It isn't often that you hear any doubt expressed as to who is going to manage any particular big league baseball club in the year following a season in which it has finished as high as second place. Rarely have pilots been changed under such conditions. It is true that the Cub owners dropped Joe McCarthy after he landed his team second in 1930, and the Cardinal bosses went so far as to dismiss Rogers Hornsby and Bill McKechnie following pennant victories in 1926 and 1928, respectively. But in the Chicago case there had been some undermining, and consequent internal trouble, and the owners, besides, had a new leader of experience right at hand. Otherwise, they probably would have stood pat. Cardinal managerial shifts are of little moment, as it is said that under Branch Rickey the field leader does little more than pick the pitchers.

George Gibson

As already remarked, such changes have been rare. A manager who has finished second is generally admitted to have made good and to have done a very creditable job, and a shift at such a time is not considered good baseball. The accepted policy is to let well enough alone. So it's not to be wondered at that experienced baseball men met up with these days express surprise at finding speculation rife in Pittsburgh as to who is going to manage the Pirates next year. It's evidently with puzzled minds that they ask, "Why not George Gibson again? What's the matter with HIM? Where is there anyone else available who would be an improvement?"

COULD ANOTHER PILOT HAVE DONE BETTER?

And now that old sober second thought has had a chance to get a play, many local fans are beginning to ask themselves the same questions. Admittedly, they were keenly disappointed at the failure of the Buccaneers to win the pennant. The disappointment was wholly and thoroughly warranted. The Rovers on paper had looked like the best club in the league, and there is little consolation in second place when you have confidently anticipated a championship.

Always, when a team has failed to come up to expectations, the first inclination is to blame the manager. Sometimes, that's where the guilt exists, but oftener it is not. In accordance with baseball custom, there was strong criticism of Gibson, at first. There still is a lot of it, for that matter. But after calm deliberation since the close of the season and an impassionate review of the pennant race, with judgment unwarped by resentment born of disappointment, many are now willing to concede that it may not have been the manager's fault after all and to ask themselves, in all fairness, if any other pilot could have done any better.

NOT RESPONSIBLE FOR PLAYERS' SLUMPS

Gibby made mistakes, of course. All managers do. They wouldn't be human if they didn't. But in the last analysis, the factor that kept the Pirates from making a better record was the failure of some of the players to perform up to their established standards. Individual slumps and off-seasons come under the fortunes of war. They're part of the game, and the manager cannot be held responsible for them.

It wasn't that the players do not like Gibby. He is immensely popular with all of them. It wasn't that they didn't want to win for him. They tried hard, but there were long stretches during which some of them just couldn't deliver.

WESTINGHOUSE BATTLE TEST FOR SOUTH

By JULIUS LEVIN

Followers of the City High School League are anticipating a real treat Friday afternoon when South High School, favorite to win the crown, opposes one of its strongest opponents in Westinghouse at the Westinghouse High School stadium.

This contest, bringing together two well matched elevens, is the outstanding game of the week locally and should provide plenty of fireworks for the supporters of the two teams.

PAST GAMES CLOSE

South and Westinghouse always manage to play their best football when opposed to each other and the scores invariably are close. Last season Westinghouse emerged with a 7-7 deadlock when it recovered a South fumble in the dying minutes of the game at Langley Field. Two years ago South managed to squeeze out a 7-6 victory over the Silver Lakers.

South, undefeated and untied in the Section I race, must pass this hurdle to remain in the fight for the crown. Westinghouse, tied by Schenley, a team South defeated easily, is all but out of the race.

Schenley plays at Allderdice and Peabody at Fifth Avenue in other Section I games on Friday, while in Section II, Carrick, the present leader, invades Langley Field to oppose Langley. South Hills goes to Oliver and Perry is host to Allegheny at Perry.

ELIZABETH IN TEST

One of the headliner attractions in the class B race is listed for disposal on Friday afternoon when Elizabeth invades East Pittsburgh. Elizabeth, undefeated in six successive games, including five class B opponents, will find Johnny Coleman's eleven its hardest test of the season. Elizabeth has scored 142 points to none for the opposition so far this season, while East Pittsburgh lost to McKees Rocks, tied Springdale and won its two class B games by swamping Freedom and East McKeesport.

Another important game on Friday is a night affair between Scott High, of North Braddock, and Homestead, at North Braddock. Scott is undefeated in its fight for the class A title, now held by Ambridge.

Scott at present boasts five class A triumphs and a 6-6 draw with McKeesport, a class AA opponent. While Homestead does not show an overly impressive record, the Steelers always put up a great battle against Johnny Reed's gridders.

T. M. Rutter, of Munhall High School, chairman of the W. P. I. A. L. soccer committee, is planning a tournament for all members of the league, to be run off next month. Four schools, Bridgeville, Brentwood, South Fayette and Munhall, already have entered teams. The event is open to all members of the W. P. I. A. L. Teams desiring to enroll are asked to call T. M. Rutter at Homestead 9424.

GIZZY VS. VAUGHAN

Battling Gizzy, of Donora, has been matched to box Jimmy Vaughan in one of four 10-round bouts in Cleveland next Monday night. Eddie Simms and Dick Daniels will box the main bout, Sammy Mandell, former lightweight champion, will take on Jackie Davis and Carl Montebano, of Braddock, is paired for a return bout with Paul Pirrone, over whom he holds a knockout victory.

Joe Feldman, of Cleveland, and Jim Rice, of Texas, were on their way back home today with their skimpy purses for their two speedy knockouts at the fists of Buck McTiernan, of Braddock, and Sunny Jim McVey, of the Hill, respectively, at the Moose Temple last night.

This after the referee, Al Grayber, had ordered the purses held up on the ground that both knockouts were feigned.

Feldman went out late in the second round and Rice after only 27 seconds in the first round. Announcement was made today that Grayber later had relented on the matter of the purses, in view of the fact that they did not amount to much, but both fighters will be suspended by the Boxing Commission.

BOTH COUNTED OUT

Referee Al Grayber counted out both men and then ordered their purses held up pending an investigation. It was his opinion, shared by many of the fans, that they were guilty of "diving," and he so reported to the Boxing Commission deputy in charge.

It was an ill-starred show all the way 'round. First of all there were only a handful of customers. Then, after two hard-fought preliminaries, in which Andy Kosel, of Turtle Creek, got the referee's decision over Kid Sterling, Negro featherweight, of Braddock, and Dick Ambrose, of Bloomfield, and Jack Dalcherone, of Springdale, welterweights, fought a draw, the McVey bout came on, and it was over almost before it started.

McVey and Rice, light-heavyweights, did a little preminary sparring, and then Rice took a punch on the chin and went down and stayed there. An argument with the referee in the corner followed.

TWO MISMATCHES

Feldman, a bald veteran, carrying a lot of excess baggage about the waistline, looked very much shopworn compared with the trim McTiernan, who scaled 161 pounds, but he boxed fairly well throughout the first round and until late in the second, when he began to throw swings and leave himself wide open. He went sprawling over the lower rope from a right to the jaw and got up at the count of eight to run into another right, and this time he took the full count with the jeers of the scattered fans ringing in his ears.

Both bouts were sad mismatches, with the losers showing little, if any, inclination to fight.

It was announced that Joey Bazzone, of McKeesport, and Jimmy Belmont, of Braddock, will box the main bout at the Moose next Monday night.

Kosel suffered a broken collarbone in his fight and was treated at the Braddock General Hospital and then sent home.

STAGE RETURN BOUT

John Petro boxes Mike Napoleon in the main event of Jim McGirr's amateur show in McKeesport, Thursday night. It is a return number of a hectic battle. In other bouts, Floyd Walcott meets George Kiltner, Wolf Mallinger boxes Jimmy Gilbert and Jimmy Ferry takes on Johnny Matthews.

HOWDY O'DELL IN ACTION . . . WATCH OUT MINNESOTA, NOTRE DAME, NEBRASKA, ET AL

As All-America Warren Heller went last year, so went the Pitt football team. This year Heller is gone, and the Panthers took their time getting straightened out. They finally hit their stride Saturday against the Navy at the Stadium, with the fine blocking apparent in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph picture at the left, and did Howdy O'Dell, Heller's successor, go places! Howdy's had a hard climb to fame, but he's finally up there where he has a chance to show his stuff for Coach Jock Sutherland. Howdy hails from Iowa. He is a fast starter.

Gopher Eleven in Trim For Battle With Panthers

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 17.—(AP.)—Light work sufficed for Minnesota's regulars yesterday while a big Pittsburgh shadow appeared across Northrop Field to warn of the Panther's approaching invasion Saturday.

Determined to make the Pittsburgh game supply a recompense for two Big Ten ties, the Gophers remained in high spirits despite Saturday's disappointment in the Purdue deadlock.

The Gophers came out of their game with Purdue in surprisingly good condition. The only out-of-the-way development over the weekend was a cold reported by Leslie Knudsen, reserve tackle, who has been ordered to bed.

George Rennix, recovered from effects of a fractured bone in the leg, appeared briefly at left halfback with the regulars. He soon gave way, however, to Francis Lund, regular, whose knee is bothering him slightly.

Western Briefs

SOUTH BEND, Ind. — (AP.)—Notre Dame's game captain for the Carnegie Tech encounter at Pittsburgh Saturday will be Tom (Kitty) Gorman, center. Coach Hunk Anderson was highly pleased with Gorman's performance in the Indiana game when he played 58 minutes. The Irish reserves were showed a few Tech plays yesterday and will scrimmage against the varsity tomorrow.

CHICAGO. — (AP.)—Substitute linemen drew most of the attention of Coach Clark Shaughnessy yesterday at Maroon football drill. For the first time in many days there was considerable contact work. Shaughnessy also began polishing the Chicago offense for the Purdue game Saturday.

ANN ARBOR, Mich. — (AP.)—Rain kept the Michigan squad indoors yesterday learning new running plays for use against Ohio State Saturday and development of a defense against Buckeye formations illustrated by a yearling eleven. Instead of praise for their showing against Cornell Saturday the varsity heard a lecture on the prowess of Carl Cramer, who ran wild against Michigan two years ago.

EVANSTON, Ill.—(AP.)—Coach Hanley excused the Northwestern first stringers yesterday, but sent the reserves through a brisk drill. As the Wildcats failed to score in the two games they have played, Hanley said he would work toward developing a scoring punch this week.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. — (AP.) — Seeking a more aggressive forward wall, Coach Bob Zuppke moved Harry Palmer and Arvo Antilla up to the first-string tackle positions yesterday, relegating Bart Cummings and Red Gragg to the second team. Lindberg and Froschauer were drilled extensively on tackling. Capt. Herm Walser went through a heavy workout on the second team.

MADISON, Wis.—(AP.)—A shakeup in both line and backfield have been ordered by Coach Spears as a result of Wisconsin's showing in the first Big Ten Conference game against Illinois. Pacetti, veteran guard, was shifted to tackle, replacing Ferguson and Kummer took over the guard position. Sanger, reserve quarterback, was promoted to first string backfield and Haworth regained his old post at end, replacing Lovshin.

IOWA CITY, Ia.—(AP.)—Morale at the Iowa football camp sank to a low ebb today with the possible loss of two outstanding players for the Wisconsin game. Francis Schammel first team right guard, was in a hospital with a leg infection which developed Saturday, and Herman Schneideman, veteran blocking halfback, was called to Quincy, Ill., by the death of his father.

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. — (AP.) — News that Don Veliar, injured quarterback, is expected to be able to play against Northwestern Saturday, cheered the Indiana football camp yesterday as the varsity engaged in a light workout and listened to criticism of faults shown in the Notre Dame game.

LAFAYETTE, Ind.—(AP.)—Coach Jobie Kizer announced that Ed Skoronski and George Dennis, sophomores, have earned regular places in the Purdue football line at center and guard, respectively. Other changes may be made, but Kizer intends to experiment this week before making definite decisions. A short drill was held yesterday.

TARTAN COACH NEVER BEATEN BY IRISH

By JESS CARVER

If (there is that word again) you are inclined to play hunches, it might be well to sock the roll down on Tech to beat Notre Dame Saturday afternoon.

Playing hunches, unless you can stay with 'em, is a pretty good way to make an early trip to the poorhouse, but in this case, there is something tangible to go along with the old premonition. That something is a pretty fair football team out at Tech, one easily worth a bet.

During his playing days, the Notre Dames, even under the great Rockne, never were able to beat Howard Harpster, twice directing victorious Tartan elevens against the Irish, one here and one in South Bend. Harp made 'em take it and like it; at least, he made 'em take it. No one yet has been able to make the Irish like defeat.

TECH HAS CHANCE

It would appear that the Tartens have a 50-50 chance against the Notre Dames this week. To date the South Benders have been held to a scoreless deadlock by Mike Getto's Kansas Jayhawks and had to step on it plenty hard to beat stuborn Indiana last week, 12 to 2.

Tech, after winning the opener against Temple with ease, ran into plenty of trouble at Cincinnati last Saturday and barely nosed out Xavier, 3 to 0.

All of these boys, with the possible exception of Stewart, will be ready for battle with the Irish next Saturday, but each of them took a lacing Saturday.

Stewart hurt his arm, and Lewis' leg still shows a tendency to "kink" when he becomes tired. Burzio has a badly strained back. Bevevino is the Plaid's only reliable quarterback, but he is tired from his constant service against Temple and Xavier.

PANTHERS WARNED

Scout Hank Hangartner shuffled through his voluminous notes yesterday as Pitt's Panthers were called together for their first drill for the game with Minnesota at Minneapolis Saturday and reported that compared to the Gophers, the Navy game would

Cadets Get Down to Hard Work for Illinois Battle

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—(AP.)—There's a considerable mixture of anticipation, disappointment, and viewing-with-alarm all tangled up in Army's football work this week at West Point.

The anticipation comes of the first big test of the season against Illinois at Cleveland Saturday, the disappointment from the fact that this is the only out-of-town contest of the year the corps of Cadets will not attend, and the alarm from the power the Illini displayed walloping Wisconsin, 21 to 0, Saturday.

For three straight weeks, Army has ridden through practice foes, Mercer, V. M. I. and Delaware, and not even young Head Coach Lieut. Gar Davison, has any idea as yet what manner of success against major foes is in store for the lightest, but the fastest eleven the Cadets have had in 10 years.

Fearful reports were turned in yesterday by the scouts who saw Illinois wallop Wisconsin, particularly concerning the ramblings of Les Lindberg, the sophomore back, who appears to be one of the best in the Big Ten.

Eastern Briefs

PRINCETON, N. J.—Princeton's football varsity settled down to work yesterday for the Tigers' first crucial test of the season, the game with Columbia here Saturday. Fritz Crisler sent the squad through a long drill in blocking and passing to iron out imperfections that cropped up in last week's contest with Williams. The squad was in fine condition with the exception of Dan Hinman, veteran center, who still is on crutches.

NEW YORK.—At Columbia, Lou Little called for the first secret workout of the season with the emphasis on forward passing, both on offense and defense. A change in the line up sent Otto Schwartz in at fullback in place of Maniaci and the former probably will start against the Tigers. Capt. Cliff Montgomery did all the passing for the first team.

PHILADELPHIA.—Harvey Harman, of Penn, resumed his search for a good offensive fullback and drew Paul Stofko, a tackle, out of the line for a shot at that position. With only one game under their belt, the Quakers face the Dartmouth game with not a little apprehension.

WASHINGTON, Pa.—Hank Day yesterday went to work on his Washington and Jefferson College varsity for the night fray with Xavier University at Cincinnati Friday. W. & J.'s 14-0 setback at the hands of Detroit University and Xavier's showing against the Tartans of Carnegie Tech are things Coach Day has to adjust in the minds of his Prexy gridders this week. The Presidents came out of the Detroit battle in fairly good shape physically. Reed, halfback, suffered a broken jaw and Ercius, an end, aggravated a leg injury.

ITHACA, N. Y.—Despite the battering by Michigan's great line, Cornell's varsity reported in good shape as preparations for the Syracuse game began. The regulars were excused from heavy work, but the second and third stringe held scrimmage

Boston Redskins Best Ground Gainers

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—(AP.)—The Boston Redskins lead all National Professional Football League rivals in ground gained.

The Redskins have piled up a total of 1190 yards with the New York Giants second with 1116, the Portsmouth Spartans third with 1031 and the Green Bay Packers fourth with 1001. The Spartans have the best defensive record, permitting the opposition only 619 yards.

Bears Send Nesbitt To Chicago Cards

CHICAGO, Oct. 17. — (AP.) — Dick Nesbitt, Chicago Bears' right halfback, has been sold to the Chicago Cardinals, according to Dr. David J. Jones, Cardinal president.

Nesbitt will join the Redbirds immediately and will accompany the team on its Eastern invasion of the National Professional Football League, which starts in Boston Sunday.

ARMY ATHLETIC POLICY HIT

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—(AP.)—William J. Bingham, Harvard's director of athletics, feels that if the economic situation of the last few years has accomplished nothing else, it has succeeded in ridding football in particular and college athletics in general of the reformers.

Bingham told a gathering of the Harvard Club last night that he always had felt there had been a good deal of hypocrisy in connection with public agitation over sporting gate receipts.

Thomas W. Slocum, former president of the Harvard Club, however, surprised the gathering by suggesting that West Point be barred from competition with major easter colleges because of the academy's failure to adopt the three-year varsity eligibility rule.

EKKIE, WINOOKA RACE OFF

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—(AP.)—The match race between the equine champions of two countries, Equipoise, of the United States, and Winooka, of Australia, tentatively scheduled for Belmont Park, November 7, appears definitely off.

Failure of C. V. Whitney, owner of Equipoise, and Rufe Naylor, manager of Winooka's tour, to agree on the distance is said to have ruined prospects of the first international match race since Papyrus crossed the Atlantic to meet Zev 10 years ago.

AGONY OF 'DOPED' RACE HORSE REVEALED

SORRY PLIGHT OF ANIMAL STIRS PITY

CHAPTER VII
Horse Doping

By FRANK G. MENKE

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—This is the story related by one of the federal narcotic agents who witnessed the "doctoring" of almost 250 race horses:

"When 'doctoring' was to be done, the preliminaries rarely varied. First of all, a Negro stable hand would saunter along with two buckets and enter the stall. One bucket always contained water; the other held a miscellaneous assortment—bandages, cotton, liniment, rubbing alcohol, a giant syringe, etc. Later a white man would arrive and enter the stall.

"A barn door usually is in two sections, upper and lower. The lower part is kept closed so the horse cannot run out. The upper part can be shut if the owner or trainer wishes to obstruct the view of the horse or himself. Yet, I recall only a very few instances when owners or trainers, having gone to the stalls, closed the upper part of the door.

Doses Are Timed

"Timing in the administration of 'tonic' is vital. Given too soon, or too late, it is a wasted gesture. Although some drugs are administered only 20 minutes before post time, and others as much as 1 hour and 15 minutes prior to a race, the standard prescriptions called for dosing between 50 and 60 minutes before the contest.

"I noticed, frequently, that the crowd cry of 'They're off' announcing the start of, say, the first race, was the signal for giving a 'tonic' to a horse that was being 'readied up' for the third event on the day's program. As they started in the second race, the 'doctoring' was done for the contestants in the fourth race—and so on.

"When the time arrives for the 'doctoring' the Negro stable hand almost always assists the owner or trainer. If one or both men are not tall enough, they stand on little stools. The Negro grabs the horse's head and hold it until the white man completes the operation with a hypodermic, a spraying syringe, or with powder or pills.

Wracking Scenes

"I have viewed many wracking scenes in my lifetime, and seen many pitiful sights, but none created a sympathy such as I have felt for the drug-crazed animals when their running is done. Theirs is a torture from which there is little relief for many endless hours.

"The drugged horse usually comes back from the race with the narcotic still functioning within him. His eyes generally are bloodshot; they have an insane light. The nerves are rioting within the poor animal and he leaps and lunges. His impatient handlers often beat him brutally trying to quiet him.

"As soon as possible, the horse is given a two-ounce dose of olive oil or spirits of nitre. When I asked the reason for this medicine, I was told that each helped nature in ridding the animal's system of some of the health-wracking power of narcotics.

"The horse then is walked around until his handlers tire of the task. The longer they walk the animal, the less frightful is the horse's plight. But they have little concern for the horse then. Temporarily he has ceased to be a racing tool. He now is little more than a nuisance. So he quickly is put into his stall and left to his own wracking misery.

Horse in Agony

"Just how the horse is affected in the aftermath of drugging with narcotics I cannot really say. Apparently he has a terrific, brain-rattling headache, and his agony must be akin to that of a human with a violently aching tooth who suddenly has been hand-cuffed and cannot massage or touch the source of the all-conquering pain.

"I slept one night near a stall where a horse was confined which had been 'doctored' for the last race of the day—a contest, incidentally, he had failed to win. They hadn't walked him much. They seemed angered. They had beaten him, put him in his barn for the night. He plunged around for a while and then did what all horses do which have been dosed with cocaine—he began battering his head against the wall, diving at it at intervals of about one minute each. Hour after hour, the poor beast, perhaps hoping he might, by cracking open his skull, release the torturing pressure in his brain, plunged headlong against the solid wooden wall.

"A crash! A shudder! Then silence! Another crash! Silence! Crash — shudders — silence! An hour of it, in such montonous repetition it almost terrified me. Crash! Rattling walls! Silence! Stirring hoofs in the straw of that stall. Another crash! Then that ominous silence. I shut my ears, but could not quite close out the ghastly sound. Crash! Tremble of barn timbers! A gasping breath like a moan! Silence!

Ordeal Repeated

"Near dawn, exhausted, I dozed. Awakening soon, I heard again that crashing. But the impact was more feeble. An hour later there was a newer sound in the stall—a thud on the floor, a crackling of straw, as if some great bulk had pitched into it.

The crashes ended; the shuddering of the wooden walls ceased.

"A while later a stable hand arrived, opened the stall door. When he walked in, I greeted him and looked through the door. The horse was on the floor—crumpled as if hit with a hundred hammers.

"Four days later, I saw the same horse entered for another race. An hour in advance of paddock time, I loitered around the stall. The trainer came, jaunty, brisk, cheerful. A Negro grabbed the head of the horse, forced open his mouth and the trainer sprayed in a solution I had seen him make.

"I immediately moved my quarters, knowing I could not endure another night of hearing a poor dumb animal, agonized by a combination of drugs, trying to gain ease by battering his head against a wall, hour after hour, all the night through.

"Ironically, enough, I read a story the next day, about the trainer of that horse, which referred to him as 'a popular young sportsman.'"

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: THE FINANCIAL WATERLOO—In 1897-98 Joseph Leiter, young Napoleon of finance and son of Levi Leiter, Chicago merchant prince, brought about a most dramatic episode in attempting to corner the wheat market. Wheat which in April, 1897, was worth from 64 to 70 cents a bushel touched a high of $1.85 in June, 1898. As a result of counter activities of a bull clique led by Armour, Leiter's "corner" collapsed on June 11, 1898. Wheat slumped to 90¾ on the Monday following and Leiter, who held actual grain and futures to the tune of more than 40,000,000 bushels, is said to have lost $45,000,000 in a single day. This included an actual cash loss of $9,750,000, which was assumed by Levi Leiter. But the country at large was benefited by this speculation to the tune of more than $150,000,000. Farmers prayed for Joseph during the long wheat boom, and the gold that flowed into this country for high-priced sales abroad is said to have pulled the United States out of the depression. GERMANY IS IN FRANCE—Allemagne is a little town in the canton of Riez Department of Basses Alpes, France. Its most distinguished citizen was Pierre-Leger-Prosper Allemand, who rose to the mayoralty of Riez and represented his district in the Paris Chamber for many decades. Allemagne means "Germany" in French, and Allemand means "German." During the World War pressure was brought upon the Allemands of Allemagne to change the name of their city, but this they declined to do.

Britons Challenge For America's Cup

LONDON, Oct. 17.—(AP.)—The Royal Yacht Squadron today announced it had filed a formal challenge with the New York Yacht Club for the America's Cup, famous yachting trophy which the late Sir Thomas Lipton tried so long to win for England. The challenging yacht is Tom Sopwith's Endeavor, now being built at Gosport.

Charles Nicholson, famous boat designer and builder, who drew the plans for two of the Lipton Shamrock's, fourth and fifth, has designed Endeavor.

It is understood the new yacht is of all steel construction and constructed along the same lines as the all-steel Valsheda, owned by W. L. Stephenson, which made such a fine showing at Cowes last summer.

OHIO GOLFERS VICTORS OVER LOCAL PROS

By TOM BIRKS
Staff Correspondent.

ELYRIA, O., Oct. 17.—Playing sparkling individual golf and teaming up advantageously, the Ohio professional golf team, captained by Jack Thompson, of Youngstown, secured revenge on a team of Tri-State district pros here yesterday for a setback suffered at the Wildwood Country Club, Pittsburgh, two weeks ago. Yesterday the Ohions defeated the tri-staters, 14½ to 6½.

The Tri-State golfers won the first match, 7 to 6, so the final score on the home and home series stands, Ohio 20½, West Penn 13½. His was the first inter-state series ever arranged, and it is going to be an annual affair.

OHIOANS TAKE LEAD

The Buckeye's took a commanding lead in the morning round, winning six out of seven foursomes, Walter Johnstone, of Butler, and Guido Paroline of St. Clair, the lone Pittsburghers to win, defeating Bindbeutel and Tufford, 4 and 3.

The Pittsburgh tutors faired better in the afternoon individual matches, Al Espinosa, Ohio state champion, squared matters with Ted Luther, defeating the Valley Heights professional, 2 and 1, in a great match. Vince Eldred, West Penn champion and Reggie Myles ran true to form, Myles winning on the eighteenth green, 1 up.

In the single matches, Johnstone defeated Black, 6 and 5; Rader Jewett defeated Al Alcroft, 1 up; Andy Velican beat Crowder on the home green, 1 up, while Pete O'Hara and Dave McKay, together with Emil Loeffler, finished all even for the other Pittsburgh points.

The afternoon matches were played in a terrific wind and rain storm. The fairways were great, but greens prevented accurate shots. The summary:

TWO-BALL FOURSOMES

Al Espinosa-Ed Kerby, Cleveland, defeated Ted Luther-Peter O'Hara, Pittsburgh, 5 and 4.

Bob Shave-Lloyd Gullickson, Cleveland, defeated Perry Del Vecchio-Emil Loeffler, Pittsburgh, 4 and 3.

Jack Thompson-Harry Rees, Cleveland, defeated Vincent Eldred-Nelson Zimmerman, Pittsburgh, 2 and 1.

Reggie Myles-Waldo Crowder, Cleveland, defeated Charley Manning-Phil Erath, Pittsburgh, 6 and 5.

Bob Randall-Wilson Crain, Cleveland, defeated Andy Velican-Jack Kennedy, Pittsburgh, 3 and 1.

Albert Alcroft-Clark Black, Cleveland, defeated Rader Jewett-Dave McKay, Pittsburgh, 5 and 4.

Guido Paroline-Walter Johnson, Pittsburgh, defeated Carl Bindbeutel-*Leonard Tufford, Cleveland, 4 and 3.

BUC MANAGER TO BE MADE KNOWN SOON

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Announcement of the Pirate manager for next season soon will be made by the club president, Bill Benswanger. The ranking official of the Buccaneers indicated today that he wished to dispose of the matter soon, but Benswanger did not care to discuss any of the intimate details of the important question.

Whether George Gibson is to remain at the helm for another season is information known only to the Pirate officials. The viewpoint of the average fan is that the mantle will either remain with Gibson or it will fall upon the team's captain, Pie Traynor. The local magnate is known to be a booster for the playing type of manager.

Benswanger and his aides will close on the question in plenty of time for the pilot of the club to get into intimate touch with the winter meetings. The minor league meeting of this year will be held next month at Galveston, Tex. The smaller circuits are convening earlier than usual; as a rule they wait until the first week of December so that their pow wows will dovetail with the annual sessions of the major leaguers.

Baxter Gets Close Win Over Allderdice

Baxter, Carrick and Gladstone turned in scholastic soccer victories in games played yesterday.

Baxter nosed out Taylor Allderdice, 2 to 1. Hart, center on the Baxter eleven, scoring both his team's goals. Carrick walloped Shady Side Academy, 5 to 0, and Gladstone blanked Peabody, 3 to 0.

DUKES FACE BIG TEST

DETROIT FRAY SURE TO BE STRUGGLE

It is no cinch assignment confronting Duquesne University's Dukes as they prepare for the game here Friday night with the University of Detroit Titans. Day by day, the locals are realizing more and more that they will be squaring off against their toughest adversaries of the season to date in Gus Dorias' men.

Bucknell was tough enough to get past, but in Detroit, the locals will be facing a faster eleven and one equally heavy. The Michiganers figure to play smarter football than did the Bisons, which will not aid the local cause one bit.

DUKES' VARSITY READY

Against Western Maryland last week, Coach Elmer Layden took a long gamble and won. At the last minute, he decided to start his shock troops against the Green Terrors, saving the regulars as much as possible. Had the Terrors been a bit more ready for the game with the locals (they started practice the day after the Dukes played their first game), it might have been too bad for the Red and Blue, but fortunately things turned out as Coach Layden planned.

But there will be no shock-trooping against Detroit. The Titans are big and fast and as all Dorias elevens, well drilled and smart.

TITANS CHECK ATTACK

DETROIT, Oct. 17.—Development of more ability on offense by the forward line is the principal problem confronting Coach Charles E. Dorais, of the University of Detroit, this week. There will have to be a decided improvement in this department if the Titans expect to enter the game with Duquesne with much of a chance to win. The performance of the line on offense in the three games already played never would do against a team as strong as the Dukes have shown themselves to be in winning five straight this season.

The principal trouble with the line probably is lack of experience. As it started the Washington and Jefferson game, there were three sophomores on duty and one transplanted fullback working at a guard job. Only the two ends, Reisterer and Storrie, and Barrett, left tackle, occupied positions that they held last year. Detroit's style of offense, the Notre Dame shift, demands a lot of action on the part of the guards and these positions have given Line Coach Bud Boeringer his principal trouble.

Goal Lines

The ending of the Minnesota-Purdue game Saturday startled the 26,407 fans who witnessed the 7-7 tie. When the timer's gun was fired most of the spectators believed there were several minutes left to play. Even the players were surprised at the abrupt ending. The timekeeper on the Purdue bench afterward said his watch showed three minutes left to play when the gun was sounded ending the game, while the timekeeper on Minnesota's bench had two minutes and 45 seconds more of play.

The clash between Westminster and Thiel at Greenville Saturday ought to be a "natural." Neither team has won a game this season. Westminster lost to Geneva, 20 to 0, and to Slippery Rock, 13 to 7. Thiel was beaten by Geneva, 20 to 6, by Slippery Rock, 13 to 0. Westminster also bowed to St. Bonaventure earlier in the season.

Football practice at St. Lawrence College doesn't end when the sun goes down. All the members of the team live in the same dormitory and when they are ready for bed Coach Tom Sullivan routs them out for a half hour of running through plays in the building's gymnasium.

Young Josiah McCracken, who has been promoted to varsity quarterback at Penn, has taken a roundabout route into American football. McCracken comes from Shanghai, China, and learned the game there, but his training came from his father, who was a star guard at Penn some years ago.

Syracuse may now speak of Ohio Wesleyan as a minor opponent without blushing. The Battling Bishops were originally scheduled with that in mind, but they refused to accept the nomination until they were beaten, 40-0, Saturday. In seven previous games they had taken only one defeat, winning four games from the Orange and tying two.

Long's Sport Comment

impeding the progress of the club, Lloyd started the season with the reputation of being one of the most valuable players in baseball, but he simply couldn't get going. Take such a star away from any club, and it can hardly fail to lose a great many more additional games as a result than the five that separated Pittsburgh from first place at the finish. It wasn't Gibson's fault that the younger Waner fell from a batting average of .333 in 1932 to one of only .276.

Lloyd Waner

Nor can Gibson be held accountable for the failure of Freddie Lindstrom to play up to normal for a long time after the season opened; for the sudden loss of pitching effectiveness by Steve Swetonic, Heinie Meine and Bill Swift; for the fact that during a long period the Bucs had only one hurler in Larry French; for whatever happened to keep Tony Piet from continuing to fit into a winning picture, or for the collapse of the catching department that affected the pitching and hurt the whole club. Those are the things that make a manager turn gray. He can do nothing to prevent or remedy them. Deals were attempted for new men, but they fell through because the players demanded in exchange were needed more than those sought.

DEPENDABLE SUCCESSOR NOT EASILY FOUND

Changing managers is a risky undertaking at any time unless a club owner is in a position to feel sure that he can better himself. Players are not traded unless a club is convinced it can strengthen itself by so doing, and along the same line of reasoning it would be poor policy to drop a manager, particularly a two-time second placer, unless the magnate knew he had a successor available who would be certain to do better. And there isn't a whole lot of room for improvement on second place.

President Bill Benswanger will be doing only a duty to his club and his patrons if he gives that angle full consideration and hestitates about making a change unless he sees available a better bet than Gibby. You can't step into the first department store and pick a good manager off the counter. A satisfactory new pilot would have to be not merely as good as Gibson, but BETTER, and where would you turn to find him?

TRYING TEAM MEMBER MIGHT RUIN PLAYER

Fans who have clamored for a change have suggested that this or that playing member of the Pirates be appointed to succeed Gibson. Theres' another hazard in that direction which President Benswanger must consider. He might not only fail to get a good manager, but might ruin a valuable player into the bargain.

Not all playing managers succeed as pilots and at the same time retain their old form as active athletes. Managerial duties involve a tremendous strain, and some players have not the temperament to shoulder the extra burden. If they are given to worry, their playing suffers. You might weaken the club by hurting the new pilot's playing and yet not get a successful manager after all.

It's all well enough to take the chance when you're forced to make a managerial change, when one pilot has been a complete flop, but the advisability of a hurried shift is open to question when the incumbent has twice come home in the runner-up position. Six other managers out of eight have finished in lower positions.

LESS SUCCESSFUL MEN RETAINED ELSEWHERE

As measured by the retention of less successful managers elsewhere in the majors, it would appear that Gibson, in fairness, could hardly be denied another chance. President Benswanger surely can find plenty of support there for his action if he decides against making a change. Max Carey finished only sixth with a supposed pennant contender in Brooklyn, but has been given a new contract. Lew Fonseca made a similar finish with the White Sox as a vastly strengthened club, but has been retained. Neither Carey nor Fonseca won half of the year's games.

Max Carey

Bill McKechnie squeezed into the first division with the Braves only at the last minute, but got a new five-year contract. The Reds lost 94 games, but Donie Bush will be kept. Club owners realize that it isn't always the manager's fault, and that a known managerial quantity is to be preferred over an experiment. Immediate pennant successes like those of Charley Grimm, Bill Terry and Joe Cronin stand out as rare exceptions in a long list of failures.

And after all, there may not have been anything discreditable in failing to beat out the Giants this year, in view of the fact that in the World Series those same Giants were able to beat the powerful Senators four times in five games. That was the National League's quickest and most decisive World Series victory since 1922, so the Giants evidently were not such a poor club as to warrant any complaints about finishing second to them.

Gibson has missed out for one pennant by only four games and for another by only five. In two years, his Pirates have won 173 games, a 1932-33 record beaten in the National League by only the Cubs, with 176. Nobody wants to tell President Benswanger his business. He knows it himself, as well as any man in baseball. But he must consider a lot of things before making a choice, and the possibility that a new manager might not do as well as Gibson must not be overlooked. The club could go further and do worse than retain Gibby for one more chance.

Greenwood Scores Two Cue Victories

The annual sectional qualifying tournament at three-cushion billiards opened yesterday at the Crookston Parlors, East Liberty.

In the opening game, Billy Greenwood defeated M. P. McClure, 50 to 40. Greenwood had a high run of 5.

In the evening matches, John Bernard defeated Dale Campbell, 50 to 43, each player having a high run of 4 and in the final match of the day, Greenwood won his second game, defeating Campbell, 50 to 41. Only 50 innings were required for this game. Greenwood had a high run of 5.

In today's matches Bernard meets McClure at 2 o'clock; McClure takes on Campbell at 7 o' clock, and Greenwood faces Bernard at 9 o' clock.

MAXIE HELD TO DRAW

ABLE QUARTER HELD NEED OF NOTRE DAME

ANDERSON'S CHOICE

Detroit over Duquesne.
Pitt over Minnesota.
Carnegie over Notre Dame.
Northwestern over Indiana.
Ohio State over Michigan.
Purdue over Chicago.
Wisconsin over Iowa.
Army over Illinois.

By HEARTLEY W. (HUNK) ANDERSON,
Notre Dame Football Coach.

The Notre Dame system of football requires a quarterback who can first of all block, and secondly, think. Last year we were fortunate in having three good thinking quarterbacks. They were Chuck Jaskwhich, Emmet Murphy and Laurie Vejar. My selections during the season were based on the way these men blocked.

Hunk Anderson

Now we have a set who seem incapable of either thinking or blocking. Injuries have deprived us of a pair of fine blocking quarterbacks who were still awaiting their baptism of fire in actual competition.

The problem now is to find a quarterback who can do a little blocking and then carry out instructions. I do not blame my quarterbacks too much for mistakes in our opening game with Kansas. Most of them are sophomores, and mistakes are to be expected.

The quarterback's problem is greater now than it ever was in the past. This is true because defenses are more flexible than they used to be. The defensive team will line up differently when it is first down and 10 to go than it will on second down and small yardage, or third down with either large or small yardage.

MANY UNCERTAINTIES

A coach usually can analyze these situations at a glance, and he can send in quarterbacks who will have instructions as what plays to call. You can add to the many uncertainties of football the fact that quarterbacks, often, even when properly instructed, go in and call the wrong plays.

Some of the other uncertainties of football include injuries which can wreck a powerful team, unexpected strength from the opposition, the frame of mind of both teams, the failure of great practice stars to come through in the games, and weather conditions.

We have lost five prospective 1933 stars, each in a different way. Jack Robinson, Jr., varsity center as a sophomore last year, and one of the finest centers I've ever coached, is not back this year. He was operated for a cyst in his eye, infection developed and he has to stay out of football to guard against losing his eyesight.

George Melinkovich, the 1932 high scorer and a fine fullback, became sick last June, lost 35 pounds, and can't play this year because competition might injure his heart.

STARS ARE LOST

Al McGuff, who was being groomed for the varsity quarterback post last spring, did not return to school for reasons of his own.

Tony Mazziotti, sophomore quarterback, who was all set after the first scrimmage to replace McGuff, is lost for the present because of a knee injury and may not ever be as good as he was before.

It's these little uncertainties, though, that make football the interesting game it is.

Majors to Cut '34 Playing Season

CHICAGO, Oct. 17.—(AP.)—Major league club owners have agreed to open the 1934 baseball season April 17, and close September 30, with the same schedule of 154 games, President Will Harridge of the American League revealed on his return from the East.

The season will be one week shorter than this year.

LEVINE GETS HOLE IN 1

Harry Levine, former Pitt basketball star, turned in a hole in 1 on the No. 8 hole of the Oakland Beach course over the week-end, playing in a threesome with W. E. Duckworth and Capt. E. C. Speer in a party headed by Foster J. Hartman. The hole is 176 yards long.

TARTANS DRILL FOR IRISH

resemble a pink tea. Quoth Hank:

"These guys are big and tough. They average 190 pounds on the line and a pound better than that in the backfield. They charge hard and like it rough. They kept Purdue's highly touted backfield bottled up all afternoon on Saturday and outgained it two to one. So look out."

Fortunately, very fortunately, the Panthers came out of the game with the Middies O. K. physically. Dutch Weisenbaugh is very much back in the race for the fullback job, although Izzy Weinstock's work so far has left little to be desired; Bob Hoel has Si Meredith, the clever-kicking West Virginian, hustling for the left tackle job, and George Shotwell only is a step behind Nick Kliskey for the starting center assignment.

Globe-Trotting

—By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN—

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

Now that the missionary gentlemen, who so kindly came down here last week to tell of their strange experiences in strange places, are gone, I am going to tell a story about several of them, who, for a moment wished they were back in darkest Africa.

In the few gay minutes that precede a broadcast I introduced them to Dr. James P. Kerr, our city controller.

Dr. Kerr acknowledged the greeting and thereupon he was enthusiastically commended upon a speech that they heard him give to the conference, at which they were delegates.

After the handshaking and words of praise died down, the controller smilingly said that he wasn't the same Dr. Kerr that made the speech. Everybody but but me was thinking what to say to relieve that awkward feeling. As for me I was praying that the bell would ring.

I want to say here that Dr. Kerr was very gracious in insisting that Dr. Wu from China have his place before the microphone.

Dr. Kerr's Speech on city finances will be announced very shortly.

Tuesday night, tomorrow, I expect to have Creatore, the famous composer and band leader, with me. This is his first appearance in Pittsburgh, in 11 years.

I met "Howdy" O'Dell and Izzy Weinstock at a banquet for Sun-Telegraph Home delivery boys.

O'Dell disproves the idea that football heroes are usually speechless in public.

He told a story of an earlier speech he made before the inmates of a feeble minded asylum. During the course of his comment one woman rose from her chair, tore at her hair and fled from the hall, shrieking, "Gosh, he's terrible."

When he finished his few words he was warmly congratulated by the superintendent, who told him that he was the only one who ever made that woman say a sensible word.

He was a greater hero than ever to the newsies.

'Plays and Players' On WCAE Today

Microphone Terrifies Mencken

By AIRCASTER

Should they decide to look into the phenomenon, psychologists would find plenty of food for thought in the mischievous microphone.

There is something about the little mouthpiece capable of crushing the strongest ego, or stimulating the timid soul unreasonbaly.

The dreadful instrument has not only a mesmeric effect—it does strange things to peoples' voices.

Its magic changes a pip-squeak tenor into a Lorelei. A naturally beautiful singer may sound like a rusty axle.

The most nonchalant of individuals wilt before the tiny disc, and the shyest become cocksure and expansive with startling abruptness.

McCormike

John McCormack, the famous tenor, will show you a bit reluctantly, a small black book necessitated by microphone dread. When he sings for the air customers, McCormack scans the pages of the inevitable volume.

On the concert stage, there's no need for it. The tenor is not bothered by a housefull of audience.

But when he stares at a microphone his memory cells freeze. He can't remember lyrics. The metallic maw of the mike has a mesmeric effect.

Only the book bans the Banshee.

Scared Babbitt

In the case of Henry L. Mencken, the microphone conjures sheer fright.

America's severest critic can't shake off the chilling paralysis inflicted by the cyclopean countenance of the microphone.

He has never been on the air, but he has been rehearsing for his debut tomorrow night and the bold, bad man of literature who genuflects to none, is in terror of the sinister disc.

He has requested M. H. Aylesworth to keep everybody out of the studio, lest he collapse during his inaugural.

Not even the anticipation of realizing his secret ambition of leading a band will stop the Mencken knees from knocking together.

No Soap!

Quite the reverse is true of the third celebrity. For him the mike provides delicious delusions of grandeur.

And this gent is sulking and muttering, because he has been frustrated again.

He has battered every stronghold to forbidden territory, except that which guards radio.

He has tried with devious schemes to crash, and he attempted several times last week, notably during the football broadcasts.

But alert sentinels and announcers rudely shudged him out of hearing.

As you may have guessed, he is Mr. One-Eye Connelly, champion gate crasher, who, only temporarily defeated, wanders about muttering:

"I'll bust through the damn thing yet."

More Darned Fun!

And that's about all for today. I must skip over and make a Halloween date with my boyfriend who hides behind studio curtains and peeks at performers.

We're going out and push doorbells, and run like the dickens!

STOCK MARKET MOVEMENTS ERRATIC

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—Spots of resistance appeared in the financial markets today although there were so many dips and rallies that trends generally were difficult for traders to define.

The stock list started out with indications of regaining most of its substantial losses of the previous session. Recoveries of fractions to more than a point were recovered by most of the leaders in the first hour of active trading. The advance encountered a flood of offerings, however, and there was a sizeable reaction around noon. Buying orders again halted the decline and most of the leaders steadied. Grains were as erratic as stocks.

Wheat rallied around 2 cents a bushel, then dropped this and about 2 cents more before finding support. Cotton moved up, but other commodities were mixed. Bonds were rather irregular. The dollar eased in foreign exchange dealings.

American Telephone shares were active at losses of a point or more. Western Union, American Tobacco B, Ligget & Meyers B and Sears Roebuck sagged about a point. Moderate gains were registered by Allied Chemical, Du Pont, U. S. Smelting, U. S. Steel, National Distillers, Chrysler, Case, Deere, American Smelting and American Commercial Alcohol. Union Pacific and Santa Fe were in supply at one time, but came back when the list firmed.

The government's probable fiscal program and the European situation continued to be the principal subjects of Wall street discussion. The concensus was that the former was the most important of all market factors. As to troublesome potentialities abroad, opinion was divided as to just how the American recovery movement might be affected by further unsettlement in Europe.

Some unusually well-informed financial observers do not believe the administration will announce its intention regarding currency stabilization until around the first of the year, if then. There are numerous barriers in the way of fixing a dollar value at this time, it is said, notwithstanding the desire of national authorities for monetary stability. In addition to domestic problems, bankers say, dollar pegging will depend to a considerable extent upon the adjustment of economic and financial matters abroad.

The financial district was highly gratified at the oversubscription of the government's new $500,000,000 10-12 year bond offering which was placed on the market today. These bonds bear 4¼ per cent the first year and 3¼ per cent for the remainder of the maturity. The new issue will be increased sufficiently to meet the demands of holders of Liberty Fourth 4¼s who wish to make an exchange. The Treasury has called $1,875,000,000 of the fourth Liberty loan. The largest holders of this loan are said to be banks and insurance companies, and it is expected the conversion offer will prove satisfactory to these institutions.

WHEAT JUMPS FOUR CENTS

CHICAGO, Oct. 17.—Wheat prices jumped more than 4 cents at the opening today, and later became relatively steady at a general gain of about 2 cents. Buying was based largely on opinions of trade leaders that setbacks in grain values had been excessive, and that rallies were overdue. Opening 2⅛-4⅜c up, wheat later reacted to below the initial minimum, and then fluctuated rapidly. Corn started ½-1¼ advanced up, and subsequently rose further.

An outburst of selling orders from the East later disclosed that sustained buying of wheat had become at least temporarily exhausted. A general stampede to relinquish ownership ensued and swept wheat values suddenly back to 5½ cents under early top figures. The downswing of prices carried all deliveries of wheat well below yesterday's finish. Then a renewal of aggressive buying commenced and the market quickly recovered around 2 cents.

HOME MARKET PROTECTION STRESSED

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—The researches of Thomas T. Read, of Columbia University, into the amount of work performed in various countries throw new light on the problem of economic nationalism.

Mr. Rukeyser

His studies, as reported in the American Economic Review, emphasize why the United States has much to gain by protecting the home market. Of all the work done in the world, almost a half is performed in the United States, this investigator finds that helps to explain why it is difficult for Americans to sit around a table, as at the London Economic Conference, to discuss world economic problems on terms of equality with various other nations.

HORSEPOWER HOURS

Dr. Read assumes that human labor constitutes about one-eighth of the total, whereas mechanical work done by the utilization of energy in coal amounts to two-thirds. The work performed by oil, he finds, exceeds that done by water power, which is less than that done by human effort. The per capta work done in the different countries of the world varies widely, ranging from 13 horsepower-hours daily per capita in the United States to less one-half horsepower-hour in India and China.

Contradicting the work limiting effort of certain trade unionists, Prof. Read concludes:

"A good relationship between work done per capita and economic well-being is observable."

Incidentally, Prof. Read's energy survey gives current application to Frederick List's generalization that genuine free trade throughout the world is impractical as long as vast differences in living standards prevail in different countries.

U. S. LEADS WORK

In alluding to the situation in the United States, Dr. Read points out:

"It appears that nearly one-half of all the work being done in the world is performed in the United States. The quantity of work here done by mechanical means is approximately 40 times that performed by our people. With the exception of Canada, no other nation does more than half as much work per capita as we do. About two-thirds of the work of the world is done by coal and nearly a quarter by petroleum while water power amounts to less than one-tenth.

"One-third of all work done by water power is done in the United States, one-sixth in Canada, and Japan and Italy together contribute one-sixth more. France, Sweden, Norway, Germany and Switzerland account for more than another one-sixth. Norway ranks seventh in total quantity but first in per capita water-power work; the United Sates is first in total quantity but fifth on the per capita basis."

WORK COMPARED

Summarizing conditions in other parts of the world, the savant adds:

"In Japan two and one-half times as much work per capita is done by coal as in Russia, and it comes as a surprise to find that Argentina far outranks Russia in per capita work done by petroleum. One then recalls that a quarter of the population of Argentina inhabits one city and the 10 largest cities correspond to nearly half the total, while two-thirds of the population of Russia is in a region where the average density is 5 per square kilometer.

"It might, indeed, be interesting to compute the average work done per square mile in the different countries. Holland, with a slightly larger population than the Union of South Africa, does a little more total work, but over 40 times as much per square mile of area."

GERMAN CREDIT

Germany continues to embark on a course which leads to moral isolation. With the huge frozen American bank loans in Germany, there is on this side special concern with Teuton credit. From a long term viewpoint, it was a miracle that Germany was able to borrow so much abroad after 1924, following the adventure in repudiating in connection with pre-war mark obligations.

This new impairment of Germany's credit may last far beyond the regime of the present rulers. Such developments as the boycott urged by the American Federation of Labor help to emphasize the growing obstacles which will restrict the German export trade, out of which the proceeds for international transfer of funds are garnered.

Unique New Farm-Factory Plan Hatched

By B. C. FORBES

GOVERNMENT money—$25,000,000 as a starter—is to be used to dot the country with novel villages, to be occupied by families allotted two to four acres to enable them to do "farming" on a miniature scale.

Mr. Forbes

The intention of the government is to provide the villagers with employment in some kind of factory or other plant.

Its sponsors envisage each villager becoming owner of his home in 20 years.

The scheme sounds Utopian.

The first 23 villages, at an estimated cost of $8,000,000 and housing 200 families each, are to be built in mining sections of Pennsylvania, Western Kentucky, West Virginia.

Industrialists who have been sounded out unofficially as to their willingness to build plants in the proposed government-sponsored communities have not all embraced the idea enthusiastically. They admit that the scheme looks Arcadian on paper; but they doubt whether native-born Americans will adapt themselves harmoniously to any such communal form of existence.

Col. McHowe, President Roosevelt's secretary, is credited with being enthusiastically behind the unique project. Fantastic figures are heard as to the magnitude the scheme will ultimately reach — unless the dreams of its parents go sadly awry.

ONE OF the many suggestions received to spur the "Buy Now" movement:

"My work takes me into many homes and houses. There are many thousands of painting, decorating, shingling, heating, plumbing and other jobs needing to be done. Lack of cash forces inaction.

"Why don't the banks start loaning home and other property-owners money to do these jobs at fair interest rates? The results would be tremendously far-reaching."

COMPLAINTS allege that not a few business concerns have been discharging well-paid employes and filling their places at minimum wage rates.

It is even said that employes willing to accept the cut are not among those re-engaged. Surely, experienced workers should be given preference over outsiders.

FROM ONE reader:

"I signed a contract to purchase a —— automobile on September 1 and expected delivery in about a week. It has not yet been delivered, so I have cancelled the order and purchased a ——. It was the last one the dealer had in stock. Is there an automobile shortage?"

My answer would be:

"Generally speaking, no. But it is customary for manufacturers to let their stocks run down to the lowest possible ebb before the end of the year, so as to clear dealers' floors for the receipt of new models."

When one manufacturing company recently announced a new model, I had the idea that I might be able to acquire one of the passing models at an attractive price. But I was informed that not one was left.

This is very different from the old days. Manufacturers used habitually to overload dealers, but not any more. They limit production to actual and prospective sales. This arrangement is better, more business-like for all.

Incidentally, if recovery flourishes, the automobile industry thus will be in line for heavy and hurried production.

I am told by certain manufacturers that prices will have to be advanced substantially in the very near future. The prospect is that abnormally generous allowances for old cars turned in, will no longer be granted. But that the value allowed will be rigidly fixed by the code for all makes of cars.

THE AUTOMOBILE industry has received with intense interest Mr. Chrysler's announcement that an overwhelmingly majority of his 30 odd thousand shop-workers have voted, by secret ballot, to adopt a plan of employe representation.

Each plant will have a joint council, consisting of an equal number of employe representatives and management representatives, with equal voting power. A two-thirds vote will be necessary to decide any question.

The Girl Who Won

By MAY CHRISTIE

CHAPTER VII.

Nollie got a temporary job as "Public Stenographer" in a small, smart hotel in a side street off Park avenue.

Her desk was on the mezzanine floor, in a corner.

The hotel visitors were lenient with her initial slowness, born of nervousness and lack of confidence.

But soon her speed improved. She fell in with her work. She loved it, too. Enjoyed the bustle of the lobby below her niche in the balcony.

And it was wonderful—at last—to be earning a little money. Twenty dollars a week after her devastating experience of being down to her last cent in New York—was like riches to Nollie.

The third day on her job, she was 'phoned for, to go up to the suite of a certain Mrs. Judson.

She found a plain young woman there, with bright, humorous eyes and a wide mouth. The suite was full of flowers. With its cream-painted walls and cosy furniture with gay chintz covers, it was cool and beautiful.

Virginia Judson—known as "Jinny" to her friends—was a decisive young woman. She had a sharp tongue and a warm heart, and at first meeting or two, she seemed a contradiction.

Fate had heaped money on her since her cradle—but, despite her riches and her opportunities in life — Jinny was cynical.

For fate had also handed her, as she was wont to say, three perfect lemons in succession for husbands!

LEADS GAY LIFE

At 35—after being a "grass" widow three times—she found herself, by the accidental death of Number Three in a drunken brawl at Tia Juana a "sod" one.

Jinny couldn't pretend to sorrow, in the circumstances. Therefore her enemies—and she had quite a few of these, due to her somewhat brusque candor and her hatred of deceit and double-crossing — dubbed her a "hard one."

But she was nothing of the sort. A warm and generous heart beat under Jinny's prickly exterior.

Outwardly she led a gay life. Traveled everywhere de luxe, and at her own sweet will. But often she was very lonely.

For Virginia Judson hid her real self from all except a very few. And often she deemed her money a curse, since it attracted to her so many toadiers, hangers-on, and rotters.

It was the first day of June when Jinny telephoned downstairs for the "Public Stenographer."

Work was slack. The assistant manager told Nollie she could leave her desk. She went up to the suite on the eighth floor and found the widow waiting for her.

GIVES TO CHARITY

Mrs. Judson gave her a quick, keen look. After her ups and downs with men and matrimony, she was by now a pretty good judge of women.

She liked the young girl's face, her shy and modest mien. She pushed an armchair forward and asked Nollie to sit down.

"I've a charitable jag this morning and I want you to take some letters."

Appeals from hospitals, appeals from Fresh-Air funds. From "Better Baby" leagues, from "Pure Milk" associations.

Printed circulars from East Side settlements and Sailors' Homes, and all sorts of organizations.

"They've got my number. They know I fall for this sort of thing. They're all on to me."

But every one of them received a check and a breezy word of encouragement.

"Now be a sweet child and take a few personal epistles, for I'm owing letters right and left to all my friends. I'm the world's worst correspondent."

She kept Nollie busy for a couple of hours, till a quarter of one, when she suddenly remembered she had a lunch appointment.

"Great heavens! I've only 15 minutes to get dressed ond be over at the Ritz-Carlton."

She didn't return to the hotel until a quarter of six.

Synopsis

Nollie Day, pretty and ambitious, longs to escape the unhappy life she leads with her aunt and uncle in the small town of Yapahunk. She wins a $50 newspaper prize and goes to New York. After three days of fruitless search for a position, Nollie's funds become depleted. Exhausted, she faints on the street and later finds herself in a tawdry house, where a woman called "Daffy" tells Nollie she could make "easy" money. One of Daffy's friends makes advances to Nollie. She strikes him and flees from the house in fear.

Now Go On

This was "after hours" for Nollie Day, but Nollie waited to see that the letters and documents she'd typed were all in order.

Mrs. Judson was apologetic. Unlike most rich women, she was considerate of those who worked for her.

"You look all in! I'm a selfish beast to have kept you hanging on. You'll have a cup of tea with me." And before Nollie could say a word she had telephoned for a waiter.

When the man appeared, from the menu she ordered chocolate "parfaits" and sandwiches and orange pekoe for herself and Nollie.

"Mrs. Judson . . . for me this isn't necessary . . ."

"Nonsense! A laborer's worthy of his hire! Besides, I hate to eat by myself."

Soon they were chatting together easily.

Nollie enjoyed the dainty little meal, for she was hungry.

ACTS AS MODEL

The widow asked her leading questions, it is true, in a somewhat brusque manner. About her life, her people, and the reason why she had come to New York, of all places, in the beastly weather.

But, though the cross-examination was embarrassing at first, Nollie began to like her.

"Your job here's only temporary, you say? And work isn't easy to get now, I know. If I hadn't been dashing off abroad I might have taken you on as my secretary."

The door-bell of the suite rang, and a couple of bellboys appeared, laden with packages.

"Put them on the bedroom floor." The widow tipped the boys and then returned to Nollie. "I indulged in an orgy of shopping this afternoon. Bought half a dozen evening gowns and wraps, and the Lord knows what . . . which was foolish of me when I'm going direct to Paris."

When they had finished their tea and Jinny Judson had read the letters through, and Nollie made a correction or two at her behest, a bright idea struck the widow.

"Don't run away now. Let's have a good look at the new dresses."

Nollie helped her undo the the strings and shake the shimmering fabrics from the tissue paper.

"Say, I've got an idea. You've a nice figure, child. I'm kind of worn out with dashing round this town and I'd be grateful if you'd try them on . . . be a model for me."

Nollie was thrilled, as any girl would be.

PICTORIAL EDUCATION

FOR SCHOOL PUPILS

CAPTURE OF FORT DONELSON BY GEN. GRANT (FEB., 1862)

The Confederates strengthened their position on the Western front by erecting Fort Henry (on the Tennessee River) and Fort Donelson (on the Cumberland River) about 12 miles apart. Admiral Foot took Fort Henry and Gen. Grant Fort Donelson. The latter was "surrendered unconditionally" as demanded by Grant after a bloody struggle. Fourteen thousand Confederates were captured, supplies gained; the Mississippi was opened—by the following victory (April) at Shiloh (Pittsburgh Landing)—for the Union advance. (U. S. History)

MARIE ANTOINETTE GOING TO EXECUTION (1793)

The French Revolution (1789-1795) quickly turned from reformation into radicalism and a reign of terror with Marat, Danton, Robespierre as leaders of the ruling mob whose greatest amusement was furnished by the insatiable "Widow," the guillotine. Along with many thousands of the nobility, Louis XVI and Marie Antoinette, the deposed King and Queen, were beheaded. (World History)

ARBOR VITAE (THUJA OCCIDENTALIS)

Together with three other species it belongs to the Pinaceae family. Its leaves are scale-like, overlapping, with glandular spots on the thrifty shoots, aromatic when crushed. Staminate flowers are roundish, yellowish; pistillates are ovoid, purplish with thin oval scales. The fruit is an oblong cone with 6 to 12 obtuse scales containing the winged seeds; it matures in one season.

The range of arbor vitae is from Southern Labrador to Tennessee. It thrives on low moist ground, but also on higher and drier lands. Its wood is light, soft, durable, fragrant, used for posts, railroad ties, shingles and spools. Arbor vitae, also known as cedar, is valuable as an ornamental tree and is planted for hedges too.

HAMLET AND THE ACTORS

The artist illustrates Act III, Scene 2, of Shakespeare's famous tragedy. Hamlet instructs the actors to play a murder scene before the King and Queen, whom he suspects of having murdered his father, hoping they betray themselves. (Eng. Lit.)

FLOTATION MACHINE (Chemistry)

Most of the heavier metals found pure or in sulphides are contained in such low percentage in the ore that this must be crushed and concentrated (separating valuable from valueless) before further treatment is economical. Flotation is one effective way of ore concentration, done in a machine shown at left.

The broken ore with water, some oil and sulphuric acid is churned in chamber A by propeller C on shaft B into a froth, which passes through D into the flotation compartment E. Sulphides and metal particles stick to the bubbles, are floated to the surface and scraped off by revolving skimmer S into lounder G giving concentrated ore. The settled material is drawn through valve H into an adjoining machine to repeat flotation. (Simons: Ore Dressing)

THALLUS PLANTS (Thallophyta, about 120,000 species)

The kingdom of plants is divided into four phyla (main groups) the first being the Thallus plants: cells, cell-masses without distinct leaves, stem or roots.

They divide into three groups: 1, Algae: Sea weeds (common type shown), pond scums, etc.; they are simple structures having chlorophyll bearing cells. 2, Fungi: Bacteria, yeast, molds, rots, mushrooms, toadstools (shown); these are destructives without chlorophyll. 3, Lichens: Algae and fungi grown together, the former making food, the latter storing water and lending support (shown on dead branches of an evergreen tree). Lichens work down into rocks and split them (4).

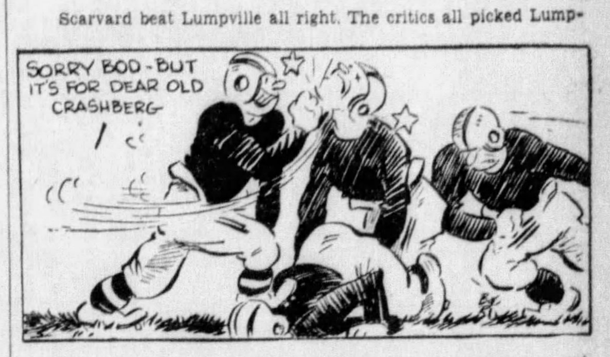
Bright College Days

We got back from our first intercollegiate football scramble yesterday after traveling all night by canoe, dog sled and parcel post.

We beg to report that the rules haven't changed the game a bit. The more they change the rules the less the boys read them.

They still bite, kick and scratch, slug, maul and tussle. Twenty-two thugmates still hop on one another and nobody is ostracized. When we see those furless wolves rushing over the chalked steppes we feel like going down and joining them. We cannot resist the cry of the pack.

Scarvard beat Lumpville all right. The critics all picked Lumpville because that team never graduates. After the game we went on the field and tore up our share of the goalposts.



We tore up the winning team's garden gate because nobody ever thought of that before. There is no opposition. Nobody cares what you do after a football game except the police and the co-eds' parents.

Tearing up goalposts is great sport. But you don't have to stop there. You could run away with the statue of George Washington and everybody would think you were just taking it in for the night.

We got out on the main tracks and pulled four trolleys off the wire, threw a cobblestone through a grocery store window and stole a bale of hay. A cop stopped us when we were toting the bale to a first-class seat in the Pullman, but it was okay when we told him we were a 10-goal man from Sands Point and lost a football bet to a polo pony.

That's what we like about college football. The old fraternity spirit prevails throughout. Even the barroom fights are fair and square. They let you up after everybody has kicked you once.

We don't know where we will go next Saturday. Nobody knows which college will play which until the football coach examines the grudge list.

Bangtown and Crashberg are scheduled for a homicidal romp. Both teams have yet to suffer a defeat, either during the game or afterward.

So we shall see Bangtown and Crashberg with their 100-piece sophomore bands drilling between halves.

Those college bands are a tip on the educational system. It requires 100 muggs with trombones to spell one letter on the field. In the old days it only took one student to read an entire book. We shall be there during the spelling. They may require a period.

The Garbage Contract

A Long-Term Arrangement Should Be Made to Attract Competitive Bidding.

Councilman Frank L. Duggan, chairman of Council's Health Committee, makes the welcome promise of action on the proposed ordinance authorizing three-year or five-year contracts for the removal of Pittsburgh's garbage and rubbish.

If any reasonable excuse can be offered for the six months delay in passing on the measure, we would like to hear it. To us it seems inexcusable.

For a number of years the cry has been raised annually that the existing system of letting the garbage contract for only one year was unduly expensive. It has virtually eliminated competition. The American Reduction Company, and on the North Side the Allegheny Garbage Company, have received the contract year after year, even though their bids were believed to be unreasonably high, because other companies were unwilling to establish garbage disposal plants here and go after the business unless they could have some assurance that their plants would not be idle after a year.

The Sun-Telegraph has repeatedly called attention to the desirability of offering a long-term contract so as to attract competitive bidding. The Pittsburgh Real Estate Board, the Building Owners and Managers Association, the Civic Club of Allegheny County, and the League of Women Voters also have urged it.

At last an ordinance was prepared; but for half a year nothing was done about it, and we suppose nothing would be done about it now but for the fact that as the end of the year approaches another outcry has been raised against the extravagance of a system that gives certain companies a virtual monopoly of the garbage business at whatever prices they care to charge.

Opinions differ as to whether it is too late now, even if a long-term contract should be authorized by Council, to expect that companies other than those now disposing of our garbage will be prepared to bid for next year's business. But the ordinance should be passed nevertheless without further delay.

Opera and Symphony

A Brilliant Season of Music is Ahead, and Thanks Are Due Those Who Have Made It Possible

There was once a prominent railroad official in Pittsburgh—a man of education and culture—to whom tone, rhythm, melody and harmony made no appeal whatever. So far as he was concerned music was simply a concatenation of meaningless sounds. He said the sweetest music to him was the screech of a train rounding a curve.

What a misfortune! How much pleasure he missed!

Happily there are not many like him. Nearly everybody likes some kind of music.

The deepest and most lasting pleasure is to be found in classical music, and Pittsburgh is fortunate in having the assurance of a brilliant season of opera and symphony.

Our opera season will be inaugurated with the presentation of Ponchielli's "La Gioconda" (with its famous "Dance of the Hours") at Syria Mosque Friday evening. Two other operas will be given Saturday—Verdi's "La Traviata" in the afternoon and Bellini's "Norma" in the evening.

The symphony season will begin with the concert on Sunday evening, November 19. George Gershwin is to be the soloist and will play some of his own works—a piano concerto; the symphonic work, "An American in Paris," and, in conclusion, his well-known "Rhapsody in Blue." Antonio Modarelli, the local conductor, will have charge of the first half of the program.

Gershwin drew a crowd of 18,000 to his concert with the New York Philharmonic Orchestra in New York last year—the largest audience that ever attended a symphony concert in that city—and we expect he will easily fill Syria Mosque, our largest auditorium.

The Pittsburgh Metropolitan Grand Opera Company intends to present three operas monthly during the next seven months. Some will be sung in English, others in Italian, German and French.

The Pittsburgh Symphony Society plans four concerts in addition to the Gershwin performance.

An interesting feature of both the operatic and symphonic presentations is that with the exception of some of the soloists the performers will all be Pittsburghers.

At first thought this may seem surprising. But consider that this is a community of more than 1,500,000. Consider that Pittsburgh has long been noted for music—that many of America's most distinguished composers and musicians—Stephen C. Foster, Ethelbert Nevin, Charles Wakefield Cadman, Victor Herbert, Joseph Carl Breil, and Adolph M. Foerster among them—lived in Pittsburgh. Consider these things, and it will not appear extraordinary that we have succeeded in developing our own grand opera company and symphony orchestra.

The promoters of the forthcoming opera and symphony concerts are entitled to the community's thanks. We are especially indebted to Chev. Antonio Certo, general manager of the grand opera company, who is assuming the entire financial risk of the venture.

The way to show appreciation, of course, is to attend the performances.

If you like good music, you will be repaid in the pleasure you will receive.

If you do not like good music, you should by all means cultivate a taste for it.

Fewer Deaths

It Is Desirable to Learn the Cause of the Decrease, and Apply the Lesson.

If people here were continuing to die at the rate that prevailed up to two years ago, several thousand Pittsburghers now alive and well would be in their graves.

The improvement in Pittsburgh's health is so remarkable that doctors are commenting on the decreasing demand for their services. Note these mortality figures for the city:

Total mortality in 1929 to October 5	7,650
Total mortality in 1930 to October 4	7,015
Total mortality in 1931 to October 10	7,531
Total mortality in 1932 to October 8	6,423
Total mortality in 1933 to October 7	5,542

The death rate among Pittsburgh's Negroes this year is only 57 per cent of what it was last year. This caused not a little comment at the meeting of the American Public Health Association in Indianapolis last week, Dr. W. W. McFarland, director of the Department of Health, reported yesterday, on his return from the convention.

The Department of Health can offer no explanation for the decrease in deaths.

Undertakers may attribute it to the depression.

It is desirable that if ascertainable the cause shall be learned, and good use made of the lesson.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—Courtney Ryley Cooper's new penthouse—his engraved stationery calls it "The Chuck Wagon"—on that strip of upper Fifth avenue long known as Millionaire's Row, is a rendezvous for perhaps more unusual characters than any other writer's home in America.

Chiefly because no writer's life has been more varied. Cooper ran away from his native Kansas City at 17 to become an actor with a "rep" show. He played villains, heroes and buck-and-winged at the olio. For years he was a circus press agent and personal representative of Buffalo Bill. He's still in his 40s.

His newspaper work includes stays on Col. Nelson's Kansas City Star, Philadelphia, New York, San Francisco and Los Angeles papers, and he was for four years city editor of the Denver Post. He has ridden the rods as well as gracing the drawing rooms, and visited every spot in America that has a depot.

Today he may be walking the avenue, tomorrow flying to the Arctic Circle. A lop-eared dog of doubtful ancestry has a special penthouse yard called "Michael's Meadow." At one call there I have seen "Peace River" John Cornwall, John Ringling, a famous ex-confidence man, Codona of the flying trapeze, and Octavus Roy Cohen.

Fred Stone's imitations of Will Rogers on the air last summer were masterly. Yet in real life Stone's voice is almost identical and he only needs to simulate the Roger method of sparring for time to get the affect. Tin Pan Alley's most skillful arranger is a wizard scarcely known save among composers who enlist his aid. He is Russell Bennett, whose flair for elaborating a simple musical theme is astounding. He seldom composes himself, but when the works of others are turned over to him he gives them that sparkling lilt that keeps us humming a tune and tapping our feet.

Surprisingly good music is being heard on the Staten Island ferries these days, when excellent musicians are forced to touch low levels to earn daily bread. In other days the squinchey ferry "orchestras" consisted of a harpist and a violinist. The other night one consisted of a saxophonist, violinist, accordionist and 'cellist. Whereas the repertoire was once confined to "Good Old Summer Time" and "Goodbye, Dolly Gray," there was a program of late dance tunes and operatic airs. While they took up collections, the effort appeared galling. The 'cellist I recognized as once belonging to a symphony.

Instead of going into clinches with boy friends they demand an I-kiss-your-hand, Madam—technique.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

Can We Take Democracy?

Whatta world! All that nice, neat Established Order, which our grand-dads knew, smashed to smithereens. Everybody at everybody else's throat. Nobody knowing where we'll go next or where it all will end. And what's it all about?

Do you really want to know? Think you can stand it? Then hold everything—here's the answer.

IT'S ALL ABOUT DEMOCRACY.

"But that's silly!" you snort. "There's nothing new about Democracy. We've always had it."

You're wrong, partner. Democracy is just the one thing we've never really had—NEVER EVEN TRIED TO HAVE!—in America.

What, exactly, is Democracy? It's a theory of human equality. A system of government by all the people, for all the people, whereby everyone gets a decent chance. Which, of course, listens lovely. Then why didn't we do it? The answer is plain:

Brotherly love is swell in theory, but tough in practice.

For the weak and the stupid are to have an equal chance with the strong and the smart, it means plenty of sacrificing and hardship ...and we must all cramp our styles. We can no longer be greedy savages, piling up our individual wampum while the other fellow starves. We must begin to be controlled, civilized human beings.

But does our human selfishness want to be put on a spot like that? Of course it doesn't! And so—

THIS COUNTRY HAS NEVER BEEN A DEMOCRACY. IT HAS NEVER BEEN RUN BY ALL THE PEOPLE FOR THE BENEFIT OF ALL THE PEOPLE. IT HAS BEEN RUN BY A POWERFUL FEW FOR THE BENEFIT OF A POWERFUL FEW.

We haven't admitted that. Most of us haven't even realized that. We have thought, honestly, that we were democratic. We have pointed with pride to certain democratic institutions—our public schools, our free hospitals.

But behind this delightful "front" we were A COUNTRY OF PRIVILEGED CLASSES, WITH THE CARDS ALL STACKED AGAINST THE UNPRIVILEGED MASSES!

So what? So this. This chaos. We've bluffed. Now life is calling our bluff. We've pretended to be "our brother's keeper," while actually we let him go to the dogs.

Now the inevitable thing has happened. BECAUSE WE WOULDN'T KEEP HIM, HE CAN'T KEEP US. Our selfishness and hypocrisy have boomeranged back on our own necks.

What's more, thanks to compulsory education, the radio and newspapers, the masses know what it's all about. They can't be fooled, they won't be bluffed, any more. They know the true story of Wall street—the true story of folded banks. They know all the answers.

SO AT LAST IT'S DEMOCRACY—OR BUST!

And at last we have an administration which honestly believes in democracy, and is really trying to put it into practice. What's happening? Well, some of us are taking it like good sports; giving up our Special Privileges willingly and generously. But a lot of us are beginning to squeal like the Stuck Pigs which we are.

How will it end? I wonder. We've preached democracy, we've boasted about it. But now that it's on the way—CAN WE TAKE IT?

MARRY-GO-ROUND

By Helen Rowland

We Modern Women

Wisdom is the pill, philosophy the balm and a sense of humor the tonic which will cure the worst heartache—after the summer infatuation.

When a woman lets her hair go frowsy, it's a sign of complete resignation. Until the day when she renounces her last hope of seeing a man's eyes light up at sight of her, a woman will always do SOMETHING to her hair.

It wasn't the high cost of living that drove so many men to bankruptcy during the days of 1929—it was the high cost of living-better-than-the-Joneses, in order to appease some woman's vanity.

A man doesn't object to honest criticism from a woman, provided her "criticism" is entirely complimentary. He loves to be told that he's "too big-hearted"—but not that he's too bald-headed.

A man's idea of "freedom" is to avoid getting tied up to one woman, by keeping himself continually tangled up with half a dozen.

Nothing so hurts a girl's vanity as a man's willingness to forgive her too quickly for flirting with another man.

The thing that gets on a man's nerves worst is a woman's passion for "dramatizing" everything, from a telephone call or a headache to a morning spat or a wedding. But a woman has to have SOME emotional outlet in her life!

There are only two times in any man's life when he feels like committing suicide over a woman—when he can't get her, and when he can't get away from her.

The old-fashioned girl used to get her way with tears; but a girl would hardly be able to soften a man's heart, today, with streaks of mascara running down her cheeks.

OUR RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis.

Avenue of Good

It dwells always within my breast,
Desire that will not give me rest
Till good is through my life expressed.

From wells not of the earth it springs,
This urge through my being rings
And with divine insistence sings.

To give of faith and love and hope
To those who falter, stumble, grope
Along life's sometimes barren slope.

This is my never-ceasing prayer,
To make the pattern grow more fair
By weaving threads of gladness there.

And this the dream I long have wooed:
That I may be in every mood
An avenue of all things good.

Text for Today

But he was wounded for our transgressions, he was bruised for our iniquities: the chastisement of our peace was upon him; and with his stripes we are healed.—Isaiah, liii:5.

Roosevelt Made Target of Pacifist Propaganda

By James T. Williams, Jr.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S leadership and the established defense policy of the United States are the target of an attack by the operating officials of an organization now engaged in political propaganda under the firm name of "The Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America."

With a view, no doubt, to weakening the leadership of the President and impressing the public with the power of this propaganda society to influence votes, its spokesmen boast that they represent "twenty-five Protestant denominations with a total of more than 23,000,000 communicants."

The catch, of course, in this unfounded claim is that these 23,000,000 "communicants," who are presumably loyal American citizens, never authorized any such attack upon Mr. Roosevelt's leadership or the nation's defense policy as the officials of the Federal Council of these 25 denominations have announced on the eve of the League Conference at Geneva for the Limitation and Reduction of Armaments.

What has apparently happened is that the officials of this propaganda society got together and swallowed hook, bait and sinker a program made in Europe to disarm the United States as an example to the world.

Attack Roosevelt In Propaganda

MR. ROOSEVELT is attacked in the propaganda of this society for taking the first step toward building the American Navy to equality with the British navy. These propaganda officials insist that the United States does not require a navy equal to the British navy.

In other words, they prefer to accept on this point the word of British propagandists with whom they are in correspondence to the advice and counsel of American defense authorities and in utter disregard of the rights and obligations set forth in the Washington treaty.

By the terms of the Washington treaty, it was agreed that the peace of the world could best be safeguarded by equating the American and British navies.

This treaty was indorsed by the very Federal Council of Churches which is now criticizing President Roosevelt for starting to carry out its main provisions.

This treaty provided for the limitation of naval armament by tonnage in categories and rejected the method of budgetary limitation.

Now the very propaganda society which supported this treaty advocates in effect its violation by urging limitation by the budgetary method.

Great Britain opposed budgetary limitation until the last session of the preparatory commission for the conference soon to assemble at Geneva. Then the British changed their position. And now the officials of the Federal Council of Churches have changed their position, too.

The "23,000,000 Americans," whom this council claims to represent, may be interested to know why their government has always opposed budgetary limitation and why the British government now advocates this method of limitation.

The reason was clearly set forth by Ambassador Gibson, who was one of President Coolidge's delegates to the Geneva Conference in 1927 and 1928. Here is Mr. Gibson's explanation:

"In view of the great variation in the cost of material and labor and various other factors—such a measure is impractical and ineffective."

Repudiates Treaty That It Indorsed

AND EXPENDITURES on naval armaments for the last 10 years demonstrate how impossible it would be, were budgetary limitation in effect, for the United States ever to equate its Navy with the British navy.

In calling, therefore, for budgetary limitation of naval armaments the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America is not only repudiating the treaty which it formerly indorsed, but it is apparently siding with a foreign country in an effort to prevent the United States from building a navy equal in strength to the British navy.

It would be interesting to know how many of the 23,000,000 Americans, for which this propaganda society claims to speak, would side with a foreign country against their own government on this question.

There are several other provisions in this made-in-Europe program to disarm the United States as an example to the world, but the ones already cited show the nature of the propaganda which the society now is attacking the President and the defense program of the United States is disseminating up and down "the land of the free and the home of the brave."

Human Side of the News

Paul von Hindenburg, Germany's National Hero—A Fighter in Several Wars—His Iron Tenacity

By Edwin C. Hill

ALONG UNTER DEN LINDEN, through the central arch of the Brandenburg Gate, German troops goose-step to the strains of a military band. Flags snap in the breeze. A huge old man appears in the door of a church to receive a bouquet from a curtseying little girl, and a roar of cheers goes up as he steps into his car, holding high his tribute from childhood.

Later in his study, Paul von Hindenburg's eyes moisten as they fall upon the battleflags of his old regiments left in his home overnight as the greatest honor the German army can pay to a living man.

All Germany celebrated his recent eighty-sixth birthday, but nobody who knows him doubts that the Reich President, if he could, would have escaped all the public manifestations in his honor. More than 3,000 letters and packages were delivered to the presidential palace in Berlin and everybody everywhere in Germany paused sometime in the day to remember the courageous figure of Germany's period of stress and wonder how many more birthdays he might attain.

Alarums and shouts, rumors and murmurs may be heard from all sides, but all the while the grim, impassive old man in the German presidential palace retains his granite calmness and assurance. Aside from revolution or death, he will have the final say. In 1918 Europe and the United States looked upon Marshal von Hindenburg of the Imperial German Army as an arch-criminal. In 1933 he is honored as few national leaders have been since George Washington.

Attended Coronation Of William I.

UNTIL THE incredible Hitler appeared, President von Hindenburg stood like Atlas, bearing on his unyielding shoulders the burden of a people's disillusionment and desperation. What a life his has been!

Away back in 1866, as a young lieutenant, he lay unconscious across a cannon at the Battle of Konigsgratz which destroyed Austrian power. Five years later he witnessed in conquered Paris the coronation of the old Emperor, William the First. In 1912 it seemed that his life work was finished. He was retired as too old for active service. He went into retirement at Hanover, smoking his cigarets, drinking his beer and fighting over tavern tables imaginary campaigns with the Russians in East Prussia. The conviction that some day Germany must face Russia among the East Prussian swamps and lakes became an obsession with this discarded soldier. He was laughed at. Sneeringly they called him "The Old Man of the Lakes."

Then came 1914. Von Moltke struck at Paris. The Grand Duke Nicholas poured his horde of Cossacks over the eastern border. The Kaiser summoned from obscurity the one man whose mind was a perfect map of the East Prussian battlegrounds. And the Old Man of the Lakes, no figure of fun in that desperate crisis, with the Don Cossacks headed straight for Berlin, strode out of his retirement and took charge.

To the thunder of cannon, with human pawns to take the places of the salt cellars and the forks he had played with on the tavern tables of Hanover, he began the terrible game which lured and drove the Russian armies into the death trap of Tannenberg. Three hundred thousand of the flower of the Czar's armies lay dead in the swamps when von Hindenburg finished the game and turned his stern blue eyes to the western front.

His Remedy For Nervousness

AS FIELD MARSHAL and Commander-in-Chief he inspired the German armies in the West to heroic sacrifices. When the defeat came and the Kaiser and von Ludendorff had fled, old Paul stood fast to save what he could out of the universal wreck. And there he has been ever since. Nothing upsets or daunts him. An officer, amazed at his iron tenacity, once said to him:

"Excellency, what do you do when your are nervous?"

"I whistle," said von Hindenburg.

"But," protested the officer, "I have never heard you whistle."

And the old lion replied, "That is because I have never whistled."

It was hard to believe in 1925, when Paul von Hindenburg was called to the Presidency that this arch-priest of the old monarch would not pull down the republic. The French prepared for it. The English were on edge. But the old warrior, whose faith in religion and in the Heavenly Father is the simple faith of a child, has been the republic's stoutest prop. He has ever lived by his own rule of life:

"I learned always to do my duty to the Fatherland, without thought of self."

If the Kaiser hadn't fled in panic and thrown away the game, he would have had at his back this old rock of loyalty, for Von Hindenburg doesn't believe in republics. Nevertheless, until Hitler appeared he upheld the German republic, almost singlehanded, because he saw that as his duty. It was not his fault that it came crashing down.

And today as he crosses over the divide, he must wonder in his honest heart what will be the fate of his beloved Germany under Hitler and the swaggering Nazis. There is something Cromwellian about him as he sits with his eyes on his Bible and his hands on his sword.
